Choppers Rush Troops To New Viet Nam Battle

Two mass airlifts by 48 helicopters dropped a Vietnamese battalion into the rice paddies two miles east of Binh Gia, the Roman Catholic refugee village that has been directly contested by government and Communist forces since Monday.

The Communists fought off attempts to reach the wreckage of a downed U. S. helicopter. Vietnamese marines reached the wreckage twice Thursday but were forced back. They recovered the body of one of the four U. S. Army helicopter crewmen. The fate of the others was not known, but they were feared to have been killed.

Thirty-seven assault helicopters flew with the troop-carrying helicopters. They poured fire on Communist positions around the village 40 miles southeast of Saigon, swooping low for strafing runs with machine guns and rockets.

Ten Vietnamese air force fighter-bombers and 10 other planes piloted by Americans also pinned down the Communists during the troop landings.

The casualty toll for the battle stood at 185 Vietnamese killed or wounded and 17 Americans killed, wounded, or missing.

Guerrilla losses were also heavy, officials said.

GOP Changes Names, Uses Same Script

By RAYMOND LAHR

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The GOP has changed the names in the cast but it is following substantially the same script it used 16 years ago.

In 1948, Thomas E. Dewey was defeated by President Harry S. Truman in an election Dewey was expected to win. As the candidate of the Republican liberal wing, he was denounced by embittered critics from within his own party.

In 1964, Sen. Barry Goldwater was defeated by President Johnson in a Democratic landslide. As the candidate of the conservative wing, he is being denounced for carrying many Republicans to defeat with him.

Although Dewey and Goldwater represented opposing wings of the GOP, both were charged with mismanagement of their campaigns and leading the party in the wrong direction. Both defeats were followed by factional squabbling within the party.

Although it is not billed as a contest between pro- and anti-Goldwater Republicans, the first major battle over future party leadership comes in the House Monday. Rep. Gerard R. Ford of Michigan is trying to unseat House Republican Leader Charles A. Halleck.

There was no comparable revolt among House Republicans 16 years ago but there was one in the Senate. Henry Cabot Lodge, then a senator from Massachusetts, ran against Sen.

Mrs. Bruce Wins Barrel Racer Crown

DALLAS (UPI)—Ardith Bruce of Fountain, Colo. won the title of world's champion barrel racer Thursday night with a second-place finish in the Dallas all-star rodeo.

Her $120 in prize money was second in the Dallas competition to Allene Gaylor of Colorado Springs, Colo., who won $161, and wound up ninth in the national finals.

Britain Sends 1,000 Troops To Malaysia

LONDON (UPI) — Britain Friday endorsed in principle the United States' reported stiffened terms for a new bid to Russia on German unity.

Diplomatic sources said Britain stands by the comprehensive plan for German unification and European security which was worked out in 1959 among the Western powers and unsuccessfully presented to the Soviets at a foreign ministers conference in Geneva that year.

Washington reports said the U.S. administration, impatient with pressure from the Bonn government, is not now prepared to consider another approach to Moscow unless there is advance agreement among the allies on a comprehensive plan for the future of Central Europe.

The issue was raised during the foreign ministers meeting at the mid-December NATO conference in Paris, but no commitment was made to Germany on four-power talks with Russia.

However, the Western powers were expected to get together some time in the new year to review their position on whether and how to tackle the prob-

Johnson Appoints Two New Ambassadors

JOHNSON CITY, Tex. (UPI) —President Johnson Friday named Maurice M. Bernbaum as U.S. ambassador to Venezuela and Wymberley Coerr as U.S. ambassador to Ecuador.

Bernbaum now is the U.S. envoy in Ecuador, and Coerr is ambassador to Uruguay.

Bernbaum, upon Senate confirmation, would succeed C. Alan Stewart who has been reassigned from Caracas to another State Department post.

Edward Bradford Dies In Crash, First of Year

El Paso County's first auto fatality for 1965 occurred New Year's Day as law enforcement agencies in the region were swamped with a rash of accidents involving injuries and minor crashes.

The victim was Edward L. Bradford, 47, of 606 E. Monument St., former voters registration director of the local chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP).

The State Patrol reported that Bradford's car was northbound on Colo. 115 near the intersection of Colo. 27, at approximately 8:25 a.m. "at a very high rate of speed."

As the car approached a slight right curve it skidded 196 feet, going off the left side of the road for 62 feet, slamming into a dirt bank. The car continued north along the dirt bank for 35 feet, rolled once, and traveled another 29 feet, rolling again. Then the car skidded backwards for 48 feet, coming to a stop on the north side of the intersection with Colo. 27.

Bradford died of a possible skull fracture, and chest injuries. He also had broken ribs. His body was taken to Nolan Funeral Home.

Seat belts in the car were not in use, the patrol said. Bradford was not thrown from the car.

Damage to his 1964 model was estimated at $4,800 — a total loss. Investigating the accident were Patrolman Kenneth W. Shiflet, J. L. Baker and Sgt. J. Abdendshan.

As snow continued to pelt the region Friday night, the switchboard in the patrol office was swamped with calls from persons requesting information on weather conditions.

Interstate 25 was slippery, especially on Monument Hill and

As Every Year, Red Chinese Fight Capitalism

TOKYO (UPI)—The Communist radio said Friday Red China's principal internal struggle this year will be a fight against lingering tendencies toward capitalism.

A Peking broadcast quoting the Communist "People's Daily" called for a nationwide "house cleaning" and an "education" drive to combat these tendencies.

In a New Year's review of the tasks ahead, the Red radio said "the struggle between socialism (communism) and capitalism still exists in socialist society after industry is nationalized, agriculture is collectivized and socialist ownership of the means of production is completed."

"In this (education) movement. . .it is necessary boldly to mobilize the masses, to do a 'house cleaning' and undertake 'capital construction' in the political, economic, ideological and organizational fields," the radio said.

Traffic Toll Running at Seven an Hour

By United Press International

The nation's traffic toll rose toward the 200 mark late Friday, maintaining a pace of seven deaths an hour which safety officials said could make it the worst New Year's holiday in history.

National Safety Council experts said if the death rate continued the final figure would eclipse not only the record of 374 traffic fatalities for a three-day New Years, set in 1959-60, but also surpass the mark of 409 for a four-day New Year's holiday, set in 1956-57.

A safety council spokesman said the total was even running ahead of the rate during the first 24 hours of the Christmas holiday a week ago. In that 78-hour period United Press Inter-

Johnson Orders Inquiry Into Steel Price Hike

U. S. Steel Mum About LBJ Order

A similar attitude was adopted by Bethlehem Steel Co., the nation's second largest producer, and other major firms which hiked prices $6 per ton on galvanized sheets.

One industry source said steel officials probably would make no statement unless the investigation produces a call for federal action.

Johnson's request for an inquiry came just three days before the executive board of the United Steelworkers Union was scheduled to discuss possible revisions in bargaining strategy in the light of the price increases.

The board meeting will be held Monday and the USW will resume formal contract negotiations Tuesday with the "big 11" steel producers.

USW President David J. McDonald said "the price increases should put the industry in an even better position to meet the urgent needs of steelworkers.

"Even before the price increases were announced the industry was in an excellent position to meet the needs of its employes."

The union's current contract expires April 30.

Automation Creates New Jobs That Go Unfilled

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (UPI)—A research report showed today automation is developing new jobs faster than they are being filled. It indicated automation would increase the total number of jobs in five years.

The most common new jobs added by automation in the past year were programmers, key punch operators and systems analysts. The largest area where most of the firms are contemplating automation within the next five years was inventory control. Most automation in the past year was in accounting, payroll, record keeping, sales analysis and material handling.

The Manpower Research Council polled more than 200 personnel and industrial relations directors representing firms that have been involved in automation. The firms employ a total of 824,772 persons.

Forty-three per cent of those queried predicted increases in jobs, 28 per cent decreases and 29 per cent anticipated no appreciable change.

Nigeria Chief Drops Call for New Elections

LAGOS, Nigeria (UPI)—President Nnamdi Azikiew suddenly canceled a nationwide broadcast Friday night in which he had planned to call for new elections.

The text of Azikiwe's speech contained a warning that he would rather resign than try to form a government on the basis of last Wednesday's chaotic voting.

The president apparently had planned to gamble on his popularity as founder of this nation of 55 million to win order among its political factions.

Balewa's Nigerian National Alliance (NNA), which is dominated by northern Moslems, emerged as the victors in the election, Nigeria's first nationwide voting since achieving independence in 1960.

But voting was boycotted in most areas by non-Moslem southern Nigerians of the United Progressive Grand Alliance (UPGA).

The NNA thus far has won 174 seats and the UPGA 35 seats in the 312-member parliament.

Balewa was believed to have pressed the claims of the northern Moslems in his meeting with Azikiwe. The north hopes

New Year's Day Brings Foul Weather to U. S.

(By United Press International)

Snow, rain and fog ushered in the new year in much of the northern half of the nation Friday making highways hazardous in a dozen states from Oklahoma to New York.

Wind gusts up to 70 miles an hour pounded the flood-weary Pacific Northwest but helicopter rescue missions continued to communities isolated since before Christmas.

Heavy snow was reported in Michigan and Ohio and the storm was moving into West Virginia. Akron, Ohio, had four inches of snow in six hours. Detroit, Mich., had three inches of snow. Some parts of Michigan had snow accumulating at a rate of better than an inch an hour. The snowfall at Lansing, Mich., reduced the crowd for the Friday inauguration of Gov. George Romney.

At midafternoon it was snowing in Cleveland, Pittsburgh, and Detroit.

An anticipated heavy snow storm failed to materialize in western Washington, but winds of gale force or above pounded the coast. Eastern Washington was still expecting four inches or more of snow. Below freezing temperatures iced the state's flood-washed highways, making driving hazardous. Colville, Wash., was the nation's snowiest city with 25 inches on the ground.

Fog and drizzle was reported from the southern plains to the Ohio Valley. Dense fog obscured the tops of Chicago's skyscrapers. Thunderstorms grumbled through the Middle Mississippi Valley. Quincy, Ill., measured 2.09 inches of rain during a thundershower.

Several inches of snow was forecast in the eastern Great Lakes.

Weather Was Normal Here In December

There wasn't anything outstanding or different about December, 1964 in Colorado Springs; it made its entrance and its exit with about as normal weather as a December here could be.

The mean maximum was 45, equaling the normal, and the mean minimum was 21, two points higher than the normal of 19. This gave the month a mean temperature of 33, compared to the normal of 32.

The highest spot on the thermometer was a 71 on Dec. 23, with the previous all-time high a 77 in 1955. The lowest was a -4 on the 17th against the previous all-time low of -27 back in 1919.

December had four days when the maximum was 32 degrees or below; 27 days when the minimum was 32 or below, and two days when the minimum was zero or below.

The precipitation count for the month was .22 compared to the .24 normal, leaving a deficiency of .02 for the month.

The greatest amount of precipitation in any one 24-hour period was .17 inches recorded on Dec. 3-4. Total snowfall amounted to 4.9 inches.

December's days were clear 11 times; partly cloudy five times, and cloudy 15 times.

The new year, 1965, got off to a wet start with a light snowfall that residents didn't think would last very long. They were wrong. By nightfall, it was still snowing lightly and the prospect was for it to continue until this morning, with today dawning cloudy.

No Official Action Seen At Present

JOHNSON CITY, Tex. (UPI) — President Johnson has ordered a government inquiry into the recent round of selective steel price increases, the White House said Friday.

Press Secretary George E. Reedy said Johnson directed Chairman Gardner Ackley of the Council of Economic Advisers to determine whether any federal moves are called for.

Reedy told newsmen Johnson was "sufficiently concerned" about the price boosts by a number of companies on certain steel items to ask Ackley to launch the study.

"Whether or not there would be action would be up to Ackley," Reedy said.

He declined to speculate on whether action could go beyond presidential persuasion if the increases are considered inflationary.

Britain Okays U.S. Stand on German Unity

LONDON (UPI) — Britain's decision to send another 1,000 troops to Malaysia in an airlift beginning Saturday was described Friday as "prudent" reinforcement move in view of Indonesia's continuing threats.

Malaysia, the British Commonwealth federation on Indonesia's borders, has been the target of Indonesian guerrilla raids for more than a year.

In Kuching, Malaysia, military officials reported that Indonesian guerrilla units fired mortars at Malaysian positions on the border early Friday morning.

The Malaysians replied with artillery fire and the guerrilla fire stopped, a spokesman said. There were no casualties to troops or civilians in the border area.

Kuching is the capital of Malaysia's Sarawak state on the island of Borneo, which Malaysia shares with Indonesia. Most of the guerrilla activity is on Borneo, but in recent weeks guerrilla landings on the Malay peninsula, near the major cities of Singapore and Kuala Lumpur, have grown more frequent.

It was these raids and reports of Indonesian buildups that led to the new British troop movements, officials in London said Friday.

U.N. Observers Check on Battle

JERUSALEM, Israel (UPI)—U. N. observers Friday investigated a five-hour border gun battle. Israel charged one of its farmers was killed by shrapnel from the Syrian side.

The clash east of Hula was one of two Thursday. The Israelis said a Syrian position at Kursi, east of the Sea of Galilee, fired on an Israeli patrol boat but caused no casualties.

Isreal lodged a "strong complaint" with the armistice commission, an army spokesman said. The report from the U.N. observers will go to U. N. Truce Supervisory Organization (UNTSO) chief of staff Gen. Odd Bull.

An Israeli spokesman said the farmer was killed when Syrian mortar positions and tanks fired on tractors plowing in a demilitarized zone. There have been similar exchanges of fire over tractors recently.

Nephew of Muslim Leader Shoots Kin

Wilmon Muhammed Poole, 35, was charged by police with aggravated battery. He said the .22 caliber pistol he was holding went off accidentally, wounding his brother James, 23, a soldier home on leave from Ft. Knox, Ky. James would not file charges.

Missionary Chose Death Over Leaving

LEOPOLDVILLE, The Congo (UPI) — A British missionary chose death at the hands of Congo rebels with his ailing American friend rather than leave him, a survivor of the Wamba massacre said Friday.

The story of the deaths Dec. 5 of William McChesney, 27, of Phoenix, Ariz., and Briton James Rodgers, 42, was told by another British missionary, Jack Scholes, 64, who arrived here with his wife, six other British missionaries, an Australian and a New Zealander.

Both McChesney and Rodgers were members of the "Heart of Africa" mission.

"It was a nightmare," Scholes said, "like being in hell."

"When the simbas (rebels) singled out McChesney for killing," Scholes said, "Jim said, 'My place is with Bill.'

"None of us saw McChesney and Rodgers die, but they tied their hands behind their back to their feet and tortured them before they threw them into the Wamba River," the elderly Briton said.

"One priest shouted, 'Rodgers is not an American. But Jim refused to have his life spared. The rebels had beaten up McChesney badly and he was violently sick. Jim had stayed with him to take care of him.

"On that day, Jim said, 'If Bill has to die, I die with him,'" Scholes remembered.

"That was what he said. Jim had stayed with Bill all the time, like his guardian angel, to ward off the worst from him. And he died with him."

The massacre took place shortly after Belgian paratroopers dropped on Stanleyville in November to rescue white hostages there.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The GOP has changed the names in the cast but it is following substantially the same script it used 16 years ago.

In 1948, Thomas E. Dewey was defeated by President Harry S. Truman in an election Dewey was expected to win. As the candidate of the Republican liberal wing, he was denounced by embittered critics from within his own party.

In 1964, Sen. Barry Goldwater was defeated by President Johnson in a Democratic landslide. As the candidate of the conservative wing, he is being denounced for carrying many Republicans to defeat with him.

Although Dewey and Goldwater represented opposing wings of the GOP, both were charged with mismanagement of their campaigns and leading the party in the wrong direction. Both defeats were followed by factional squabbling within the party.

Although it is not billed as a contest between pro- and anti-Goldwater Republicans, the first major battle over future party leadership comes in the House Monday. Rep. Gerard R. Ford of Michigan is trying to unseat House Republican Leader Charles A. Halleck.

There was no comparable revolt among House Republicans 16 years ago but there was one in the Senate. Henry Cabot Lodge, then a senator from Massachusetts, ran against Sen.

Britain Sends 1,000 Troops To Malaysia

LONDON (UPI) — Britain Friday endorsed in principle the United States' reported stiffened terms for a new bid to Russia on German unity.

Diplomatic sources said Britain stands by the comprehensive plan for German unification and European security which was worked out in 1959 among the Western powers and unsuccessfully presented to the Soviets at a foreign ministers conference in Geneva that year.

Washington reports said the U.S. administration, impatient with pressure from the Bonn government, is not now prepared to consider another approach to Moscow unless there is advance agreement among the allies on a comprehensive plan for the future of Central Europe.

The issue was raised during the foreign ministers meeting at the mid-December NATO conference in Paris, but no commitment was made to Germany on four-power talks with Russia.

However, the Western powers were expected to get together some time in the new year to review their position on whether and how to tackle the prob-

Johnson Appoints Two New Ambassadors

JOHNSON CITY, Tex. (UPI) —President Johnson Friday named Maurice M. Bernbaum as U.S. ambassador to Venezuela and Wymberley Coerr as U.S. ambassador to Ecuador.

Bernbaum now is the U.S. envoy in Ecuador, and Coerr is ambassador to Uruguay.

Bernbaum, upon Senate confirmation, would succeed C. Alan Stewart who has been reassigned from Caracas to another State Department post.

Mrs. Bruce Wins Barrel Racer Crown

DALLAS (UPI)—Ardith Bruce of Fountain, Colo. won the title of world's champion barrel racer Thursday night with a second-place finish in the Dallas all-star rodeo.

Her $120 in prize money was second in the Dallas competition to Alicse Gaylor of Colorado Springs, Colo., who won $161, and wound up ninth in the national finals.

El Paso County's first auto fatality for 1965 occurred New Year's Day as law enforcement agencies in the region were swamped with a rash of accidents involving injuries and minor crashes.

The victim was Edward L. Bradford, 47, of 606 E. Monument St., former voters registration director of the local chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP).

The State Patrol reported that Bradford's car was northbound on Colo. 115 near the intersection of Colo. 27, at approximately 8:25 a.m. "at a very high rate of speed."

As the car approached a slight right curve it skidded 196 feet, going off the left side of the road for 62 feet, slamming into a dirt bank. The car continued north along the dirt bank for 35 feet, rolled once, and traveled another 29 feet, rolling again. Then the car skidded backwards for 48 feet, coming to a stop on the north side of the intersection with Colo. 27.

Bradford died of a possible skull fracture, and chest injuries. He also had broken ribs. His body was taken to Nolan Funeral Home.

Seat belts in the car were not in use, the patrol said. Bradford was not thrown from the car.

Damage to his 1964 model was estimated at $4,800 — a total loss. Investigating the accident were Patrolman Kenneth W. Shiflet, J. L. Baker and Sgt. J. Abdendshan.

As snow continued to pelt the region Friday night, the switchboard in the patrol office was swamped with calls from persons requesting information on weather conditions.

Interstate 25 was slippery, especially on Monument Hill and

Traffic Toll Running at Seven an Hour

By United Press International

The nation's traffic toll rose toward the 200 mark late Friday, maintaining a pace of seven deaths an hour which safety officials said could make it the worst New Year's holiday in history.

National Safety Council experts said if the death rate continued the final figure would eclipse not only the record of 374 traffic fatalities for a three-day New Years, set in 1959-60, but also surpass the mark of 409 for a four-day New Year's holiday, set in 1956-57.

A safety council spokesman said the total was even running ahead of the rate during the first 24 hours of the Christmas holiday a week ago. In that 78-hour period United Press Inter-

As Every Year, Red Chinese Fight Capitalism

TOKYO (UPI)—The Communist radio said Friday Red China's principal internal struggle this year will be a fight against lingering tendencies toward capitalism.

A Peking broadcast quoting the Communist "People's Daily" called for a nationwide "house cleaning" and an "education" drive to combat these tendencies.

In a New Year's review of the tasks ahead, the Red radio said "the struggle between socialism (communism) and capitalism still exists in socialist society after industry is nationalized, agriculture is collectivized and socialist ownership of the means of production is completed."

"In this (education) movement . . .it is necessary boldly to mobilize the masses, to do a 'house cleaning' and undertake 'capital construction' in the political, economic, ideological and organizational fields," the radio said.

Nigeria Chief Drops Call for New Elections

LAGOS, Nigeria (UPI)—President Nnamdi Azikiew suddenly canceled a nationwide broadcast Friday night in which he had planned to call for new elections.

The text of Azikiwe's speech contained a warning that he would rather resign than try to form a government on the basis of last Wednesday's chaotic voting.

But 20 minutes before he was scheduled to go on the air, the President changed his plans without explanation.

The president apparently had planned to gamble on his popularity as founder of this nation of 55 million to win order among its political factions.

Balewa's Nigerian National Alliance (NNA), which is dominated by northern Moslems, emerged as the victors in the election, Nigeria's first nationwide voting since achieving independence in 1960.

But voting was boycotted in most areas by non-Moslem southern Nigerians of the United Progressive Grand Alliance (UPGA).

The NNA thus far has won 174 seats and the UPGA 35 seats in the 312-member parliament.

Balewa was believed to have pressed the claims of the northern Moslems in his meeting with Azikiwe. The north hopes

U.N. Observers Check on Battle

JERUSALEM, Israel (UPI)—U. N. observers Friday investigated a five-hour border gun battle. Israel charged one of its farmers was killed by shrapnel from the Syrian side.

The clash east of Hula was one of two Thursday. The Israelis said a Syrian position at Kursi, east of the Sea of Galilee, fired on an Israeli patrol boat but caused no casualties.

Isreal lodged a "strong complaint" with the armistice commission, an army spokesman said. The report from the U.N. observers will go to U. N. Truce Supervisory Organization (UNTSO) chief of staff Gen. Odd Bull.

An Israeli spokesman said the farmer was killed when Syrian mortar positions and tanks fired on tractors plowing in a demilitarized zone. There have been similar exchanges of fire over tractors recently.

Nephew of Muslim Leader Shoots Kin

Wilmon Muhammed Poole, 35, was charged by police with aggravated battery. He said the .22 caliber pistol he was holding went off accidentally, wounding his brother James, 23, a soldier home on leave from Ft. Knox, Ky. James would not file charges.

Missionary Chose Death Over Leaving

LEOPOLDVILLE, The Congo (UPI) — A British missionary chose death at the hands of Congo rebels with his ailing American friend rather than leave him, a survivor of the Wamba massacre said Friday.

The story of the deaths Dec. 5 of William McChesney, 27, of Phoenix, Ariz., and Briton James Rodgers, 42, was told by another British missionary, Jack Scholes, 64, who arrived here with his wife, six other British missionaries, an Australian and a New Zealander.

Both McChesney and Rodgers were members of the "Heart of Africa" mission.

"It was a nightmare," Scholes said, "like being in hell."

"When the simbas (rebels) singled out McChesney for killing," Scholes said, "Jim said, 'My place is with Bill.'

"None of us saw McChesney and Rodgers die, but they tied their hands behind their back to their feet and tortured them before they threw them into the Wamba River," the elderly Briton said.

"One priest shouted, 'Rodgers is not an American. But Jim refused to have his life spared. The rebels had beaten up McChesney badly and he was violently sick. Jim had stayed with him to take care of him.

"On that day, Jim said, 'If Bill has to die, I die with him,'" Scholes remembered.

"That was what he said. Jim had stayed with Bill all the time, like his guardian angel, to ward off the worst from him. And he died with him."

The massacre took place shortly after Belgian paratroopers dropped on Stanleyville in November to rescue white hostages there.

Last-Minute Bargains Are Not Recommended

WASHINGTON (AP) — A shift from traditional last-minute bargaining has been proposed by a blue-ribbon panel after an 18-month study of the causes of labor-management strife.

The new style of bargaining as recommended by the 12-man panel would involve continuing discussions between labor and management instead of the traditional hectic bargaining that often takes place when a contract is about to expire.

The group, composed of prominent representatives of both sides, was named by late President John F. Kennedy.

Citing bargaining problems "far more complicated than ever before," the panel said in its report Tuesday: "For such problems, time and study are among the essential ingredients needed, and the normal period of contract bargaining, of itself, does not provide enough of either."

SNAKE EMERGENCY

WINTER PARK, Fla. (AP)—Playgrounds at the Brookshire Elementary School have been closed due to an infestation of poisonous snakes.

Ross Allen of the Silver Springs Reptile Institute telephoned the school that he would lead a group of professional snake-handlers in ridding the area of snakes after being informed of the situation.

The principal of the school, Thelma McNew, closed a playgrounds for recess periods after four rattlers and one moccasin were killed. The snakes shuttle back and forth across the school grounds from a palmetto patch to a waterhole.

Allen called for 20-foot sections of hose and gasoline to use in riding the grounds of snake beds. He said that the beds must be wiped out to keep the snake threat from being larger next year than this.

National Pride Proves Policy Stumbling Block

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst

No sooner does the United States smooth the ruffled feathers of one small friend that it finds itself involved with another.

Both involve questions of national pride, a not uncommon occurrance by nature of the global extent of U.S. activities and responsibilities.

President Johnson recently closed over a source of irritation of more than a half century's duration when he promised to renegotiate the Panama Canal treaty with Panama.

But now come the Philippines where two shooting incidents have aroused new demands for renegotiation of the Philippine-U.S. military bases agreement. A special target has been U.S. Ambassador William McCormick Blair Jr., who came to the Philippines after establishing a successful record as a diplomat in Denmark.

In the one incident a 14-year-old Filipino was killed by a shot in the back fired by an American sentry trying to scare away scavengers picking up empty shells and cartridge cases on a target range.

In the other, two Marine Corps guards fired on an outrigger boat which had intruded restricted waters close to an ammunition storage area. One of the two men aboard was killed.

Adding fuel to the resulting controversy was a statement by Ambassador Blair that two Filipinos had tossed a World War II Japanese mortar shell over a fence into the yard of an American school at Clark Air Base where 700 children were in attendance.

Filipinos charged that the ambassador's story was a hoax designed to obscure U.S. responsibilities in the two shootings, and an affront to the Filipino people.

Out of this, despite efforts by President Diosdado Macapagal to preserve calm, came demands for revision of the treaty and calls for Blair's recall.

The treaty in question is one signed in 1957 giving the United States jurisdiction over certain bases for 99 years. Negotiations to amend the treaty were started in 1956 but have been recessed since 1961.

Cannel Does Not Expect Any Miracles

By WARD CANNEL

NEW YORK (NEA)—It is traditional at this time of year to extend the greeting, "Happy New Year," and hope for everybody's sake that next year will be better than the last. Even if it requires a miracle or two.

Well, it is the farthest thing from our mind to break that tradition. So we wish you a very happy new year, and hope that next year will be better than the last.

But generally we do not hold out much hope for any miracles. It has been our experience that the things we want generally do not come looking for us. Rather, they are usually the result of proven principles applied to available materials and, from time to time, a little good luck.

We have given that definition considerable thought. And while it does state quite nicely our general method for trying to make the year happy, we have been appalled to find that it also defines television entertainment.

To our way of thinking, there is nothing like a television show to demonstrate the results of applying old principles to common materials.

This is not to say that we feel more television is the route to a happy new year. We point the similarity out because television is filled every night with authentic miracles. And as one definition cannot include both inevitable results and miracles, we may have discovered a truly magic formula for the coming year.

To begin with the weight of numbers, we have noticed that the patients of Drs. Kildare and Casey never seem to have any trouble getting hospital accommodations. In fact, none of the patients on any of the doctor programs ever has any trouble getting doctors to make house calls or to get nurses for private duty.

It has also occurred to us that the lawyers on television—Lawrence Preston, Perry Mason and the rest—seldom actually get paid by their clients, or even discuss the fee. Indeed, we have never seen Mr. Preston's son and partner come close to getting any money for all the work he does.

That, however, is only half a miracle. The other half is that nobody in the shows ever pays for anything. People eat, drink, travel, stay in sumptuous hotels, replenish their wardrobes, court each other and sometimes actually get married. But nobody in our presence has ever worried about what it will cost.

In that regard, nobody is ever forced to wait for a restaurant table, theater tickets, plane reservations, or the bathroom in the morning. Only once that we can recall did anybody wait for a taxi. But in that instance, it was a commercial for a car rental firm.

However, nobody—but nobody—ever waits for a parking place anywhere, anytime, day or night. And we never miss the chance of tuning in on the reruns of a series called Highway Patrols starring Broderick Crawford just to see him pull up to any curb that strikes his fancy.

Well, the list of television miracles goes on and on. Boys and girls in love never find the beach crowded or the park dangerous. The Untouchables (100 years old this month) and The Man From U.N.C.L.E. always break the gang, solve the crime and get away unscathed.

And best of all, Elizabeth Montgomery proves week after week that it takes a sorceress to cope with the forcefulness and independence of the American male . . .

We wish you a very happy new year. And if it requires a couple of miracles to make it happen, don't be put off by that. It can be arranged. But it may take a little effort.

Two Colleges Ask Increase In Budget

DENVER (UPI)— Representatives of two state colleges told the Legislature's Joint Budget Committee Monday they needed a total of $5.4 million in state funds to operate in the 1965-66 fiscal year.

The larger of the two requests came from Dr. Darrell Holmes, president of Colorado State College at Greeley, who said his school needed $3.9 million from the state, an increase of $1.1 million over last year's request.

Holmes said total expenditures for the year probably would amount to $9.2 million, but he said the college would receive about $5.4 million from all operations, including tuition and fees.

The college president said the extra money was needed to hire 44 new faculty members and for increases in salaries. He said 66 per cent of the request was earmarked for instruction and 14 per cent for administration.

Dr. Harlan Bryant, president of Western State College, asked for $1.5 million in state support, an increase of 23.7 per cent over current figures.

Bryant said enrollment probably would rise about 8.8 per cent over the 1,930 students now on campus. The budget request would provide for 16 new professors to handle the increased load.

The college also requested $495,700 for land, purchases, improving utilities on the campus and planning a $1 million arts building to be constructed in the 1966-67 fiscal year.

CAPITOL STUFF

By JACK METCALFE

WASHINGTON — There was an unusual Christmas week in Washington. It significance is difficult to assess.

On the mundane level of day-to-day affairs, no fewer than three storekeepers have shot or otherwise discouraged some of the many would-be bandits who abound in the capital. Usually, they just hand over the cash and try not to be pistol-whipped.

In another turnabout, a desperado held up a suburban bank at gunpoint, escaped with $20,800, then remorsefully mailed back more than $19,000 of the loot from Washington. He used airmail stamps, too.

And a suburban resident left $50,000 worth of his wife's jewels in a catchel beside the highway after changing a tire. The gems were recovered after the careless motorist sweated a while and paid a $1,500 finder's fee.

Things have been equally topsy-turvy on the political scene. For once, the Democrats, rejoicing in their election victory, are getting along with each other nicley, or at least they are making the effort to appear united.

The majority party is, of course, fussing a bit. Three Senators — John Pastore (R.I.), Mike Monroney (Okla.) and Russell Long (La.) — are still electioneering. Each wants the job of being their partys whip, replacing Hubert Humphrey, who is going on to greater glory. But none of these candidates is behaving in the disputatious, partisan fashion which has been characteristic of intra-party Democratic politics.

BITTER MEMORIES AFTER SUDDEN COUP

It is on the usually united Republican side of the Congressional aisle that the real feuding is going on. There the party's House leader is under serious attack. If the GOP chief, Rep. Charles Halleck (Ind.), is in fact ousted Jan. 4, it will be only the second time in the nation's history that such a fate has befallen a party leader.

Ironically, it was Halleck who set the precedent. It was only six years ago that he displaced former Speaker Joseph Martin Jr. (Mass.) as minority leader in a sudden coup which left bitter memories.

And it is equally ironical that the reasons Halleck and his supporters gave then for their revolt against Martin are virtually the same as those used by Republicans who are challenging Halleck today.

When the 86th Congress was being organized in January, 1959, there was a move to give the GOP a "new look." This was not to be accomplished by substituting Eisenhower moderates or liberals for the old-line conservative Republican leaders. Instead, new conservatives were to supplant old conservatives.

In the Senate, conservative Everett Dirksen (Ill.) took over as party leader, the spot he still holds. He replaced fellow conservative William B. Knowland (Calif.), who had quit the Senate in his vain campaign for the governorship of his state.

MARTIN THOUGHT THEY GANGED UP ON HIM

In the House, however, there was no vacancy. Martin, then 74, though ailing and obliged to walk with a cane, had been his party's leader for 20 years. He exemplified Republicanism in the House.

Halleck and his backers made history of a sort by deposing Martin in a secret - ballot vote of 74-70. Martin believed that former Vice President Nixon and some White House staffers had ganged up on him because he had been "a little more independent than I should be." But a more cogent reason for his ouster simply was that he had been prominent too long.

It should be recalled that the Republicans suffered a calamitous defeat in the 1958 off - year elections. The buck was being passed frantically. It ended at Martin, for he was well known and seemingly was the image of whatever it was that the voters had just rejected.

Halleck, then 58, was just as conservative as Martin, but he was a relative unknown. So he got the venerable former speaker's job, including fringe benefits, such as a limousine.

Now Halleck is under fire. He is being blamed by some — with a disregard for logic that defies explanation — for the November debacle that befell House Republicans. Halleck surely is no more responsible for the Democratic sweep than he would have been for victory, had the GOP triumphed.

HALLECK IS CHALLENGED BY FORD

As in 1959, the challenger is another conservative, 51-year-old Rep. Gerald R. Ford (Mich.). But Ford's campaign differs significantly from Halleck's successful bid to oust Martin.

For one thing, Ford is not relying on surprise, which the Halleck forces used to good advantage. Ford threw his hat into the ring last Saturday.

Halleck, now 64, said the 140 GOP congressmen ought to keep him in office for the sake of party unity, if for no other reason. (There will be 295 Democrats in the 89th Congress.) His record, he said, has been one of constructive leadership, and he predicted that he would win in the caucus vote 10 days from now.

The conservatives' internecine fight has encouraged the handful of liberal Republicans. They now think they have a chance to abate what they consider GOP Goldwaterism. Rep. John V. Lindsay (N.Y.), liberal standard-bearer, concedes that his faction has no hope of electing a party leader. But the liberals do believe that they may muster enough votes in the caucus showdown to keep either Halleck or Ford from getting a majority.

The next time around, the candidate who offered the moderates and liberals the lesser but important post such as GOP whip would get their votes. As Lindsay sees it this would mean "recognition that the Republican Party is not going to continue on the path it has followed since it nominated Sen. Barry Goldwater for the Presidency."

Hubert Moves Cautiously in Administration

By JACK BELL

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice President-elect Hubert H. Humphrey says he plans no recommendations for additional legislation when he reports to President Johnson on proposals to coordinate the administration's civil rights efforts.

Humphrey said he plans to give his report to Johnson this weekend and that it will contain only suggestions on how to make administration actions more effective in the civil rights field.

The vice president-elect, who resigned Tuesday as a senator from Minnesota, said in an interview that he has held a number of conferences on what Johnson calls the antipoverty program.

He indicated he is moving cautiously in this field until Johnson outlines what he wants in messages to Congress. The President has asked him to serve as a coordinator of both programs.

As a prospective full-time operator for Johnson in several fields, Humphrey's biggest problem at the moment is to find space in the Capitol building from which to carry on forthcoming duties as presiding officer of the senate.

Johnson has assigned him a four-room suite in the Executive Office Building next door to the White House. Humphrey has a small suite in the Senate Office Building but as yet he has been unable to wrangle any conference room space in the Capitol. Johnson had several conference rooms there when he was vice president.

Aithough Humphrey is expected to be keyed in on all major administration programs, he is likely to proceed cautiously as the President's spokesman in Congress. Senate and House leaders have a way of preferring to interpret White House requests for themselves.

Postal Officials Proud About Yule Delivery

By MARTHA COLE

WASHINGTON (AP) — Postal officials are proud — some are elated — at how smoothly everything went during the Christmas mail rush and the three-day hiatus on deliveries.

For the first time anybody in the department could remember, carriers were given a three-day Christmas holiday, with no mail delivered last Friday — Christmas Day — Saturday, or Sunday.

The mail stacked up in some post offices, a department spokesman said in an interview, but there were no reports of any big pileups. And it all went out Monday.

The three-day accumulation was no unprecedented problem.

"The total amount of mail delivered on Monday was the same as the total amount on Dec. 22 and 40 million pieces less than the biggest day in the Christmas rush," the spokesman said.

On Friday, Dec. 18, the peak for deliveries, an estimated total of 274 million pieces of mail was delivered across the country. The department estimates this year's Christmas mail, starting Dec. 1, at more than 7 billion pieces.

It is estimated that 60 million pieces that would have been delivered last Saturday were delivered Monday.

Only the carriers got the holiday vacation. Rural delivery wasn't affected, Christmas and perishable packages were delivered, and sorters continued to work at the post offices.

Postal officials decided they could grant the holiday when they foresaw no backup because of it.

"We knew early in the game people were mailing earlier — we probably had the most successful early mailing campaign in recent history," the spokesman said.

"People were using their ZIP codes, and that helped a lot."

Another boon was the weather, which held good in most of the country except for the Northwest, where floods raged.

Last-Minute Bargains Are Not Recommended

WASHINGTON (AP) — A shift from traditional last-minute bargaining has been proposed by a blue-ribbon panel after an 18-month study of the causes of labor-management strife.

The new style of bargaining as recommended by the 12-man panel would involve continuing discussions between labor and management instead of the traditional hectic bargaining that often takes place when a contract is about to expire.

The group, composed of prominent representatives of both sides, was named by late President John F. Kennedy.

Citing bargaining problems "far more complicated than ever before," the panel said in its report Tuesday: "For such problems, time and study are among the essential ingredients needed, and the normal period of contract bargaining, of itself, does not provide enough of either."

SNAKE EMERGENCY

WINTER PARK, Fla. (AP)—Playgrounds at the Brookshire Elementary School have been closed due to an infestation of poisionous snakes.

Ross Allen of the Silver Springs Reptile Institute telephoned the school that he would lead a group of professional snake-handlers in ridding the area of snakes after being informed of the situation.

The principal of the school, Thelma McNew, closed a playgrounds for recess periods after four rattlers and one moccasin were killed. The snakes shuttle back and forth across the school grounds from a palmetto patch to a waterhole.

Allen called for 20-foot sections of hose and gasoline to use in riding the grounds of snake beds. He said that the beds must be wiped out to keep the snake threat from being larger next year than this.

National Pride Proves Policy Stumbling Block

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst

No sooner does the United States smooth the ruffled feathers of one small friend that it finds itself involved with another.

Both involve questions of national pride, a not uncommon occurrance by nature of the global extent of U.S. activities and responsibilities.

President Johnson recently closed over a source of irritation of more than a half century's duration when he promised to renegotiate the Panama Canal treaty with Panama.

But now come the Philippines where two shooting incidents have aroused new demands for renegotiation of the Philippine-U.S. military bases agreement. A special target has been U.S. Ambassador William McCormick Blair Jr., who came to the Philippines after establishing a successful record as a diplomat in Denmark.

In the one incident a 14-year-old Filipino was killed by a shot in the back fired by an American sentry trying to scare away scavengers picking up empty shells and cartridge cases on a target range.

In the other, two Marine Corps guards fired on an outrigger boat which had intruded restricted waters close to an ammunition storage area. One of the two men aboard was killed.

Adding fuel to the resulting controversy was a statement by Ambassador Blair that two Filipinos had tossed a World War II Japanese mortar shell over a fence into the yard of an American school at Clark Air Base where 700 children were in attendance.

Filipinos charged that the ambassador's story was a hoax designed to obscure U.S. responsibilities in the two shootings, and an affront to the Filipino people.

Out of this, despite efforts by President Diosdado Macapagal to preserve calm, came demands for revision of the treaty and calls for Blair's recall.

The treaty in question is one signed in 1957 giving the United States jurisdiction over certain bases for 99 years. Negotiations to amend the treaty were started in 1956 but have been recessed since 1961.

At the center of the dispute is the question of jurisdiction over Americans who have committed a crime either on or off U.S. bases.

Cannel Does Not Expect Any Miracles

By WARD CANNEL

NEW YORK (NEA)—It is traditional at this time of year to extend the greeting, "Happy New Year," and hope for everybody's sake that next year will be better than the last. Even if it requires a miracle or two.

Well, it is the farthest thing from our mind to break that tradition. So we wish you a very happy new year, and hope that next year will be better than the last.

But generally we do not hold out much hope for any miracles. It has been our experience that the things we want generally do not come looking for us. Rather, they are usually the result of proven principles applied to available materials and, from time to time, a little good luck.

We have given that definition considerable thought. And while it does state quite nicely our general method for trying to make the year happy, we have been appalled to find that it also defines television entertainment.

To our way of thinking, there is nothing like a television show to demonstrate the results of applying old principles to common materials.

This is not to say that we feel more television is the route to a happy new year. We point the similarity out because television is filled every night with authentic miracles. And as one definition cannot include both inevitable results and miracles, we may have discovered a truly magic formula for the coming year.

To begin with the weight of numbers, we have noticed that the patients of Drs. Kildare and Casey never seem to have any trouble getting hospital accommodations. In fact, none of the patients on any of the doctor programs ever has any trouble getting doctors to make house calls or to get nurses for private duty.

It has also occurred to us that the lawyers on television—Lawrence Preston, Perry Mason and the rest—seldom actually get paid by their clients, or even discuss the fee. Indeed, we have never seen Mr. Preston's son and partner come close to getting any money for all the work he does.

That, however, is only half a miracle. The other half is that nobody in the shows ever pays for anything. People eat, drink, travel, stay in sumptuous hotels, replenish their wardrobes, court each other and sometimes actually get married. But nobody in our presence has ever worried about what it will cost.

In that regard, nobody is ever forced to wait for a restaurant table, theater tickets, plane reservations, or the bathroom in the morning. Only once that we can recall did anybody wait for a taxi. But in that instance, it was a commercial for a car rental firm.

However, nobody—but nobody—ever waits for a parking place anywhere, anytime, day or night. And we never miss the chance of tuning in on the reruns of a series called Highway Patrols starring Broderick Crawford just to see him pull up to any curb that strikes his fancy.

Well, the list of television miracles goes on and on. Boys and girls in love never find the beach crowded or the park dangerous. The Untouchables (100 years old this month) and The Man From U.N.C.L.E. always break the gang, solve the crime and get away unscathed.

And best of all, Elizabeth Montgomery proves week after week that it takes a sorceress to cope with the forcefulness and independence of the American male . . .

We wish you a very happy new year. And if it requires a couple of miracles to make it happen, don't be put off by that. It can be arranged. But it may take a little effort.

Postal Officials Proud About Yule Delivery

By MARTHA COLE

WASHINGTON (AP) — Postal officials are proud — some are elated — at how smoothly everything went during the Christmas mail rush and the three-day hiatus on deliveries.

For the first time anybody in the department could remember, carriers were given a three-day Christmas holiday, with no mail delivered last Friday — Christmas Day — Saturday, or Sunday.

The mail stacked up in some post offices, a department spokesman said in an interview, but there were no reports of any big pileups. And it all went out Monday.

The three-day accumulation was no unprecedented problem.

"The total amount of mail delivered on Monday was the same as the total amount on Dec. 22 and 40 million pieces less than the biggest day in the Christmas rush," the spokesman said.

Two Colleges Ask Increase In Budget

DENVER (UPI)— Representatives of two state colleges told the Legislature's Joint Budget Committee Monday they needed a total of $5.4 million in state funds to operate in the 1965-66 fiscal year.

The larger of the two requests came from Dr. Darrell Holmes, president of Colorado State College at Greeley, who said his school needed $3.9 million from the state, an increase of $1.1 million over last year's request.

Holmes said total expenditures for the year probably would amount to $9.2 million, but he said the college would receive about $5.4 million from all operations, including tuition and fees.

The college president said the extra money was needed to hire 44 new faculty members and for increases in salaries. He said 66 per cent of the request was earmarked for instruction and 14 per cent for administration.

Dr. Harlan Bryant, president of Western State College, asked for $1.5 million in state support, an increase of 23.7 per cent over current figures.

Bryant said enrollment probably would rise about 8.8 per cent over the 1,930 students now on campus. The budget request would provide for 16 new professors to handle the increased load.

The college also requested $495,700 for land, purchases, improving utilities on the campus and planning a $1 million arts building to be constructed in the 1966-67 fiscal year.

CANADIAN CELEBRATION

Canada celebrates July 1 as Dominion Day to honor the day, July 1, 1867, when the provinces of Canada were united into one government called the Dominion of Canada.

CAPITOL STUFF

By JACK METCALFE

WASHINGTON — There was an unusual Christmas week in Washington. It significance is difficult to assess.

On the mundane level of day-to-day affairs, no fewer than three storekeepers have shot or otherwise discouraged some of the many would-be bandits who abound in the capital. Usually, they just hand over the cash and try not to be pistol-whipped.

In another turnabout, a desperado held up a suburban bank at gunpoint, escaped with $20,800, then remorsefully mailed back more than $19,000 of the loot from Washington. He used airmail stamps, too.

And a suburban resident left $50,000 worth of his wife's jewels in a catchel beside the highway after changing a tire. The gems were recovered after the careless motorist sweated a while and paid a $1,500 finder's fee.

Things have been equally topsy-turvy on the political scene. For once, the Democrats, rejoicing in their election victory, are getting along with each other nicley, or at least they are making the effort to appear united.

The majority party is, of course, fussing a bit. Three Senators — John Pastore (R.I.), Mike Monroney (Okla.) and Russell Long (La.) — are still electioneering. Each wants the job of being their partys whip, replacing Hubert Humphrey, who is going on to greater glory. But none of these candidates is behaving in the disputatious, partisan fashion which has been characteristic of intra-party Democratic politics.

BITTER MEMORIES AFTER SUDDEN COUP

It is on the usually united Republican side of the Congressional aisle that the real feuding is going on. There the party's House leader is under serious attack. If the GOP chief, Rep. Charles Halleck (Ind.), is in fact ousted Jan. 4, it will be only the second time in the nation's history that such a fate has befallen a party leader.

Ironically, it was Halleck who set the precedent. It was only six years ago that he displaced former Speaker Joseph Martin Jr. (Mass.) as minority leader in a sudden coup which left bitter memories.

And it is equally ironical that the reasons Halleck and his supporters gave then for their revolt against Martin are virtually the same as those used by Republicans who are challenging Halleck today.

When the 86th Congress was being organized in January, 1959, there was a move to give the GOP a "new look." This was not to be accomplished by substituting Eisenhower moderates or liberals for the old-line conservative Republican leaders. Instead, new conservatives were to supplant old conservatives.

In the Senate, conservative Everett Dirksen (Ill.) took over as party leader, the spot he still holds. He replaced fellow conservative William B. Knowland (Calif.), who had quit the Senate in his vain campaign for the governorship of his state.

MARTIN THOUGHT THEY GANGED UP ON HIM

In the House, however, there was no vacancy. Martin, then 74, though ailing and obliged to walk with a cane, had been his party's leader for 20 years. He exemplified Republicanism in the House.

Halleck and his backers made history of a sort by deposing Martin in a secret - ballot vote of 74-70. Martin believed that former Vice President Nixon and some White House staffers had ganged up on him because he had been "a little more independent than I should be." But a more cogent reason for his ouster simply was that he had been prominent too long.

It should be recalled that the Republicians suffered a calamitous defeat in the 1958 off - year elections. The buck was being passed frantically. It ended at Martin, for he was well known and seemingly was the image of whatever it was that the voters had just rejected.

Halleck, then 58, was just as conservative as Martin, but he was a relative unknown. So he got the venerable former speaker's job, including fringe benefits, such as a limousine.

Now Halleck is under fire. He is being blamed by some — with a disregard for logic that defies explanation — for the November debacle that befell House Republicans. Halleck surely is no more responsible for the Democratic sweep than he would have been for victory, had the GOP triumphed.

HALLECK IS CHALLENGED BY FORD

As in 1959, the challenger is another conservative, 51-year-old Rep. Gerald R. Ford (Mich.). But Ford's campaign differs significantly from Halleck's successful bid to oust Martin.

For one thing, Ford is not relying on surprise, which the Halleck forces used to good advantage. Ford threw his hat into the ring last Saturday.

Halleck, now 64, said the 140 GOP congressmen ought to keep him in office for the sake of party unity, if for no other reason. (There will be 295 Democrats in the 89th Congress.) His record, he said, has been one of constructive leadership, and he predicted that he would win in the caucus vote 10 days from now.

The conservatives' internecine fight has encouraged the handful of liberal Republicans. They now think they have a chance to abate what they consider GOP Goldwaterism. Rep. John V. Lindsay (N.Y.), liberal standard-bearer, concedes that his faction has no hope of electing a party leader. But the liberals do believe that they may muster enough votes in the caucus showdown to keep either Halleck or Ford from getting a majority.

The next time around, the candidate who offered the moderates and liberals the lesser but important post such as GOP whip would get their votes. As Lindsay sees it this would mean "recognition that the Republican Party is not going to continue on the path it has followed since it nominated Sen. Barry Goldwater for the Presidency."

Hubert Moves Cautiously in Administration

By JACK BELL

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice President-elect Hubert H. Humphrey says he plans no recommendations for additional legislation when he reports to President Johnson on proposals to coordinate the administration's civil rights efforts.

Humphrey said he plans to give his report to Johnson this weekend and that it will contain only suggestions on how to make administration actions more effective in the civil rights field.

The vice president-elect, who resigned Tuesday as a senator from Minnesota, said in an interview that he has held a number of conferences on what Johnson calls the antipoverty program.

He indicated he is moving cautiously in this field until Johnson outlines what he wants in messages to Congress. The President has asked him to serve as a coordinator of both programs.

As a prospective full-time operator for Johnson in several fields, Humphrey's biggest problem at the moment is to find space in the Capitol building from which to carry on forthcoming duties as presiding officer of the senate.

Johnson has assigned him a four-room suite in the Executive Office Building next door to the White House. Humphrey has a small suite in the Senate Office Building but as yet he has been unable to wrangle any conference room space in the Capitol. Johnson had several conference rooms there when he was vice president.

Aithough Humphrey is expected to be keyed in on all major administration programs, he is likely to proceed cautiously as the President's spokesman in Congress. Senate and House leaders have a way of preferring to interpret White House requests for themselves.

LBJ's Faith in 'Hopeful Times' Merely a Start

By JOHN CHAMBERLAIN

President Lyndon Johnson has said, apropos of Christmas and the coming new year, that "these are the most hopeful times in all the years since Christ was born in Bethlehem." Well, it's nice to think so. But if the hope is to be sustained on the materialistic levels mentioned by the President — the eradication of war and poverty, the elimination of disease — it is going to take some doing.

From the vantage point of this column, which cannot forget the "peace" of the world depends on the maintenance of matching nuclear "overkills" by two great antipathetic powers, it would appear that the President's assertion rests on the faith defined as "the substance of things hoped for, the evidence of things not seen."

It is good that the President has such faith. But he might be reminded that the victory that came out of Bethlehem was no easy one; in fact, it took decades and even centuries of the most strenuous sort of missionary work to infuse the West with the spirit of Christianity, and there are those who say that even now the job is far from complete.

To give Lyndon Johnson the best of it, he has begun well. In his decision to help the Belgian paratroopers rescue the hostages in the Congo he tacitly committed the United States to the proposition that tropical Africa will not be permitted to become the Spanish Civil War of the mid - nineteen sixties. It will take a good deal of active Pauline dedication to finish what was so auspiciously begun, for the President will not only be attacked head-on by the Communist "anti-colonial left, he will also be subjected to fire from some of his own "liberal" supporters who fall for the Semantic gabble about "horrible mercenaries" and the necessity to get off the hook of "neo-colonialism."

Then there is the Panama business, in which the President has won a qualified victory by shifting the terms of the problem. He has focused the attention of the world on a new Panama Canal whose use to all nations would certainly be guaranteed by the United States, even though the symbols of sovereignty might rest with a group of western nations. The drawback to the Johnson proposition is that at least two countries are going to be disappointed when the site for the new canal is finally chosen: If the award goes to Panama, as is most. likely, Nicaragua and Colombia, the alternate aspirants, will be tempted to murmur against the arbitrariness of the Yanquis.

Even so, the creation of a new canal, with appropriate safeguards for its use, would be a major victory in the war against poverty that is being fought in Peru, Chile and other Latin American nations of the Pacific side of the Americas.

The main obstacle to the conquest of poverty and disease in the world is the belief that private enterprise and colonilaism are mutually dependent forces. Luckily, this belief is dying at its sources. In its parent countries, even including Soviet Russia, the economic philosophy favored by Karl Marx and Lenin has become a reactionary obstacle to materialist plenty. Throughout all the nations of the east European bloc there is an agonized effort to shape up new incentive plans for stimulating production without seeming to go back on the Marxist faith.

Lyndon Johnson, though he must patiently abide the commitment of his own "liberal" fringe to "public sector" thinking, will be forced to play the broker for the redemption of private enterprise philosophy in Africa and Asia as well as in Latin America. There is no other practical way in which to fight for the elimination of poverty and disease on a world scale.

By JOHN CHAMBERLAIN

President Lyndon Johnson has said, apropos of Christmas and the coming new year, that "these are the most hopeful times in all the years since Christ was born in Bethlehem." Well, it's nice to think so. But if the hope is to be sustained on the materialistic levels mentioned by the President — the eradication of war and poverty, the elimination of disease — it is going to take some doing.

From the vantage point of this column, which cannot forget the "peace" of the world depends on the maintenance of matching nuclear "overkills" by two great antipathetic powers, it would appear that the President's assertion rests on the faith defined as "the substance of things hoped for, the evidence of things not seen."

It is good that the President has such faith. But he might be reminded that the victory that came out of Bethlehem was no easy one; in fact, it took decades and even centuries of the most strenuous sort of missionary work to infuse the West with the spirit of Christianity, and there are those who say that even now the job is far from complete.

To give Lyndon Johnson the best of it, he has begun well. In his decision to help the Belgian paratroopers rescue the hostages in the Congo he tacitly committed the United States to the proposition that tropical Africa will not be permitted to become the Spanish Civil War of the mid - nineteen sixties. It will take a good deal of active Pauline dedication to finish what was so auspiciously begun, for the President will not only be attacked head-on by the Communist "anti-colonial left, he will also be subjected to fire from some of his own "liberal" supporters who fall for the Semantic gabble about "horrible mercenaries" and the necessity to get off the hook of "neo-colonialism."

Then there is the Panama business, in which the President has won a qualified victory by shifting the terms of the problem. He has focused the attention of the world on a new Panama Canal whose use to all nations would certainly be guaranteed by the United States, even though the symbols of sovereignty might rest with a group of western nations. The drawback to the Johnson proposition is that at least two countries are going to be disappointed when the site for the new canal is finally chosen: If the award goes to Panama, as is most likely, Nicaragua and Colombia, the alternate aspirants, will be tempted to murmur against the arbitrariness of the Yanquis.

Even so, the creation of a new canal, with appropriate safeguards for its use, would be a major victory in the war against poverty that is being fought in Peru, Chile and other Latin American nations of the Pacific side of the Americas.

The main obstacle to the conquest of poverty and disease in the world is the belief that private enterprise and colonilaism are mutually dependent forces. Luckily, this belief is dying at its sources. In its parent countries, even including Soviet Russia, the economic philosophy favored by Karl Marx and Lenin has become a reactionary obstacle to materialist plenty. Throughout all the nations of the east European bloc there is an agonized effort to shape up new incentive plans for stimulating production without seeming to go back on the Marxist faith.

Lyndon Johnson, though he must patiently abide the commitment of his own "liberal" fringe to "public sector" thinking, will be forced to play the broker for the redemption of private enterprise philosophy in Africa and Asia as well as in Latin America. There is no other practical way in which to fight for the elimination of poverty and disease on a world scale.

FIND WURST BEST

NEW BRUNFELS, Tex. (AP) — The "Wurst Week" celebration in this small town of deep - rooted German heritage turned out to be a good week for some 30,000 persons who devoured 4,500 pounds of sausage.

Robert A. Taft of Ohio for the chairmanship of the Senate Republican Policy Committee. Taft hung on the job by a vote of 28 to 14.

On the Lodge slate of "young turk" candidates was William F. Knowland, then a senator from California and a staunch Goldwater supporter in 1964. Knowland was beaten as a candiate for Republicanfloorleader.

Republican National Chairman Dean Burch now is under fire from those Republicans who want him removed as a symbol of Goldwater Republicanism. His immediate future will be determined by the GOP National Committee meeting at Chicago later this month.

Sixteen years ago it was Hugh Scott, now senator from Pennsylvania, whose job was in jeopardy. Then a member of the House, he had been Dewey's choice for the national chairmanship.

At a Republican national committee meeting at Omaha Jan. 27, 1949, Scott won a shaky vote of confidence by a margin of 54 to 50. He resigned seven months later in the interest of party harmony.

Corporal Wants To Re-Join Army

VAN NUYS, Calif. (UPI)—A former Army corporal who was honorably discharged after spending eight months in a Turkish prison said he was optimistic about being allowed to reenlist.

Dale McCuistion, who is living with his family here at the home of his mother, Mrs. Margaret Powell, filed a petition for reenlistment before the Army Discharge Review Board. He said Thursday he expects a decision sometime after Jan. 15.

McCuistion was arrested in Turkey on Aug. 4, 1959. He was accused of smuggling a diamond, and dealing in black market currency. The latter charge was subsequently dismissed.

A native of San Diego, Calif., McCuistion claimed he was beaten by police and forced to sign three confessions which were in Turkish. He said he was not permitted to have an interpreter.

He was freed from prison after his fine of $17,289 was paid for by public donations.

McCuistion returned to the United States Dec. 4 and was given an honorable discharge at that time.

PLASTIC PENOLOGY

NEW YORK (UPI) — Plastic suregons at Montefiore Hospital in New York will remove tattoos and scars from a group of prisoners in the hope that this will help prevent them from returning to a life of crime.

The work is part of a research project supported by the Vocational Rehabilitation Administration, a unit of the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare. The researchers believe that in some cases, when an individual considers his physical appearance unacceptable to others, his behavior may as a result also be abnormal, sometimes leading to criminal acts.

Spanish Coin Treasure Found, Paper Reports

MIAMI (UPI) — The Miami News says that four Miami men have stumbled upon what may turn out to be the largest treasure find in history — $9 million in Spanish coins.

The News reported Thursday night that the group found the gold and silver coins in a sunken galleon near Grand Bahama Island, 70 miles off the coast of Florida.

The story said the estimate of value was made by the Bahamian government and, if correct, would make it one of the largest discoveries in history.

The treasure hunters were identified as Gary Simmons, Dick Tindall, Jack Slack and Bissel Schaefer. The News said the men operate out of Freeport, Grand Bahama, where they operate a water sports equipment concession at a hotel.

Kosygin Pledges Policy of Peace

MOSCOW (UPI) — Premier Alexei Koskgin, in a new year's message, Friday pledged the Soviet Union to an "active policy of peace and relaxation of international tension."

The Kremlin leader urged a three point program:

—Joint actions between Russia and other countries for general and complete disarmament.

—Outlawing of nuclear weapons.

Western observers said the last point appeared aimed at the recent U. S.-Belgian operations in the Congo to rescue white hostages held by Congolese rebels.

Kosygin made his peace plea in an interview with the Japanese newspaper Asahi that was distributed by the official Tass News Agency.

He also called for improvement of Soviet-Japanese relations.

In a separate message to British Prime Minister Harold Wilson, Kosygin expressed the hope for better London-Moscow ties "in the interests of European and world peace."

Big Ed Urges U.S. Withdraw From Viet Nam

DENVER (UPI) — Former Gov. and U. S. Sen. Ed C. Johnson, patriarch of Colorado politics, celebrated his 81st birthday Friday urging that the United States "get the hell out of Viet Nam."

"They don't want us over there and we can't help folks fight communism who turn around and fight us," Johnson said.

The former Democratic chairman of the Senate Military Affairs Committee said the Southeast Asia situation was a "miserable ... problem" which President Johnson had inherited.

Still vigorous and bluntly-spoken, Johnson wrote out replies to well-wishers at his Denver apartment which was filled with bouquets set for his birthday.

He said his principal mission in 1956 will be to continue to battle for protection of the Colorado River Compact, which was first approved uhen he first entered public office in 1923. Johnson now serves as Colorado's representative on the Upper Colorado River Commission.

Moscow Paper Warns Against Ignoring Split

LONDON (UPI) —The Moscow-directed organ of the world Communist movement said Friday it would be "folly" to minimize the sharp and serious differences between Russia and Red China.

The World Marxist Review said an early international Communist conference is essential, even if Communist China refuses to participate.

The review, published in Prague, voiced sharp criticism of Red China's policies and ideologies.

In the view of Communist affairs experts, the publication of the criticism indicates that the peace efforts have failed and that Moscow is pushing ahead with its plans for a preparatory conference scheduled for March 1. That meeting would be followed without delay by a world gathering of the Communist parties.

Denying that the projected meeting was designed to sanction a split with Red China, the publication said that the overwhelming majority of the Communist parties wants an international conference "to draw together the world Communist movement around those principles and aims which united Marxist - Leninist in all lands."

Johnson Orders Investigation Of Steel Prices

known that he hoped the steel companies' would consider the public interest before raising prices, no matter how "selective" the increases might be.

In November, Johnson noted that steel prices had remained stable since October, 1963 and added his "hope that they can remain that way."

The President's request to Ackley for the survey was made by telephone from the LBJ Ranch within the last day Reedy said.

Reedy said he expected Ackley would come back "fairly soon" with his recommendations.

The latest round of price hikes began Dec. 23 when Inland Steel, which ironically had resisted an industry-wide price increase in 1962, hiked prices $6 per ton on galvanized sheets.

U. S. Steel Corp., the industry leader, and fourth ranked Republic Steel followed Inland's lead the next day. Within six days all of the "Big 11" steel firms had joined the parade.

The pattern of "selective" price increases in the industry began last September when producers announced a higher date for steel bars. In October, the price of pipe went up followed by the galvanized sheet price rise.

These products make up about 12 per cent of the total steel production.

Johnson spent new year's day at his LBJ Ranch polishing up the State of the Union Message he will deliver Monday night and prepared to head back to Washington Saturday morning.

Reedy said Johnson would spend this weekend at the White House poring over the message he will deliver to Congress and a nationwide television audience Monday at 9 p.m. EST.

Some work also remained to be done on the federal budget for the next fiscal year which Johnson is required to send to Congress by Jan. 19.

He may however request a postponement of the deadline because of its conflict with inauguration activities, Jan. 20.

Contracts Let For Giant Plane For Military

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Pentagon has awarded $41 million worth of initial contracts for development of a mammoth jet transport capable of carrying up to 700 troops to any place in the world.

The Defense Department announced Thursday that $21 million of the contracts would go for studies. The other $20 million will finance prototypes of the plane's jet engines.

Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara announced previously that $157 million would be requested in the new budget for the plane, which will weigh nearly 700,000 pounds.

For the detailed studies, known in Pentagon terminology as the "project definition phase," Boeing, Douglas and Lockheed aircraft companies each received $6 million contracts.

United Aircraft company's Pratt & Whitney division and General Electric Co. received contracts of $1.4 million and $1.9 million respectively for "project definition" studies of the engines. They also received contracts of $9.6 million and $10.9 million respectively for bulding prototypes.

The actual builders of the plane will be selected on a competitive basis from among the three airframe and two engine companies.

The general specifications call for a plane with a cargo space 20-feet in diameter, capable of flying more than 6,000 miles with payloads of between 100,000 and 250,000 pounds. It would be capable of flying more than 500 miles an hour.

Mrs. Walrod Found Dead

The wife of an Air Force colonel died of carbon monoxide poisoning early New Year's Day, police reported.

The victim was Mrs. Virginia L. Walrod, 50, of 1106 S. Skyway Blvd. Authorites were notified about 8:30 a.m. Friday by her husband, Lt. Col. Harold Walrod.

A police report said the victim went to her son's bedroom at approximately 5:30 a.m. and asked for keys to the car. The son, Steven Walrod, 16, told his mother he didn't have the keys and she left his room.

When the victim's husband and son awakened about 8:30 a.m. they found her slumped over the steering wheel of the car, which was parked in the garage. The engine was still running and all the doors were closed.

The body was removed to Swan Funeral Home by A & E Ambulance.

Draft Needs Set For February, March

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Defense Department wants the Selective Service system to draft 3,000 men in February and 3,900 in March for induction into the Army.

The two monthly quotas, announced Thursday, are well below draft calls of recent months, which have ranged from 8,000 in November to 5,400 in January.

De Gaulle Says France Will Be Independent

PARIS (AP) — President Charles de Gaulle Thursday night fiercely proclaimed an independent role for France in world affairs with a sideswipe against American "hegemony" of the Atlantic community.

In his annual New Year's Eve message to the nation, carried on a nationwide radio-television network, the president expressed his willingness to work with all of France's allies, but took pains to stress that France rejects supranational or integrated organizations.

Elsewhere in his speech De Gaulle told his countrymen, in effect, that they have never had it so good and under his administration they could expect to have it even better in the future.

The message was almost the opening gun in De Gaulle's campaign for re-election to the presidency for another seven-year term.

The election is set for December of 1965, and most political experts believe De Gaulle will be a candidate.

Charles E. Schlick Died at Boulder

Charles E. Schlick of Broomfield, Colo., brother of Mrs. C. S. Dudley, 1615 W. Cucharras St., died at 83 Thursday at a Boulder hospital of a heart attack. He was long in the tile business in Omaha and Denver, and had supervised tile setting in various Colorado Springs buildings.

Funeral services were held today at the Howe Mortuary, Boulder. Burial was in Boulder.

Mr. Schlick was born Oct. 7, 1881, in Nebraska. He and his wife, Mrs. Mabel Schlick, who survives him, lacked only one month of being married 60 years. He was a member of the Presbyterian Church and attended services in Arvada. Besides his wife, he is survived by two daughters, Mrs. George Plass of Broomfield, and Mrs. William Tregay of Boulder; a son, Emory Schlick, Broomfield; a sister, Mrs. Dudley, Colorado Springs; and a brother, Henry Schlick, Alexander, La.; grandchildren; great grandchildren; and other relatives.

Mr. Schlick was a member of a historic Omaha family. His father was a veteran of the Civil War, and after the war, re-enlisted and was sent with a detachment of soldiers to guard the builders of the Union Pacific Railway from Indians. She and her parents were present at the driving of the golden spike on completion of the railroad.

DEAL EARLY WITH CHUBBIES

In a study of overweight children, aged 4 to 16, Drs. George H. Lowrey and Alex F. Robertson, University of Michigan Medical Center, found that "45 per cent of these children were overweight before six years of age." More than half of the obese adolescents will be overweight adults, they added. The pre-school age is suited perfectly for dealing with excess weight, because at this period parents have control over eating habits, the doctors said.

Septic Tank Regulations Are Proposed

DENVER (UPI)—A Colorado health official said today a bill will be introduced in the 1965 Legislature to authorize local health officials to pass septic tank regulations.

Frank J. Rozich, senior engineer in the Water Pollution Control Section of the State Health Department, said some urban areas of the state are experiencing problems with septic tanks. The problem is particularly serious in communities where developers have built homes just outside the city limits and installed septic tanks to handle the sewage.

Rozich said regulation would prevent installations in unsuitable soil conditions, contamination of water wells and ground water by malfunctioning tanks and unsanity conditions caused by overflow from such systems into road beds and streams.

Ebony Cites Progress by Civil Rights Act

CHICAGO (UPI) — Ebony magazine said Friday 1964's biggest news event for Negroes was the signing of the Civil Rights Act into law and said the past year was one "of unprecedented Negro progress."

The other selection were:

2. A new high in Negro voting in the South.

3. The start of integration in Mississippi hotels and other places of public accommodation.

4. The riots in Northern cities.

5. The election of more Negroes to public office than at any time since Reconstruction.

6. The "organization of the Freedom Democratic party at the Democratic convention and in a mock Mississippi election."

7. The appointment of Negroes to "top" government posts, and the selection of Carl Rowan as director of the U.S. Information Agency, enabling him to become the first Negro to sit on the National Security Council.

8. Federal action to increase Negro job opportunities.

9. "Top executive jobs in business for many Negroes."

Commenting on the status of integration in the "Deep South," Ebony said: "Like Humpty-Dumpty after the fall, the South, after the events of 1964 would never be put back together exactly the same."

the patrol advised persons not to travel between Manitou Springs and Woodland Park on U.S. 24 unless absolutely necessary.

The patrol was busy investigating a rash of accidents with injuries, from New Year's Eve continuing through Friday night.

A 34-year old woman received head cuts at 8:55 p.m., Thursday in a two-car accident on Colo. 27, three miles south of Colorado Springs.

She was Dorothy Huntsman of 1206 Forest St. Her car hit the car of La Royce Deloath, 19, of Lamar, which was attempting a left turn on to Stratmoor Road, the patrol reported. A passenger in Deloath's car was not injured.

Three persons were injured at 9:50 p.m. Thursday in a two-car crash 11 miles north of Colorado Springs on El Paso County 4.

The driver of the first car, Glenn Radcliff, 40, of Pueblo, was not injured. A passenger, Georgia Stokes, 56, of Pueblo, received head injuries and was taken to Penrose Hospital. Another passenger, Ronald Stokes, 21, of Pueblo, had a cut finger. The driver of the second vehicle, Orval Bernard, 45, of 638½ E. Boulder St., had head and chest injuries. He was taken to Penrose Hospital. The patrol said Radcliff's car was hit by the Bernard vehicle, knocking it 85 feet over an embankment.

A passenger was injured in a one-car crash at 9:55 p.m. Thursday, at Colo. 27 and the Frontage Road. He was Wayne J. Trafficano, of Ft. Carson Hospital. He received forehead lacerations and was taken to the Army hospital. The driver, Donald D. McMahan, 25, of the same address, was uninjured. His car was southbound on the Frontage Road when it skidded 87 feet off the road onto a median strip and traveled 40 feet down the median, striking a guard post and sign. It traveled 42 feet after hitting the island.

The driver of a car was injured at 1:30 a.m. Friday after it plunged off the Gold Camp Road, about 1.8 miles west of 21st Street. He was Raymond R. Storm, 19, of 815 Swope Ave., who received face cuts and bruises. His car was westbound on the road when he lost control on a right curve, the patrol said. The car went off the road traveling 90 feet before hitting a large rock, then it plunged another 203 feet down the edge of the road, hitting a tree.

A passenger received a leg cut at 12:30 a.m. Friday in a two-car accident on U.S. [illegible] three miles up Ute Pass. S[illegible] was Fredia M. Clabaugh, 30, o[illegible] Woodland Park. Home Care Products To Be Discussed

Homemakers in a quandary? With so many new products on the market these days, it's no wonder. It is difficult to know just which of the products will suit the purpose best. This is especially true in furniture and floor care products.

Mary Kohli, El Paso County extension home agent, will discuss home care products and their use Monday, Jan. 4. The meeting will be held from 1 to 3 p.m. in the third floor auditorium of the County Office Building, 27 E. Vermijo. Miss Kohli represents the County Extension Office and Colorado State University.

On the Lodge slate of "young turk" candidates was William F. Knowland, then a senator from California and a staunch Goldwater supporter in 1964. Knowland was beaten as a candiate for Republicanfloorleader.

Republican National Chairman Dean Burch now is under fire from those Republicans who want him removed as a symbol of Goldwater Republicanism. His immediate future will be determined by the GOP National Committee meeting at Chicago later this month.

Sixteen years ago it was Hugh Scott, now senator from Pennsylvania, whose job was in jeopardy. Then a member of the House, he had been Dewey's choice for the national chairmanship.

At a Republican national committee meeting at Omaha Jan. 27, 1949, Scott won a shaky vote of confidence by a margin of 54 to 50. He resigned seven months later in the interest of party harmony.

Corporal Wants To Re-Join Army

VAN NUYS, Calif. (UPI)—A former Army corporal who was honorably discharged after spending eight months in a Turkish prison said he was optimistic about being allowed to reenlist.

Dale McCuistion, who is living with his family here at the home of his mother, Mrs. Margaret Powell, filed a petition for reenlistment before the Army Discharge Review Board. He said Thursday he expects a decision sometime after Jan. 15.

McCuistion was arrested in Turkey on Aug. 4, 1959. He was accused of smuggling a diamond, and dealing in black market currency. The latter charge was subsequently dismissed.

A native of San Diego, Calif., McCuistion claimed he was beaten by police and forced to sign three confessions which were in Turkish. He said he was not permitted to have an interpreter.

He was freed from prison after his fine of $17,289 was paid for by public donations.

McCuistion returned to the United States Dec. 4 and was given an honorable discharge at that time.

PLASTIC PENOLOGY

NEW YORK (UPI) — Plastic suregons at Montefiore Hospital in New York will remove tattoos and scars from a group of prisoners in the hope that this will help prevent them from returning to a life of crime.

The work is part of a research project supported by the Vocational Rehabilitation Administration, a unit of the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare. The researchers believe that in some cases, when an individual considers his physical appearance unacceptable to others, his behavior may as a result also be abnormal, sometimes leading to criminal acts.

Spanish Coin Treasure Found, Paper Reports

MIAMI (UPI) — The Miami News says that four Miami men have stumbled upon what may turn out to be the largest treasure find in history — $9 million in Spanish coins.

The News reported Thursday night that the group found the gold and silver coins in a sunken galleon near Grand Bahama Island, 70 miles off the coast of Florida.

The story said the estimate of value was made by the Bahamian government and, if correct, would make it one of the largest discoveries in history.

The treasure hunters were identified as Gary Simmons, Dick Tindall, Jack Slack and Bissel Schaefer. The News said the men operate out of Freeport, Grand Bahama, where they operate a water sports equipment concession at a hotel.

Kosygin Pledges Policy of Peace

MOSCOW (UPI) — Premier Alexei Koskgin, in a new year's message, Friday pledged the Soviet Union to an "active policy of peace and relaxation of international tension."

The Kremlin leader urged a three point program:

—Joint actions between Russia and other countries for general and complete disarmament.

—Outlawing of nuclear weapons.

Western observers said the last point appeared aimed at the recent U. S.-Belgian operations in the Congo to rescue white hostages held by Congolese rebels.

Kosygin made his peace plea in an interview with the Japanese newspaper Asahi that was distributed by the official Tass News Agency.

He also called for improvement of Soviet-Japanese relations.

In a separate message to British Prime Minister Harold Wilson, Kosygin expressed the hope for better London-Moscow ties "in the interests of European and world peace."

Big Ed Urges U.S. Withdraw From Viet Nam

DENVER (UPI) — Former Gov. and U. S. Sen. Ed C. Johnson, patriarch of Colorado politics, celebrated his 81st birthday Friday urging that the United States "get the hell out of Viet Nam."

"They don't want us over there and we can't help folks fight communism who turn around and fight us," Johnson said.

The former Democratic chairman of the Senate Military Affairs Committee said the Southeast Asia situation was a "miserable ... problem" which President Johnson had inherited.

Still vigorous and bluntly-spoken, Johnson wrote out replies to well-wishers at his Denver apartment which was filled with bouquets set for his birthday.

He said his principal mission in 1956 will be to continue to battle for protection of the Colorado River Compact, which was first approved uhen he first entered public office in 1923. Johnson now serves as Colorado's representative on the Upper Colorado River Commission.

Moscow Paper Warns Against Ignoring Split

LONDON (UPI) —The Moscow-directed organ of the world Communist movement said Friday it would be "folly" to minimize the sharp and serious differences between Russia and Red China.

The World Marxist Review said an early international Communist conference is essential, even if Communist China refuses to participate.

The review, published in Prague, voiced sharp criticism of Red China's policies and ideologies.

In the view of Communist affairs experts, the publication of the criticism indicates that the peace efforts have failed and that Moscow is pushing ahead with its plans for a preparatory conference scheduled for March 1. That meeting would be followed without delay by a world gathering of the Communist parties.

Denying that the projected meeting was designed to sanction a split with Red China, the publication said that the overwhelming majority of the Communist parties wants an international conference "to draw together the world Communist movement around those principles and aims which united Marxist - Leninist in all lands."

Johnson Orders Investigation Of Steel Prices

known that he hoped the steel companies would consider the public interest before raising prices, no matter how "selective" the increases might be.

In November, Johnson noted that steel prices had remained stable since October, 1963 and added his "hope that they can remain that way."

The President's request to Ackley for the survey was made by telephone from the LBJ Ranch within the last day Reedy said.

Reedy said he expected Ackley would come back "fairly soon" with his recommendations.

The latest round of price hikes began Dec. 23 when Inland Steel, which ironically had resisted an industry-wide price increase in 1962, hiked prices $6 per ton on galvanized sheets.

U. S. Steel Corp., the industry leader, and fourth ranked Republic Steel followed Inland's lead the next day. Within six days all of the "Big 11" steel firms had joined the parade.

The pattern of "selective" price increases in the industry began last September when producers announced a higher date for steel bars. In October, the price of pipe went up followed by the galvanized sheet price rise.

These products make up about 12 per cent of the total steel production.

Johnson spent new year's day at his LBJ Ranch polishing up the State of the Union Message he will deliver Monday night and prepared to head back to Washington Saturday morning.

Reedy said Johnson would spend this weekend at the White House poring over the message he will deliver to Congress and a nationwide television audience Monday at 9 p.m. EST.

Some work also remained to be done on the federal budget for the next fiscal year which Johnson is required to send to Congress by Jan. 19.

He may however request a postponement of the deadline because of its conflict with inauguration activities, Jan. 20.

Contracts Let For Giant Plane For Military

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Pentagon has awarded $41 million worth of initial contracts for development of a mammoth jet transport capable of carrying up to 700 troops to any place in the world.

The Defense Department announced Thursday that $21 million of the contracts would go for studies. The other $20 million will finance prototypes of the plane's jet engines.

Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara announced previously that $157 million would be requested in the new budget for the plane, which will weigh nearly 700,000 pounds.

For the detailed studies, known in Pentagon terminology as the "project definition phase," Boeing, Douglas and Lockheed aircraft companies each received $6 million contracts.

United Aircraft company's Pratt & Whitney division and General Electric Co. received contracts of $1.4 million and $1.9 million respectively for "project definition" studies of the engines. They also received contracts of $9.6 million and $10.9 million respectively for bulding prototypes.

The actual builders of the plane will be selected on a competitive basis from among the three airframe and two engine companies.

The general specifications call for a plane with a cargo space 20-feet in diameter, capable of flying more than 6,000 miles with payloads of between 100,000 and 250,000 pounds. It would be capable of flying more than 500 miles an hour.

The victim was Mrs. Virginia L. Walrod, 50, of 1106 S. Skyway Blvd. Authorites were notified about 8:30 a.m. Friday by her husband, Lt. Col. Harold Walrod.

A police report said the victim went to her son's bedroom at approximately 5:30 a.m. and asked for keys to the car. The son, Steven Walrod, 16, told his mother he didn't have the keys and she left his room.

When the victim's husband and son awakened about 8:30 a.m. they found her slumped over the steering wheel of the car, which was parked in the garage. The engine was still running and all the doors were closed.

The body was removed to Swan Funeral Home by A & E Ambulance.

De Gaulle Says France Will Be Independent

PARIS (AP) — President Charles de Gaulle Thursday night fiercely proclaimed an independent role for France in world affairs with a sideswipe against American "hegemony" of the Atlantic community.

In his annual New Year's Eve message to the nation, carried on a nationwide radio-television network, the president expressed his willingness to work with all of France's allies, but took pains to stress that France rejects supranational or integrated organizations.

Elsewhere in his speech De Gaulle told his countrymen, in effect, that they have never had it so good and under his administration they could expect to have it even better in the future.

The message was almost the opening gun in De Gaulle's campaign for re-election to the presidency for another seven-year term.

The election is set for December of 1965, and most political experts believe De Gaulle will be a candidate.

Robertson, University of Michigan Medical Center, found that "45 per cent of these children were overweight before six years of age." More than half of the obese adolescents will be overweight adults, they added. The pre-school age is suited perfectly for dealing with excess weight, because at this period parents have control over eating habits, the doctors said.

Septic Tank Regulations Are Proposed

DENVER (UPI)—A Colorado health official said today a bill will be introduced in the 1965 Legislature to authorize local health officials to pass septic tank regulations.

Frank J. Rozich, senior engineer in the Water Pollution Control Section of the State Health Department, said some urban areas of the state are experiencing problems with septic tanks. The problem is particularly serious in communities where developers have built homes just outside the city limits and installed septic tanks to handle the sewage.

Rozich said regulation would prevent installations in unsuitable soil conditions, contamination of water wells and ground water by malfunctioning tanks and unsanity conditions caused by overflow from such systems into road beds and streams.

Ebony Cites Progress by Civil Rights Act

CHICAGO (UPI) — Ebony magazine said Friday 1964's biggest news event for Negroes was the signing of the Civil Rights Act into law and said the past year was one "of unprecedented Negro progress."

In announcing its selections of the 10 most important news events concerning Negroes, the magazine listed the winning of more than half of the 36 gold medals awarded to American athletes during the Olympics as the 10th most important story.

The other selection were:

2. A new high in Negro voting in the South.

3. The start of integration in Mississippi hotels and other places of public accommodation.

4. The riots in Northern cities.

5. The election of more Negroes to public office than at any time since Reconstruction.

6. The "organization of the Freedom Democratic party at the Democratic convention and in a mock Mississippi election."

7. The appointment of Negroes to "top" government posts, and the selection of Carl Rowan as director of the U.S. Information Agency, enabling him to become the first Negro to sit on the National Security Council.

8. Federal action to increase Negro job opportunities.

9. "Top executive jobs in business for many Negroes."

Commenting on the status of integration in the "Deep South," Ebony said: "Like Humpty-Dumpty after the fall, the South, after the events of 1964 would never be put back together exactly the same."

The meeting will be held from 1 to 3 p.m. in the third floor auditorium of the County Office Building, 27 E. Vermijo. Miss Kohli represents the County Extension Office and Colorado State University.

Kennedy Had His Foibles, Reporter Says

By ALLAN KELLER

Julius Spessot thinks of him as a tired President taking time out from the cold war to scramble eggs in the top of a double boiler late at night in the White House kitchen, or surreptitiously telephoning from the executive office to ask the chef to fix fettuccine for the family dinner.

This was a facet of the late President the public never saw, a warm and human side only a few could know. One tends to forget that world figures have their little foibles, their idiosyncrasies and their secret needs, just as the least of us do.

For the first time since he left the White House to serve as head chef at a New York restaurant (the Brasserie), Julius Spessot told me his story of a chef's eye view of the Kennedy's — a story of great dignity, but one of love, understanding and devotion.

Spesseot was the President's "family" chef. When JFK donned formal clothes of dine at state affairs, Rene Verdon did most of the cooking. Verdon was hired by Mrs. Kennedy, a devotee of French haute cuisine. But when it was dinner for the family alone, or with a few intimate guests, Spessot, who was hired by the President himself, prepared the simpler meals.

Often in the late afternoon, Spessot's phone would ring and the President would say, "I'm working late today. Please fix something, put it on the warming table and go home. There's no need for you to stay." The chef would prepare a ragout or beef Bourguignon and have an evening at home with his wife and small son.

The President, like many another man of his age, had to fight a continuing battle of the bulge. When he went on a diet, as he did frequently, Spessot served lean steaks, lamb chops and Spartan desserts, but the chief executive was never too happy.

One night Spessot fixed a chocolate souffle for dessert, knowing of his boss' love for chocolate. The President took a second helping and then stole out of the family dining room into the kitchen.

"Don't have any more of that for a few days," he whispered to the chef. "I'm going to be on television on Monday."

One day at Newport, R.I., the President asked Julius to fixe spaghetti, saying there would be eight guests. Spessot bought some fresh lobsters and made a sauce with them. JFK detoured into the kitchen to see how things were progressing and looked into the steaming pots.

"You didn't make meat balls?" he asked in surprise.

"No, Mr. President," said the cook, "but taste this sauce."

JFK took a healthy sample, savored the taste and went out without saying a word. But he turned at the door and winked.

"Boula-boula soup was one of his favorites," recalled the White House sous - chef. "One day I prepared it and the butler took it in, serving the President first as is always done. It was rich soup, with turtle and madeira wine among the ingredients. I put no whipped cream on his bowl, but did on all the others. When he saw the other dishes he called the butler and sent him out to get cream for his dish. The butler told me the President whispered to him, "I just couldn't stand it."

"Fettuccine would be in first place, that I know," said the chef. "Then would come, perhaps not in exact order, lobster, mousse of sole or perch, chocolate mousse, quail and all types of cream soup.

"One day I fixed zuppa inglese (an Italian cake) for a change and Mrs. Kennedy sort of curled her nose at the idea. I watched through the little diamond - shaped window and saw that each person took only a very small serving. The butler brought it out, barely touched, and I was brokenhearted. He took it in again after a while, as we always offer a dish twice, and the second time it disappeared."

The relationship between the President of the United States an immigrant from Italy, was outstanding because of Kennedy's kindness and good humor.

It was Spessot's task to cook also for Caroline and John. Mostly they ate things like hamburger, lamb chops, soup, vegetables, creme caramel and gelatin dessert. Because they were served without fancy trimmings, it was an easy part of the job.

Kindness, and an innate unwillingness to hurt anyone, marked the President's everyday dealings with his staff, said Spessot. And Jackie was equally tender - hearted. One summer when the President went to Rhode Island Jackie suggested to Spessot that he have his wife and 2-year-old son George spend a month with him.

"It must have looked funny to a lot of the guests to see Caroline playing with George, she speaking English and the boy using bad Italian and a few words of English," laughed Spessot. "But they got along wonderfully.

"I remember one afternoon seeing the President and Mrs. Kennedy go out on the lawn where the children were playing. He tried to talk to my son with Mrs. Kennedy acting as interpreter.

"There he was, with all those terrible burdens on his mind, chatting with a 2-year-old who couldn't talk much of anything but least of all English."

When JFK and Jackie turned to leave he called the chef over. Spessot was apologetic about his son's English.

"He'll learn it soon enough," said the President, "but will he learn to make fettucine like yours?"

WORRY CLINIC

By George W. Crane, M.D.,Ph.D.

David offers some shrewd ideas about the dangers of "status symbols." You can enjoy your family and live longer if you will declare a revolution against many silly status symbols that now are making you neurotic slaves! Discuss this case with your entire family and start living like a free man again!

CASE U-472: Dr. David Crane is my youngest son, and a psychiatrist with "horse sense."

"Dad," he began as we were dining together recently, "don't you think a lot of people strain unduly for status symbols?

"Wouldn't there be much less nervous tension if people faced up to the facts of life quite frankly?

There are two general classes of status symbols.

One pertains to the human desire to show off and affect importance among one's neighbors.

It is typified by the "keeping up with the Joneses" slogan.

The other is a legitimate use of status symbols to help produce a more constructive outside influence.

For example, when a teenage high schooler starts smoking cigarettes, he does so to intimate that he is older, more sophisticated and "collegiate."

For he wants to fool the public so he himself will seem more important.

But when a clergyman graduates from college, plus the three years in seminary, his wish for a D. D. (doctor of Divinity) degree is not merely for his own ego or conceit.

For that D. D. will indicate to his parishioners that he is a well educated clergyman and not merely a zealot convert with a lot of religious enthusiasm but not even a grade school diploma.

By the same token, the M.D. degree is a scientific status symbol, but it is awarded not merely to flatter the vanity of the recipient, but to signify to the community that such a man has a certain type of specialized training which patients can rely upon.

Similarly, the title of Judge, or Managing Editor, or General or Professor, or Sales Manager all have merit as legitimate, wholesome status symbols.

But in contrast, suppose we consider the desire of a person on a modest salary who wishes to drive a swanky new car instead of a cheaper jalopy.

Actually, there is very little difference in riding comfort between a $500 jalopy vs. a $5,000 new automobile.

Both may be efficient transportation vehicles that will get you across the country as fast as the law allows.

Yet many people have an abnormal desire for the NEW car just to ritz the neighbors or "keep up with the Joneses."

So they often saddle themselves with burdensome debts and then become worried unduly over installments and the fear that the car may be repossessed.

So analyze yourself and try to gain better perspective. Why kill yourself prematurely for silly status symbols that simply mirror your selfish vanity? Get hep!

You can then enjoy your family more and with far less financial outlay!

Looking at Hollywood

By HEDDA HOPPER

© 1964: By the Chicago Tribune

ACTRESS TELLS WHY SHE QUIT FILMS TO BE A NUN

HOLLYWOOD — About a year and a half ago Dolores Hart, a beautiful and talented young star, gave up the glamorous life of Hollywood to enter Regina Laudis monastery in Bethlehem, Conn. This monastic order of Benedictine nuns is the only one of its kind in America. Dolores has completed her postulant term, is now called Sister Judith and wears habit and white veil of the novice. "I am in the tadpole stage of my religious evolution," she recently wrote a mutual friend. "It will be a good five years before I am qualified to make final vows. One has ample opportunity to consider and think things over before making the final step—it's a shame most marriages couldn't have such opportunity for deliberation."

Her decision to become part of the quiet world came as a complete surprise to Dolores Hart's friends. They miss her charm, sincerity, and thoughtfulness, her delicious sense of humor, her calm, clear truth-telling eyes. When they write her they invariably ask her to reconsider and to return to her career. She understands how they feel, for she knows that without the perspective of prayer and meditation it would be impossible for them to become reconciled to what she has done. But let me tell it in her own words, with some quotes I've taken from the letter:

"Sometimes my mind seems to overflow with the thoughts I want to express to my friends and I wish there was a valid form of mental telepathy. I want them to know, first of all, that I am hardly offended by their wish for me to return. For it is itself the reason that I came to the monastery in the beginning. As I once mentioned, I left nothing behind in coming here. I took everything I loved with me and came here expressly with the desire to return—but not in the way that sounds. In truth I believe we are all meant to return to one another; to return in the center of all truth who is the God who is love.

"I am not a great actress, my talents can very easily be replaced. Every time I used to see someone really good, like Lee Remick, I would think to myself I am so replaceable. As for the looks and figure and all that—well, Hollywood is full of women much more beautiful than I. I am not playing the humble bit—I know I have been blessed with looks and acting talent, but these gifts are not irreplaceable. The only thing I ever really had, and feel I have now to offer the industry, is simply the fact that I love it. Many of my friends wonder why I left. To love a thing or a person is not always to stay at their side, to be with them Sometimes the greatest love one can have is to leave. I want to find what it is in the industry that I love; I want to find it in a solid and eternal truth. I must find the industry in God. Any force so powerfully endowed with the ability to influence people by virtue of its own capacity to love must, in my opinion, be peopled with individuals extremely favored by the grace of God."

And in conclusion. "If I last here in the monastery and am accepted in five years as a 'bride of Christ' it will be truly the bride of the Christ I met in Hollywood. For it is in Hollywood I found God—or rather, He found me. I did not find Him in the monastery. And, if I don't stay, how can I possibly say that I have made a mistake? For I have only been allowed the great opportunity of loving you all more and discovering you in a deeper and more compellingly beautiful mystery."

Red China Claims Another Dutch Boy

TOKYO (UPI) — Remember the little Dutch boy who put his finger in the dike to heroically avert a flood?

The Communist Chinese can top it now.

The Communist New China News Agency (NCNA) in a broadcast monitored here today told of the great feat of Ma Kuang-Hsing, a reservoir attendant in Lutien County.

The story goes that Ma, when he discovered a leak in his reservoir, did the only thing he could to avert disaster for thousands of people of hundreds of hectares of farmland.

Like the dutch boy of old, Ma leaped into the frigid waters and plugged the hole.

But a finger wouldn't do the job. It took "revolutionary" action on Ma's part.

He put his whole body into the hole and stayed there until a rescue party arrived.

Fort Worth Girl Named Miss Cotton

Judy, 19, won the honor Tuesday night, defeating 19 other girls in the sedate beauty contest which places much emphasis of family background. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sargent Hill of Fort Worth, Tex.

The new maid, a sophomore speech major at Texas Christian University, is a statuesque 5 feet, 7½ inches and weighs 122 pounds. She has brown hair and green eyes.

Electric Railway May Be Transport of Future

By JESSE BOGUE

NEW YORK (UPI)—Should the administration's proposed transportation program include a Washington-New York high speed electrical rail transport feature, it would bring a revival of interest to a form of rail travel which has been losing ground in most parts of the country for nearly two decades.

Washington dispatches say a demonstration project which is expected to be proposed to Congress would include 100-mile-per-hour electrical rail service between the nation's capital and the largest U.S. city, possibly on to New Haven, Conn. It would cut to less than three hours what is now a four-hour ride for the 250-mile trip.

Electrical rail service at present is widely used in the metropolitan area, chiefly, although not entirely, on commuter lines. Some other city areas use it.

But the use of diesel-electric lotomotive power has cut heavily into the utilization of electric-powered lines since their peak mileage in 1938, according to a publication of the Association of American Railroads.

In a pamphlet published this year reviewing railroad history, the AAR said that at the peak in 1938, more than 6,800 miles of track had been electrified. But by 1964, the mileage had shrunk to 4,720.

Purpose of the experimental high-speed electrical rail program, Washington sources say, would be to determine whether it will bring passengers back to the railroads. At present the air shuttle services absorb much of the passenger traffic within the Washington - New York-Boston concentration.

Army Gains Strength, Red China Claims

TOKYO (AP) — Red China claimed today its army, bolstered by new technical equipment and cleansed of the "bourgeois military line," is stronger than ever before.

Vice Premier Lo Jui-ching, former secret police chief who heads the army general staff, told the National People's Congress in Peking that the army is "a completely new type" securely under Communist party influence.

Kennedy Had His Foibles, Reporter Says

By ALLAN KELLER

Julius Spessot thinks of him as a tired President taking time out from the cold war to scramble eggs in the top of a double boiler late at night in the White House kitchen, or surreptitiously telephoning from the executive office to ask the chef to fix fettuccine for the family dinner.

This was a facet of the late President the public never saw, a warm and human side only a few could know. One tends to forget that world figures have their little foibles, their idiosyncrasies and their secret needs, just as the least of us do.

For the first time since he left the White House to serve as head chef at a New York restaurant (the Brasserie), Julius Spessot told me his story of a chef's eye view of the Kennedy's — a story of great dignity, but one of love, understanding and devotion.

Spesseot was the President's "family" chef. When JFK donned formal clothes of dine at state affairs, Rene Verdon did most of the cooking. Verdon was hired by Mrs. Kennedy, a devotee of French haute cuisine. But when it was dinner for the family alone, or with a few intimate guests, Spessot, who was hired by the President himself, prepared the simpler meals.

Often in the late afternoon, Spessot's phone would ring and the President would say, "I'm working late today. Please fix something, put it on the warming table and go home. There's no need for you to stay." The chef would prepare a ragout or beef Bourguignon and have an evening at home with his wife and small son.

The President, like many another man of his age, had to fight a continuing battle of the bulge. When he went on a diet, as he did frequently, Spessot served lean steaks, lamb chops and Spartan desserts, but the chief executive was never too happy.

One night Spessot fixed a chocolate souffle for dessert, knowing of his boss' love for chocolate. The President took a second helping and then stole out of the family dining room into the kitchen.

"Don't have any more of that for a few days," he whispered to the chef. "I'm going to be on television on Monday."

One day at Newport, R.I., the President asked Julius to fixe spaghetti, saying there would be eight guests. Spessot bought some fresh lobsters and made a sauce with them. JFK detoured into the kitchen to see how things were progressing and looked into the steaming pots.

"You didn't make meat balls?" he asked in surprise.

"No, Mr. President," said the cook, "but taste this sauce."

JFK took a healthy sample, savored the taste and went out without saying a word. But he turned at the door and winked.

"Boula-boula soup was one of his favorites," recalled the White House sous - chef. "One day I prepared it and the butler took it in, serving the President first as is always done. It was rich soup, with turtle and madeira wine among the ingredients. I put no whipped cream on his bowl, but did on all the others. When he saw the other dishes he called the butler and sent him out to get cream for his dish. The butler told me the President whispered to him, "I just couldn't stand it."

"Fettuccine would be in first place, that I know," said the chef. "Then would come, perhaps not in exact order, lobster, mousse of sole or perch, chocolate mousse, quail and all types of cream soup.

"One day I fixed zuppa inglese (an Italian cake) for a change and Mrs. Kennedy sort of curled her nose at the idea. I watched through the little diamond - shaped window and saw that each person took only a very small serving. The butler brought it out, barely touched, and I was broken-hearted. He took it in again after a while, as we always offer a dish twice, and the second time it disappeared."

The relationship between the President of the United States an immigrant from Italy, was outstanding because of Kennedy's kindness and good humor.

It was Spessot's task to cook also for Caroline and John. Mostly they ate things like hamburger, lamb chops, soup, vegetables, creme caramel and gelatin dessert. Because they were served without fancy trimmings, it was an easy part of the job.

Kindness, and an innate unwillingness to hurt anyone, marked the President's everyday dealings with his staff, said Spessot. And Jackie was equally tender - hearted. One summer when the President went to Rhode Island Jackie suggested to Spessot that he have his wife and 2-year-old son George spend a month with him.

"It must have looked funny to a lot of the guests to see Caroline playing with George, she speaking English and the boy using bad Italian and a few words of English," laughed Spessot. "But they got along wonderfully.

"I remember one afternoon seeing the President and Mrs. Kennedy go out on the lawn where the children were playing. He tried to talk to my son with Mrs. Kennedy acting as interpreter.

"There he was, with all those terrible burdens on his mind, chatting with a 2-year-old who couldn't talk much of anything but least of all English."

When JFK and Jackie turned to leave he called the chef over. Spessot was apologetic about his son's English.

"He'll learn it soon enough," said the President, "but will he learn to make fettucine like yours?"

Gasoline Taxes

Whenever we discuss taxes, we are bound to hear the claim that the tax on gasoline and on automobile users is one of the most equitable that has been devised. The reason offered is that the tax on gasoline is used to provide the highways that the automobiles and trucks use. Therefore, here we have a tax that is correctly employed.

Actually, most motorists are aware of the fact that they pay many taxes besides the gasoline tax. The motorist pays a tax when he buys the car and he psys an additional tax called a sales tax. He pays a tax when he gets his license and he pays a personal property tax on the car as long as he owns it. He pays for inspection, which is a tax, and he pays special taxes on toll roads, whenever he parks it at a meter, and whenever he purchases tires, battery, lubricants and the ever-present requirement, gasoline.

What most motorists may not know is that a great share of all that they pay in gasoline taxes does not go to provide highways or to maintain them. Actually, gasoline taxes are used to build sidewalks, to provide prison camps and a host of other items in the general budget including the maintenance of the government school system.

During the past seven years, the federal government has collected some $28.5 billion from gasoline taxes. Only $17.1 billion of that money has gone into highway construction and maintenance. The balance, about 40 cents on each gasoline tax dollar, has gone into the U. S. Treasury's general fund.

At state level, the same kind of procedure has been followed. In 1962, for example, some $440 million in state gasoline taxes were taken out of various highway funds and converted to other uses.

Something else to keep in mind about this "fair" and "equitable" tax is that it is the most highly taxed item relating to motoring. The tax is actually a 50 per cent tax. When you pay $3.00 at the pump for gasoline, $2.00 goes for the product and the other $1.00 goes to the government. Gasoline is taxed five times more thoroughly than even such luxury items as diamonds and furs.

Now, there is no doubt at all that the taxes on gasoline have inspired many automobile users to convert to more compact automobiles rather than standard American makes. One is reminded of the fact that in 18th century Britain a certain merchant, angry with the government's tax on horses, purchased and rode a cow for transportation. If gasoline taxes continue at their present rate, it is possible that the day of the horse is not past.

One of these days, scientists are going to perfect some other kind of vehicle, using perhaps atomic energy or some other kind of electronic energy. But, doubtless, the government will find a way to tax that, too.

Taxes on all forms of transportation, from railroads to barges to airlines and truck lines, form an enormous inroad against our ability to move goods and persons rapidly and inexpensively from place to place.

In many cases, we are told that taxes are loaded upon us in order to pay for the things we want and cannot get in any other way.

But the evidence abounds that taxes are put upon us to pay for the creation of bureaus and governmental jobs and that the "things we want" are often nothing more than the dreams of ambitious men in positions of power who can't bear to consider the fact that most of us would like very much to just be let alone.

Predictions

Years ago, we got out of the habit of making prognostications. After reading Ludwig von Mises' great book, "Human Action," we tended to agree with him that the variables in human desire and human ability are so great that individual prediction is impossible. True, once we have a set of facts we can predict within some limits what results will be IF certain rules are followed. But we have no way of knowing whether the rules will be followed, or whether the facts we have are sufficiently encompassing to include the significant variables along which foreseeable results will appear.

Thus, with the years, we have tended more toward caution. It is safe to predict, for example, that the federal government's program of massive tax-spend-elect will ultimately bring us to ruin. But this is to assume that existing programs will be followed, that no new variables are introduced, and that we are not pinned down as to the precise time in which economic collapse will occur. Also, it might depend a bit on what we mean by ruin.

But in the field of prediction there is always a spate of men, having good backgrounds, who put their reputations on the line in an effort to rend the veil of the future and to tell us what is going to happen. Actually, all they have to offer is what we could call an "educated guesss."

But these guesses are interesting and we're going to share a few of them with you.

Here is Dr. John Turkevich, professor of chemistry at Princeton University. Dr. Turkevich isn't predicting for 1965, but he is predicting for the near future. Here are three of his educated geusses:

1. "We may find that the loss of memory, and differences in the memory capacity of individuals, has to do with how one synthesizes molecules in the brain. When people grow old, they may just lose those enzymes that make this chemical process possible. Perhaps we will give them enzymes, like insulin, and their memories will go on, provided they still have the other ingredients. Students that have a low dose of this memory enzyme will simply get a diet supplement. . .You'll be able to buy it in a drugstore."

2. "Transplantation of organs will be commonplace. For we are gradually delineating how much of you is YOU individually. . .and how much of you is simply a HUMAN BEING. We know that the chromosomes are you; your genetic inheritance in unique. But parts of you are common to all of us.

"I can foresee the establishment of monkey farms where we'll be raising high-grade monkeys so we can take a heart, an eye, or a limb, and attach it to a person who needs it very badly. . . .once we solve this problem of how much of you is YOU and how much of you is simply human."

3. ". . .Hurricanes and electric storms will be eliminated and weather control will be organized on a world basis. This will force nations to work together on schedules of rain and sunshine."

Here is Dr. Wendtell G. Scott, president of the American Cancer Society:

1. "It has been found. . . .that environmental factors are directly related to eight types of cancer; among these are cancers of the skin, cervix and lungs. These can now be considered as avoidable and preventable."

2. ". . .Recently a startling series of research advances pinned down the viruses believed to cause human leukemia. I prophesied early this year that this dread disease would be stricken from the list of incurable diseases within five years. As a result of recent research, I now revise that to say within three years at the most."

Any number of savants, examining the future through the dark glass of probability, are now coming forward to claim that individual self-improvement is the key. We have lived though a period of great change in which uncertainty and expanding horizons had an unsettling effect. Now they predict that this period is passing; that we are moving toward greater stability through increased emphasis upon the value of the individual person.

We wish to add our own support to this idea, whether we care to adopt it as a prediction or not. This is the direction we should take. And if the prognosis is correct, then some modification of the unbridled ambition of politicians will become evident in the near future.

The Hard Rock Poet

Rhyme and Reason

By RUFUS L. PORTER

I give you a few limericks,
starting with a New Year's resolution — one I feel sure I can keep.
Resolutions are next in line.
As a sample, I'll give you mine:
I hereby resolve
I'll never dissolve
Any more pearls in wine.

Way back east in West Virginny
Lived a gal whose name was Minnie,
When buying a horse
She said, "But of course
I want one that can whinny."

Way down south in North Carolina
Lived an anxious old maid named Dinah—
When asked if she'd wed
A Yankee she said,
"A gorilla would be much fina."

I passed a stranger on life's road
And then went back to share his load,
But he had gall,
He gave me it all—
And away down the turnpike he strode.

There is something wrong with our thinking when we have to sell ourselves the idea that better tools (machines) are good for humanity. Those of us who can look back fifty years should have no trouble believing it. But we have allowed the union bosses and the new deal economists to poison our minds against new "labor-saving" inventions, which in reality are nothing of the sort. Every machine ever invented that has relieved men of tedious and backbreaking toil has created more jobs, millions more, than it "took away."

Machines have been fought from the beginning by the unthinking when all they had to do was look around and see the results of even the first crude machines. Easier work, shorter hours, higher living standards, better wages for more workers — these results were clearly visible to the observant at the very start of the industrial revolution.

Ask a man who fears automation if he would like to go back to digging ditches with a pick and shovel, or if he would enjoy walking behind a fresno scraper pulled by four horses or mules, or if he would trade his car in for a horse and buggy. He will say, "No, but —" and he will give you a long list of reasons why some machinery is okay — "but this automation will throw us all out of work."

Why is it possible for most industrial workers to draw big wages for putting in a mere 40 hours per week which, if the unions and politicians have their way, will soon be reduced to 35 hours? And the work is no longer hard manual labor, it consists mostly of watching the machinery do the work for them.

It is possible because of automation. We have been living with automation for more than 200 years. It has just been constantly improved. Only the word for it is new, but it is a big bad word that many people, who should know better, are afraid of.

It has been about five years since I used the following bit of verse in this column, so I think it's time I ran it again.

HATES MACHINES

"I hate machinery,"
I heard a worker say,
Though it makes his living
Easier every day.
"I hate machines," he said.
While one stamped out his pay,
And, hating them,
He got into his car
And drove away.

Automation is the only thing that can save our exploding population from starvation in the next generation.

What will save the population
When it faces stark stavation
In a hundred years or so?
One thing will, if it can grow,

A Look at Equality

By BUTLER D. SHAFFER

As any political campaign will verify, all political parties and virtually every politician are in favor of "freedom" and "equality," and yet when any political group gains control of government, it sets out to deny both these concepts.

Freedom can only be defined in terms of "freedom to choose between various alternatives of action." To say that freedom can exist when there is a limitation (or elimination) by government of the choices upon which men may act, is an absurdity, and yet government is in the business of limiting men's choices. The cruel humor of the entire spectacle is that government is then offered to us as the only means by which we can guarantee our freedom!

When men in political power force us to do — or refrain from doing — a particular act, they deprive us of our freedom of choice with respect to that act. When we labor to earn an income, and the government taxes away a portion of that income, it has deprived us of our freedom of choice regarding a given percentage of what we have produced. Since taxes by all levels of government consume a reported 35 per cent of national incomes (a conservative figure at that), the average person has lost 35 per cent of his freedom to choose what he will do with what he has produced. This does not even include the further limitations, set by government, as to what people may do with their income after taxes.

These men in political power are by and large free to make their own choices. Programs which they seek to inaugurate are, by definition, courses of action which they favor, and when they get their preferences incorporated into law, their freedom of choice has been satisfied 100 per cent. But for the man who does not favor such a choice, but who is forced to support such program regardless, his freedom of choice on this matter stands at 0 per cent.

Now, let us assume that those who support a program of government are successful, most of the time, in getting their choices declared as law. They will always have 100 per cent freedom of choice as regards their own actions whether their choices become law or not. For if they would like, let us imagine, 10 per cent of all income (including their own) to go to provide welfare payments to the less wealthy, they are still free to contribute 10 per cent of their income without a law. With such a law, their choice has still been met.

However, look what has happened. These men have 100 per cent freedom of choice regarding their own actions (assuming that no programs at any other level of government have been enacted of which they disapprove), plus they have the power to make a certain percentage of choices for other men. This means that the latter men have been forcibly deprived of some of their freedom to choose. With total taxes at a 35 per cent level, and with government enacting numerous restrictions on the actions of men, let us assume that the freedom of choice of those who do not go along with the programs of the men in power has been thus reduced by 40 per cent. What this means is that those in power have their own freedom of choice intact, 100 per cent, plus the power to make approximately 40 per cent of the choices for others.

Putting this onto an adding machine, we can easily see that the total freedom of choice available to the men in government and to those who support them is about 140 per cent, while the total freedom of choice of the dissenters has been reduced to 60 per cent.

What I propose is the incorporation of both "freedom" and "equality." As the above figures show, there is not an equality of freedom of choice when some men may make choices for themselves plus choices for other men. 140 per cent for one man and 60 per cent for another is an inequality, and those who desire to promote the concept of equality ought to give consideration to this problem.

This inequality can be removed in only one way, and that is to permit each man the complete freedom of choice regarding his own actions. This would mean a total renunciation of the concept of force, whether interpersonal or governmental, and the elimination of the present Orwellian standard that "all men are equal, but some men are more equal than others."

To The Point

Land Reform in Morocco

By RUSSELL KIRK

Morocco's parliament, having already "nationalized" land held by foreigners, is in process of passing a bill to "expropriate" big tracts possessed by Moroccan citizens. Hereafter, once the king assents, no one will be permitted to own more than 100 acres of irrigated land, or more than 500 of arid land. The expropriated properties will be distributed among peasants, and some compensation — though not much will be paid to Moroccans as it is already being paid to the French who have lost their estates.

Anyone who travels in Morocco becomes aware that though this is one of the few relatively prosperous African countries, the Moroccan rural laborer is wretchedly poor—by American and European standards, of course, though not by African standards. Moroccan villages are collections of shabby hovels in an expanse of desolation, and virtually the only visible form of wealth consists of the silver bracelets and necklaces of the country-women.

Whether distributing land in small parcels to the Moroccan cultivator will improve his lot is somwhat questionable, nevertheless. Wherever one observes, in the Moroccan countryside, a good house, a prospering farm, and clumps of trees, these are the possessions —or the former property—of French farmers. Depriving the European settlers, or the Moroccan landowners, of the land which they have carefully improved will not of itself make the Moroccan peasant less poverty-racked. French agricultural shrewdness, and French supervision, and French capital, account mostly for these oases of rural success. Lacking French knowledge, French habits of work, and French money to invest in machinery, plants, and stock, the Moroccan inheritor may sink afresh into his old poverty. And the Moroccan managers that are to be put in charge of the larger "nationalized" properties may be inferior to their predecessors. Such already has been the experience with expropriation in Algeria and even Tunisia.

Moreover, depriving native landowners of their holdings will be a popular measure, yet one that may deprive the country of a class of educated people, a stable and capital - accumulating element in society which has furnished political and communal leadership since time out of mind. The city traders, and the new bureaucracy, often lack the qualities of decision and the sense of responsibility which (despite various failings) have been characteristic of the land-owning classes. So a redistribution of land which is intended to benefit the great body of rural laborers may work, in the long run, a national injury.

In an age when, throughout most of the world, increase of agricultural productivity is desperately required to feed a growing population, reducing the size of agricultural units often means decreased production of foodstuffs. Better methods and more machinery and bigger fields under tillage ordinarily are required for greater agricultural efficiency; but the African or Asiatic peasant, lacking both knowledge and capital to invest, often is bound to the low yield of quasi-primitive cultivation. He has long been content, perforce, with a mere subsistence; endowed with the fields or pastures of the "expropriated" classes, he produces little more than formerly to feed the swelling towns.

"Land reform" of this sort too often is a demagogic measure, in Africa and Asia and Latin America, to postpone a government's necessity for fiscal and administrative reforms. Communist parties ordinarily pretend to back such confiscations. But when the new peasant-economy fails to feed the cities, then the Communists demand general confiscation, state monopoly of the land and collective farms. So have they proceeded in eastern Europe, as in Soviet Russia, and in China. And the wretched peasant soon finds himself in a totalist grip far less merciful than that of the old landlord.

The American Way

What Causes Unemployment?

By HARRY BROWNE

Could you make a list of all the things you desire that you don't have? Once you got started, such a list would probably prove to be endless. No matter how much money you could earn, your desires would keep increasing and you would never fully catch up to them.

Chances are, then, that you could never work hard enough to satisfy your every desire. No individual has either that much talent or time.

Now extend your view to all of society. The situation, of course, is exactly the same. There are not enough hours in the day for all of us together to work to produce the products and services that would satisfy all of our desires. Even if we could, we would then think of new things we want.

Do you realize what this means?

It means that there can never be enough human labor to satisfy every need and desire of society.

Although the introduction of new labor-saving tools makes it possible to satisfy more desires with the same amount of labor, we can never produce enough to arrive at a totally-satisfied existence.

There will always be a shortage of human labor.

Thus, there will always be a job for everyone who wants to work — for there will always be a desire that additional human labor can satisfy. Unemployment should exist only for those who choose not to work.

"Wait a minute!" you say. "What's the matter with you? Don't you read the newspapers? There are millions of people unemployed today. How can you say there's no unemployment?"

Yes, involuntary unemployment does exist today. And yet we can see that it shouldn't. What brought it about?

If every individual had complete freedom to control his own life and property — but could not coerce others — there would be no involuntary unemployment. For each individual would have the opportunity to sell his labor to someone with an unsatisfied desire. This would take place either directly (selling a labor service to a customer) or indirectly (selling his labor to an employer who in turn sells a wanted product to the customer).

The problem — the root of unemployment — is that we don't have the freedom to control our own lives and property. When we go to the market to sell our labor, we find that the state has stepped in between us and our potential customers. The state sets up labor roadblocks with minimum wage laws, coercively-imposed unemployment insurance, anti-trust laws, and literally thousands of other regulations.

In addition, individuals who are working find that fully 30 per cent of the buying power they have earned has been confiscated by taxation. This means that 30 per cent of the desires they would have satisfied with purchases are replaced by state-imposed functions. This reduces the incentive of those who can work and so they work less. As a result, they have less to exchange to others for their labor.

Unemployment can be cured. It can be cured by removing all of the political roadblocks. When political governments no longer have any economic control over their citizens, each of us will be free to sell his services to the highest bidder.

In a free society, the insatiable desires of human beings will assure that there will always be work for all who want it. And our standard of living will go continually upward as individuals have the freedom to create prosperity for themselves and others.

Socialist Schooling

By GEORGE BOARDMAN

The people of Utah are plagued by tremendous expense in connection with socialist schooling in that state and seem unable to alleviate the problem even while beginning to understand the gigantic political boondoggle which has them firmly enmeshed. I don't believe it is now possible to accurately estimate the actual number of tax dollars spent per student on schooling in Utah now, and plans call for more and more increases. It has also become increasingly difficult to estimate the total number of out-of-state students spending their time in Utah schools. Obviously, the gigantic system is being operated for the benefit of the system. The total number of people drawing pay from the state schooling bureaucracy amount to a lot of votes.

The school bureaucrats in Utah utilize a standard, tearful cry. Do you want the children of our great state to be illiterate? This, inevitably, stifles any opposition to more and more waste. If a politician dares to suggest that he intends to examine every facet of the system with great interest, he immediately becomes known as a hater of little kids and education, generally.

Of course, the bureaucratic schooling boondoggle is not limited to the State of Utah. Californians have been taking a horrific beating on this score for about 25 years and a good many other states are aiming at the same goals. Schooling provides one of the easiest methods of building up the cost and size and power of government. When you begin to examine the results obtained at such terrific cost, you find yourself looking for bland diets and quick-working medicines to soothe ulcers. For the past two years, Dawn has been taking copious notes for my benefit and from her notes I have compiled some interesting information.

Among students majoring in psychology, only a small percentage were able to define the word psychology. Metaphysics and philosophy defied definition. Psychasthenia, catatonic and paranoia were unheard of.

Among students studying economics, only a small percentage could correctly define the term gross national product even though they used it. None understood that placer gold is legal or that citizens of many foreign countries could legally buy and possess gold. The profit motive seemed to be a term which invoked malevolent overtones and only about 10 per cent of the students could correctly define socialism, fascism and communism.

The majority of all the students had difficulty deciding whether to use principal or principle. Their, there and they're were used with illiterate nonchalance. Less than 20 per cent could write legibly, many used block letters for all written communications. Simple words such as verbose, provocative, soporific and uncanny, drew blank stares, to mention only a few examples. Regularly students confused freedom and license and several found difficulty with liberty and libertine. Premise, concept, rule, provincial, agrarian and anathema were strangers except for fuzzy definitions of rule, premise and concept.

Three out of 400 knew of Gov. Bradford's denunciation of communal living in Plymouth Colony and I have proof that at least two college graduates believe there's a word spelled denounciation. I wouldn't be satisfied with my own vocabulary if I could expand it two or three times but as a regular thing, I find myself limiting the limited vocabulary as strictly as I can to give me greater assurance of comprehension in connection with what I have to say or write.

Generally speaking, we found the highest degree of literacy among people over 45 years of age and that is a sad state of affairs. Despite the outflow of billions of tax dollars into the socialist system of schooling, the taxpayers are getting a mighty poor return for their money and they will receive even less for their money as more and more tax dollars go down the drain in a system which is basically wasteful and totally lacking in morality.

Good luck and good health to you, in Freedom.

The Growing Tax Bite

From Christian Economics

According to the Tax Foundation of New York, state and local government spending for education jumped from $8 billion in 1952 to $21 billion in 1962. Not many believe that the quality of the product has improved in proportion to the 167 per cent increases in cost.

Eight cabinet departments and more than a dozen other agencies conduct or support Federal health programs. A whole galaxy of new programs involving heavy government expenditures have been proposed. Many of these are in conjunction with the attack on poverty. If this cluster of new programs is approved, the current level of expenditures of government may be only a beginning.

Increased taxation is a rough measure of our onward rush toward socialism. Collecting money from responsible people and distributing it to less responsible, or irresponsible people, tends to destroy the initiative and the effort of both classes. When some learn that they are to be despoiled and others find that they can live without much effort, the foundation of a free society crumbles. Respect for private property and the hope of reward for effort have been at the basis of every free civilization that has developed on this earth. As we continue to desert these principles we slide farther and farther into authoritarian government with the low standards of living and slavery that always accompany it.

Canada In 1965

By AMBROSE HILLS

1965 could be one of the most important years Canada has ever known. There are tremendous opportunities.

United States rejected the right-wing led by Barry Goldwater. He asked the people to sacrifice too much, and he scared many of them, for they were led to believe that he would be quick on the trigger. However, it is likely that the victors will interpret the rejection of Goldwater as acceptance of big government. I believe they are wrong in that assessment, but nevertheless the United States is likely to move further left during 1965, and there will be a constant upward drift in prices.

England, not surprisingly, knocked out the Conservatives. It was a government grown old, rocked by terrible scandals, and trying to buy its way back into the good wishes of the people. Labor, however, will interpret its victory as acceptance of socialist ideas. I believe they are wrong — that it was a protest against a bumbling government — but just the same, the UK will move left during 1965. Productivity will decline and shortages and price increases will prevail.

If Canadians can keep their heads while all about them other nations allow their prices to escalade, they should be able to gain some pretty strong footholds in the market places. If Canadians sit tight, even for one year, and hold the line on costs, their opportunities are tremendous.

Gasoline Taxes

Whenever we discuss taxes, we are bound to hear the claim that the tax on gasoline and on automobile users is one of the most equitable that has been devised. The reason offered is that the tax on gasoline is used to provide the highways that the automobiles and trucks use. Therefore, here we have a tax that is correctly employed.

Actually, most motorists are aware of the fact that they pay many taxes besides the gasoline tax. The motorist pays a tax when he buys the car and he psys an additional tax called a sales tax. He pays a tax when he gets his license and he pays a personal property tax on the car as long as he owns it. He pays for inspection, which is a tax, and he pays special taxes on toll roads, whenever he parks it at a meter, and whenever he purchases tires, battery, lubricants and the ever-present requirement, gasoline.

What most motorists may not know is that a great share of all that they pay in gasoline taxes does not go to provide highways or to maintain them. Actually, gasoline taxes are used to build sidewalks, to provide prison camps and a host of other items in the general budget including the maintenance of the government school system.

During the past seven years, the federal government has collected some $28.5 billion from gasoline taxes. Only $17.1 billion of that money has gone into highway construction and maintenance. The balance, about 40 cents on each gasoline tax dollar, has gone into the U. S. Treasury's general fund.

At state level, the same kind of procedure has been followed. In 1962, for example, some $440 million in state gasoline taxes were taken out of various highway funds and converted to other uses.

Something else to keep in mind about this "fair" and "equitable" tax is that it is the most highly taxed item relating to motoring. The tax is actually a 50 per cent tax. When you pay $3.00 at the pump for gasoline, $2.00 goes for the product and the other $1.00 goes to the government. Gasoline is taxed five times more thoroughly than even such luxury items as diamonds and furs.

Now, there is no doubt at all that the taxes on gasoline have inspired many automobile users to convert to more compact automobiles rather than standard American makes. One is reminded of the fact that in 18th century Britain a certain merchant, angry with the government's tax on horses, purchased and rode a cow for transportation. We have lived though a period of great change in which uncertainty and expanding horizons had an unsettling effect. Now they predict that this period is passing; that we are moving toward greater stability through increased emphasis upon the value of the individual person.

We wish to add our own support to this idea, whether we care to adopt it as a prediction or not. This is the direction we should take. And if the prognosis is correct, then some modification of the unbridled ambition of politicians will become evident in the near future.

The Hard Rock Poet

Rhyme and Reason

By RUFUS L. PORTER

I give you a few limericks,
starting with a New Year's resolution — one I feel sure I can keep.
Resolutions are next in line.
As a sample, I'll give you mine:
I hereby resolve
I'll never dissolve
Any more pearls in wine.

Way back east in West Virginny
Lived a gal whose name was Minnie,
When buying a horse
She said, "But of course
I want one that can whinny."

Way down south in North Carolina
Lived an anxious old maid named Dinah—
When asked if she'd wed
A Yankee she said,
"A gorilla would be much fina."

I passed a stranger on life's road
And then went back to share his load,
But he had gall,
He gave me it all—
And away down the turnpike he strode.

There is something wrong with our thinking when we have to sell ourselves the idea that better tools (machines) are good for humanity. Those of us who can look back fifty years should have no trouble believing it. But we have allowed the union bosses and the new deal economists to poison our minds against new "labor-saving" inventions, which in reality are nothing of the sort. Every machine ever invented that has relieved men of tedious and backbreaking toil has created more jobs, millions more, than it "took away."

Machines have been fought from the beginning by the unthinking when all they had to do was look around and see the results of even the first crude machines. Easier work, shorter hours, higher living standards, better wages for more workers — these results were clearly visible to the observant at the very start of the industrial revolution.

Ask a man who fears automation if he would like to go back to digging ditches with a pick and shovel, or if he would enjoy walking behind a fresno scraper pulled by four horses or mules, or if he would trade his car in for a horse and buggy. He will say, "No, but —" and he will give you a long list of reasons why some machinery is okay — "but this automation will throw us all out of work."

Why is it possible for most industrial workers to draw big wages for putting in a mere 40 hours per week which, if the unions and politicians have their way, will soon be reduced to 35 hours? And the work is no longer hard manual labor, it consists mostly of watching the machinery do the work for them.

It is possible because of automation. We have been living with automation for more than 200 years. It has just been constantly improved. Only the word for it is new, but it is a big bad word that many people, who should know better, are afraid of.

It has been about five years since I used the following bit of verse in this column, so I think it's time I ran it again.

HATES MACHINES

"I hate machinery,"
I heard a worker say,
Though it makes his living
Easier every day.
"I hate machines," he said.
While one stamped out his pay,
And, hating them,
He got into his car
And drove away.

Automation is the only thing that can save our exploding population from starvation in the next generation.
What will save the population
When it faces stark stavation
In a hundred years or so?
One thing will, if it can grow,

A Look at Equality

By BUTLER D. SHAFFER

As any political campaign will verify, all political parties and virtually every politician are in favor of "freedom" and "equality," and yet when any political group gains control of government, it sets out to deny both these concepts.

Freedom can only be defined in terms of "freedom to choose between various alternatives of action." To say that freedom can exist when there is a limitation (or elimination) by government of the choices upon which men may act, is an absurdity, and yet government is in the business of limiting men's choices. The cruel humor of the entire spectacle is that government is then offered to us as the only means by which we can guarantee our freedom!

When men in political power force us to do — or refrain from doing — a particular act, they deprive us of our freedom of choice with respect to that act. When we labor to earn an income, and the government taxes away a portion of that income, it has deprived us of our freedom of choice regarding a given percentage of what we have produced. Since taxes by all levels of government consume a reported 35 per cent of national incomes (a conservative figure at that), the average person has lost 35 per cent of his freedom to choose what he will do with what he has produced. This does not even include the further limitations, set by government, as to what people may do with their income after taxes.

These men in political power are by and large free to make their own choices. Programs which they seek to inaugurate are, by definition, courses of action which they favor, and when they get their preferences incorporated into law, their freedom of choice has been satisfied 100 per cent. But for the man who does not favor such a choice, but who is forced to support such program regardless, his freedom of choice on this matter stands at 0 per cent.

Now, let us assume that those who support a program of government are successful, most of the time, in getting their choices declared as law. They will always have 100 per cent freedom of choice as regards their own actions whether their choices become law or not. For if they would like, let us imagine, 10 per cent of all income (including their own) to go to provide welfare payments to the less wealthy, they are still free to contribute 10 per cent of their income without a law. With such a law, their choice has still been met.

However, look what has happened. These men have 100 per cent freedom of choice regarding their own actions (assuming that no programs at any other level of government have been enacted of which they disapprove), plus they have the power to make a certain percentage of choices for other men. This means that the latter men have been forcibly deprived of some of their freedom to choose. With total taxes at a 35 per cent level, and with government enacting numerous restrictions on the actions of men, let us assume that the freedom of choice of those who do not go along with the programs of the men in power has been thus reduced by 40 per cent. What this means is that those in power have their own freedom of choice intact, 100 per cent, plus the power to make approximately 40 per cent of the choices for others.

Putting this onto an adding machine, we can easily see that the total freedom of choice available to the men in government and to those who support them is about 140 per cent, while the total freedom of choice of the dissenters has been reduced to 60 per cent.

What I propose is the incorporation of both "freedom" and "equality." As the above figures show, there is not an equality of freedom of choice when some men may make choices for themselves plus choices for other men. 140 per cent for one man and 60 per cent for another is an inequality, and those who desire to promote the concept of equality ought to give consideration to this problem.

This inequality can be removed in only one way, and that is to permit each man the complete freedom of choice regarding his own actions. This would mean a total renunciation of the concept of force, whether interpersonal or governmental, and the elimination of the present Orwellian standard that "all men are equal, but some men are more equal than others."

To The Point

By RUSSELL KIRK

Morocco's parliament, having already "nationalized" land held by foreigners, is in process of passing a bill to "expropriate" big tracts possessed by Moroccan citizens. Hereafter, once the king assents, no one will be permitted to own more than 100 acres of irrigated land, or more than 500 of arid land. The expropriated properties will be distributed among peasants, and some compensation — though not much will be paid to Moroccans as it is already being paid to the French who have lost their estates.

Anyone who travels in Morocco becomes aware that though this is one of the few relatively prosperous African countries, the Moroccan rural laborer is wretchedly poor—by American and European standards, of course, though not by African standards. Moroccan villages are collections of shabby hovels in an expanse of desolation, and virtually the only visible form of wealth consists of the silver bracelets and necklaces of the country-women.

Whether distributing land in small parcels to the Moroccan cultivator will improve his lot is somwhat questionable, nevertheless. Wherever one observes, in the Moroccan countryside, a good house, a prospering farm, and clumps of trees, these are the possessions —or the former property—of French farmers. Depriving the European settlers, or the Moroccan landowners, of the land which they have carefully improved will not of itself make the Moroccan peasant less poverty-racked. French agricultural shrewdness, and French supervision, and French capital, account mostly for these oases of rural success. Lacking French knowledge, French habits of work, and French money to invest in machinery, plants, and stock, the Moroccan inheritor may sink afresh into his old poverty. And the Moroccan managers that are to be put in charge of the larger "nationalized" properties may be inferior to their predecessors. Such already has been the experience with expropriation in Algeria and even Tunisia.

Moreover, depriving native landowners of their holdings will be a popular measure, yet one that may deprive the country of a class of educated people, a stable and capital - accumulating element in society which has furnished political and communal leadership since time out of mind. The city traders, and the new bureaucracy, often lack the qualities of decision and the sense of responsibility which (despite various failings) have been characteristic of the land-owning classes. So a redistribution of land which is intended to benefit the great body of rural laborers may work, in the long run, a national injury.

In an age when, throughout most of the world, increase of agricultural productivity is desperately required to feed a growing population, reducing the size of agricultural units often means decreased production of foodstuffs. Better methods and more machinery and bigger fields under tillage ordinarily are required for greater agricultural efficiency; but the African or Asiatic peasant, lacking both knowledge and capital to invest, often is bound to the low yield of quasi-primitive cultivation. He has long been content, perforce, with a mere subsistence; endowed with the fields or pastures of the "expropriated" classes, he produces little more than formerly to feed the swelling towns.

"Land reform" of this sort too often is a demagogic measure, in Africa and Asia and Latin America, to postpone a government's necessity for fiscal and administrative reforms. Communist parties ordinarily pretend to back such confiscations. But when the new peasant-economy fails to feed the cities, then the Communists demand general confiscation, state monopoly of the land and collective farms. So have they proceeded in eastern Europe, as in Soviet Russia, and in China. And the wretched peasant soon finds himself in a totalist grip far less merciful than that of the old landlord.

The American Way

What Causes Unemployment?

By HARRY BROWNE

Could you make a list of all the things you desire that you don't have? Once you got started, such a list would probably prove to be endless. No matter how much money you could earn, your desires would keep increasing and you would never fully catch up to them.

Chances are, then, that you could never work hard enough to satisfy your every desire. No individual has either that much talent or time.

Now extend your view to all of society. The situation, of course, is exactly the same. There are not enough hours in the day for all of us together to work to produce the products and services that would satisfy all of our desires. Even if we could, we would then think of new things we want.

Do you realize what this means?

It means that there can never be enough human labor to satisfy every need and desire of society.

Although the introduction of new labor-saving tools makes it possible to satisfy more desires with the same amount of labor, we can never produce enough to arrive at a totally-satisfied existence.

There will always be a shortage of human labor.

Thus, there will always be a job for everyone who wants to work — for there will always be a desire that additional human labor can satisfy. Unemployment should exist only for those who choose not to work.

"Wait a minute!" you say. "What's the matter with you? Don't you read the newspapers? There are millions of people unemployed today. How can you say there's no unemployment?"

Yes, involuntary unemployment does exist today. And yet we can see that it shouldn't. What brought it about?

If every individual had complete freedom to control his own life and property — but could not coerce others — there would be no involuntary unemployment. For each individual would have the opportunity to sell his labor to someone with an unsatisfied desire. This would take place either directly (selling a labor service to a customer) or indirectly (selling his labor to an employer who in turn sells a wanted product to the customer).

The problem — the root of unemployment — is that we don't have the freedom to control our own lives and property. When we go to the market to sell our labor, we find that the state has stepped in between us and our potential customers. The state sets up labor roadblocks with minimum wage laws, coercively-imposed unemployment insurance, anti-trust laws, and literally thousands of other regulations.

In addition, individuals who are working find that fully 30 per cent of the buying power they have earned has been confiscated by taxation. This means that 30 per cent of the desires they would have satisfied with purchases are replaced by state-imposed functions. This reduces the incentive of those who can work and so they work less. As a result, they have less to exchange to others for their labor.

Unemployment can be cured. It can be cured by removing all of the political roadblocks. When political governments no longer have any economic control over their citizens, each of us will be free to sell his services to the highest bidder.

In a free society, the insatiable desires of human beings will assure that there will always be work for all who want it. And our standard of living will go continually upward as individuals have the freedom to create prosperity for themselves and others.

Socialist Schooling

By GEORGE BOARDMAN

The people of Utah are plagued by tremendous expense in connection with socialist schooling in that state and seem unable to alleviate the problem even while beginning to understand the gigantic political boondoggle which has them firmly enmeshed. I don't believe it is now possible to accurately estimate the actual number of tax dollars spent per student on schooling in Utah now, and plans call for more and more increases. It has also become increasingly difficult to estimate the total number of out-of-state students spending their time in Utah schools. Obviously, the gigantic system is being operated for the benefit of the system. The total number of people drawing pay from the state schooling bureaucracy amount to a lot of votes.

The school bureaucrats in Utah utilize a standard, tearful cry. Do you want the children of our great state to be illiterate? This, inevitably, stifles any opposition to more and more waste. If a politician dares to suggest that he intends to examine every facet of the system with great interest, he immediately becomes known as a hater of little kids and education, generally.

Of course, the bureaucratic schooling boondoggle is not limited to the State of Utah. Californians have been taking a horrific beating on this score for about 25 years and a good many other states are aiming at the same goals. Schooling provides one of the easiest methods of building up the cost and size and power of government. When you begin to examine the results obtained at such terrific cost, you find yourself looking for bland diets and quick-working medicines to soothe ulcers. For the past two years, Dawn has been taking copious notes for my benefit and from her notes I have compiled some interesting information.

Among students majoring in psychology, only a small percentage were able to define the word psychology. Metaphysics and philosophy defied definition. Psychasthenia, catatonic and paranoia were unheard of.

Among students studying economics, only a small percentage could correctly define the term gross national product even though they used it. None understood that placer gold is legal or that citizens of many foreign countries could legally buy and possess gold. The profit motive seemed to be a term which invoked malevolent overtones and only about 10 per cent of the students could correctly define socialism, fascism and communism.

The majority of all the students had difficulty deciding whether to use principal or principle. Their, there and they're were used with illiterate nonchalance. Less than 20 per cent could write legibly, many used block letters for all written communications. Simple words such as verbose, provocative, soporific and uncanny, drew blank stares, to mention only a few examples. Regularly students confused freedom and license and several found difficulty with liberty and libertine. Premise, concept, rule, provincial, agrarian and anathema were strangers except for fuzzy definitions of rule, premise and concept.

Three out of 400 knew of Gov. Bradford's denunciation of communal living in Plymouth Colony and I have proof that at least two college graduates believe there's a word spelled denounciation. I wouldn't be satisfied with my own vocabulary if I could expand it two or three times but as a regular thing, I find myself limiting the limited vocabulary as strictly as I can to give me greater assurance of comprehension in connection with what I have to say or write.

Generally speaking, we found the highest degree of literacy among people over 45 years of age and that is a sad state of affairs. Despite the outflow of billions of tax dollars into the socialist system of schooling, the taxpayers are getting a mighty poor return for their money and they will receive even less for their money as more and more tax dollars go down the drain in a system which is basically wasteful and totally lacking in morality.

Good luck and good health to you, in Freedom.

The Growing Tax Bite

From Christian Economics

According to the Tax Foundation of New York, state and local government spending for education jumped from $8 billion in 1952 to $21 billion in 1962. Not many believe that the quality of the product has improved in proportion to the 167 per cent increases in cost.

Eight cabinet departments and more than a dozen other agencies conduct or support Federal health programs. A whole galaxy of new programs involving heavy government expenditures have been proposed. Many of these are in conjunction with the attack on poverty. If this cluster of new programs is approved, the current level of expenditures of government may be only a beginning.

Increased taxation is a rough measure of our onward rush toward socialism. Collecting money from responsible people and distributing it to less responsible, or irresponsible people, tends to destroy the initiative and the effort of both classes. When some learn that they are to be despoiled and others find that they can live without much effort, the foundation of a free society crumbles. Respect for private property and the hope of reward for effort have been at the basis of every free civilization that has developed on this earth. As we continue to desert these principles we slide farther and farther into authoritarian government with the low standards of living and slavery that always accompany it.

Canada In 1965

By AMBROSE HILLS

1965 could be one of the most important years Canada has ever known. There are tremendous opportunities.

United States rejected the right-wing led by Barry Goldwater. He asked the people to sacrifice too much, and he scared many of them, for they were led to believe that he would be quick on the trigger. However, it is likely that the victors will interpret the rejection of Goldwater as acceptance of big government. I believe they are wrong in that assessment, but nevertheless the United States is likely to move further left during 1965, and there will be a constant upward drift in prices.

England, not surprisingly, knocked out the Conservatives. It was a government grown old, rocked by terrible scandals, and trying to buy its way back into the good wishes of the people. Labor, however, will interpret its victory as acceptance of socialist ideas. I believe they are wrong — that it was a protest against a bumbling government — but just the same, the UK will move left during 1965. Productivity will decline and shortages and price increases will prevail.

If Canadians can keep their heads while all about them other nations allow their prices to escalade, they should be able to gain some pretty strong footholds in the market places. If Canadians sit tight, even for one year, and hold the line on costs, their opportunities are tremendous.

Truck Drivers Exhibit Their Art Paintings

By LARRY FRIEDMAN

NEW YORK (AP) — When the truck driver leaves his rig, he may take out his easel and paint to bring out his artistic talents.

"Why not truck drivers?" said Saul Solomon, secretary of a recently formed Trucking Industry Art Association. "They're human beings. They have emotions, reactions and sensitivity."

The association is a labor-management organization designed to uncover the artistic abilities of truck drivers.

Their union president, John J. O'Rourke, said smilingly: "In the old days you never found anything like this."

O'Rourke is president of Joint Council 16 of the Brotherhood of Teamsters, independent, and honorary chairman of the new group, which may start operations next week.

"We want to let the public know that the truck driver is not just a truck driver, that he's got other abilities," O'Rourke said. "I also think it will be helpful for our retirees."

The association has been given a state charter, has $4,000 in the treasury, a staff of professional artists to do the teaching and a prospective studio in a loft on 14th Street. The cosponsors are the union and the Empire State Highway Transportation Association.

Services of the association will be available to the city's 165,000 Teamsters members and an unspecified number of management people and their families.

Of the three artists who exhibited their works, two still drive trucks. None of their paintings was of traffic scenes.

"It relaxes me. I've been driving for 10 years and painting since 1948. I wanted to be a commercial artist when I went to school. I've done pen and ink sketches of things I see in the street."

"I first painted when I was 6 years old," said Joseph Goss, 37. "I was sick in bed for a year. About eight years ago, I took a correspondence course and started on oils not long ago."

Frank Casazza, 55, who retired last month, has been painting since he broke his foot four years ago and sought a diversion.

"My father was a cement mason, an artist in his own right," Casazza said. "I picked it up myself. I read books, visited museums. I always loved art — it's beauty. New York is beautiful, so many things to see and to paint."

HAPPY NEW YEAR

... it is midnight, and the toll of the bells announce a brand New Year. It is time to begin again. God hands us 365 clean, new days and as we accept his proffer we must make valid resolutions to discharge all the responsibilities that automatically come with them. Our world is confused. Seeds of destruction are planted everywhere. It is not a time for indecision. May we resolve, right now, to get a clearer view of destiny ... to understand more of the meaning and purpose of life. May we have more time for God, and somehow, may He make us realize, He is in front of all our tomorrows.

CHURCHES OF THE PIKES PEAK REGION

Methodists To Hear Dr. Lehmberg

Holy Communion will be observed at all three morning services at First Methodist Church. Sunday, at the "Come As You Are" service at 7:30 in Lehmberg Chapel, at the 8:25 and 10:55 services in the sanctuary.

The Reverend Phil Green has chosen for his communion meditation the subject, "The High Cost of Mediocrity." Dr. Ben F. Lehmberg has chosen as his theme for the communion meditation, "Packing Our Traveling Bag for the New Year."

The choirs, under the direction of John Shumaker, will be participating in the communion ritual. All responses and amens are being sung in the communion ritual.

On Sunday night, at 7 p.m., Dr. Lehmberg begins a series based on the book of Genesis entitled, "Beginnings of the Biblical Drama." This is one of the studies for this conference year in the Methodist Church. Dr. Lehmberg has divided the drama into four acts.

On Sunday night he will speak on the first act entitled, "How It All Got Started;" on January 10, "How Man Got Into Trouble."

There will be a guest preacher on January 17 in the evening, so Dr. Lehmberg continues the series on Sunday night, January 24, speaking on the subject, "How Man Learned to Live on the Earth;" and on January 31, "How God Has Dealt With His People."

The public is invited to hear these special messages based on what is probably the most misunderstood book of the Old Testament.

MARY'S NAME

Methodists To Hear Dr. Lehmberg

Holy Communion will be observed at all three morning services at First Methodist Church Sunday, at the "Come As You Are" service at 7:30 in Lehmberg Chapel, at the 8:25 and 10:55 services in the sanctuary.

The Reverend Phil Green has chosen for his communion meditation the subject, "The High Cost of Mediocrity." Dr. Ben F. Lehmberg has chosen as his theme for the communion meditation, "Packing Our Traveling Bag for the New Year."

The choirs, under the direction of John Shumaker, will be participating in the communion ritual. All responses and amens are being sung in the communion ritual.

On Sunday night, at 7 p.m., Dr. Lehmberg begins a series based on the book of Genesis entitled, "Beginnings of the Biblical Drama." This is one of the studies for this conference year in the Methodist Church. Dr. Lehmberg has divided the drama into four acts.

On Sunday night he will speak on the first act entitled, "How It All Got Started;" on January 10, "How Man Got Into Trouble."

There will be a guest preacher on January 17 in the evening, so Dr. Lehmberg continues the series on Sunday night, January 24, speaking on the subject, "How Man Learned to Live on the Earth;" and on January 31, "How God Has Dealt With His People."

The public is invited to hear these special messages based on what is probably the most misunderstood book of the Old Testament.

Guffey News

By Mrs. George A. West, Phone 689-2558

The area near here had very strong winds the first few days of this past week, but temperatures were almost warm for this time of year. Early morning temperatures for Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday were 30 degrees, 32 degrees and 45 degrees. We received about an inch of snow Wednesday night, after first having rain followed by a real blizzard. Needless to say, weather is not of the usual type for December.

Mrs. Louise Hyde went to Canon City Wednesday to stay until after Christmas, as the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Ted Sadlier.

Mrs. Irene Ownkey of Canon City spent Thursday night as the house guest of Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Ownbey, then had Christmas dinner with the Frank Ownbeys before returning home that evening.

Mr. and Mrs. David Gartner of Dickinson, N.D., and David's parents arrived in Canon City Thursday to spend the Christmas holiday with the Art Wests. Mrs. Gartner is the former Darlene West. This group joined the rest of the West family at the Geo. E. West home for the annual Christmas Eve gift exchange. Later in the evening they went to the Buford Dell home.

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Davidson of Pueblo spent the Christmas weekend in Guffey.

Christmas Day dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Junior Bumgarner and boys in Canon City were Mr. and Mrs. Lee Trott of Guffey.

Christmas Day, Mr. and Mrs. Cy Warner and Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Warner, Mike and Michelle went to Denver to spend the day with the Benny Pitt family. They encountered some bad road conditions in the Palmer Lake area and again coming up Ute Pass, but were fortunate not to be among the many whose cars ended up in the ditches at the sides of the road.

Joy Campbell had a minor accident on Ute Pass near Cascade Christmas day as she was returning to Colorado Springs after spending the day with her parents and family here. Several autos were involved in chain reaction accidents and Joy was unable to stop her car in time to keep from hitting the rear of another auto. She was accompanied by a friend, John Ayers, from the Air Force Academy.

Christmas day dinner guests at the Bob Campbells were the Tom Campbells, Joy Campbell, John Ayers, and Mrs. Mildren Coon and Mr. and Mrs. Dick Coon and daughter from Denver.

Mr. and Mrs. Dale Orcutt and child visited with the Bob Campbells Saturday night.

Beginning January 4, there will be Bible study classes for both children and adults at the Four-Mile Community Church, held each first and third Monday evenings, at 7:30. Everyone is invited to attend these classes.

Don't forget the New Year's Eve dance which will be held at Four-Mile Hall this Thursday night. There will not be a dance Saturday night.

Keith Bumgarner has received his Army induction papers and will leave for duty Jan. 20.

Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Williams from Dallas, Tex, arrived in Guffey Sunday afternoon to spend a few days at their vacation home here. Mrs. Williams is especially enjoying the snow, as it is a novelty to her.

We were sorry to learn that Mrs. Geodge Locke of Hartsel had to spend Christmas in General Rose Hospital in Denver, after being confined there for pneumonia. She hoped to be able to return home Sunday to have a belated Christmas celebration with the Roland Oswald family and Senator and Mrs. Harry Locke.

Johnson Friend Heads Finance Firm

JOHNSON CITY, Tex. (AP) —A long-time confidant to President Johnson—A. W. Moursund — is president of a newly chartered investment firm that plans to lend to "anything that would make money."

Moursunda, a Johnson City lawyer who is the principal trustee of the President's family business interests, is the top officer of the $300,000 Highland Lakes Capital Corp.

The firm may start lending money in a month or two, said R. E. Stubbs Jr. of Johnson City, treasurer and one of three incorporators of Highland Lakes.

Records at the Texas secretary of state's office indicate that the third incorporator is Thomas C. Ferguson, Moursund's law partner. The state granted the firm its charter July 1.

Its dealings will be confined to Texas, according to its articles of confederation. It is organized and chartered to do business under the federal Small Business Investment Act of 1953.

Guest Speaker At Bethany Baptist

Pope Paul Invited To See World's Fair

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope Paul VI was formally invited today to New York next summer to attend the World's Fair.

THRESH FOR TEETH

DUPONT, Wis. (AP) — It wasn't the proverbial needle-in-the haystack that a threshing crew was looking for on the Bill Miller farm, but the objects lost caused an hour-and-a-half delay. Work was halted until a set of false teeth could be located. A member of the crew sneezed, and his dentures took a flyer into the hay.

Volunteers Rush To Complete Negro Church

RIPLEY, Miss. (AP) — The "Christmas Carpenters" hustled today to install windows, lights and a heater before their new church houses its first civil rights rally.

The "carpenters" — a group of college students — are rebuilding a rural Negro church which went up in flames last October after a similar civil rights session.

"The roof is almost completely finished," said David Reed, 21, of Littleton, Mass., an Oberlin student.

"The windows are in hand and most of the electrical wiring should be done by tonight," he added. "There will be light. We hope there also will be heat."

The speaker scheduled for the rally is the same who visited the church in the pre-fire rally — Fannie Lou Hamer of Ruleville.

A leader in the Mississippi Freedom Democratic party, she is one of three Negroes who have filed claim to seats in the U.S. House of Representatives.

The Freedom party, mainly Negro, is challenging the election of Mississippi's white representatives on the ground that they represent only one faction of the state's citizens because few Negroes are allowed to vote.

The "carpenters" and their project are the object of intense interest in this rolling, strictly segregated rural area in northeast Mississippi.

There has been relatively little contact beween the white community and the students. Most of them are staying with Negro families who live near the church.

Sheriff Wayne Mauney said the uproar that night probably was due to pranksters with firecrackers. Some students still feel they were shot at but can't produce any bullet holes.

Students and Negroes helping them are at work by 7:30 a.m. Negroes in the area bring them lunch. The cooking brings cries of appreciation from the Northern boys.

Oberlin College was the moving force in the project but the work force includes students from Tulane, Yankton College, Northwestern, Massachusetts and Washington University in St. Louis.

DETERGENTS ARE SEWAGE PROBLEM

URBANA, Ill. (AP)—Detergents and their inability to break down in sewage disposal systems have scientists searching for ways to solve the problem.

Studies show that, in addition to their failure to be digested, the petroleum-based detergents interfere with the normal production of gas during the sewage digestion process.

University of Illinois specialists say detergents are toxic to the bacteria. Fat-based detergents readily break down in closed sewage systems. Earlier studies indicate the presence of air, such as in streams or in aerated sewage systems, fat-based detergents were more readily digested than alkyl, benzine, sulphonate detergents or ABS.

Sewage organisms must be able to digest waste materials in the absence of air because septic tanks and cesspools are unaerated.

DANGEROUS JOURNEY

FARMINGDALE, N.Y. (AP) —William Dein, 59, is back home again, eight pounds lighter and happy to be alive, after a 32 - day, 2,800 mile coast-to-coast bicycle trip as a tribute to the John F. Kennedy physical fitness program.

"I enjoyed the trip," he reports, "but I wouldn't do it again, because having to dodge the speeding cars and trucks that are on the highways these days almost made me a nervous wreck."

Don't forget the New Year's Eve dance which will be held at Four-Mile Hall this Thursday night. There will not be a dance Saturday night.

Keith Bumgarner has received his Army induction papers and will leave for duty Jan. 20.

Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Williams from Dallas, Tex, arrived in Guffey Sunday afternoon to spend a few days at their vacation home here. Mrs. Williams is especially enjoying the snow, as it is a novelty to her.

We were sorry to learn that Mrs. Geodge Locke of Hartsel had to spend Christmas in General Rose Hospital in Denver, after being confined there for pneumonia. She hoped to be able to return home Sunday to have a belated Christmas celebration with the Roland Oswald family and Senator and Mrs. Harry Locke.

Johnson Friend Heads Finance Firm

JOHNSON CITY, Tex. (AP) — A long-time confidant to President Johnson—A. W. Moursund — is president of a newly chartered investment firm that plans to lend to "anything that would make money."

Moursunda, a Johnson City lawyer who is the principal trustee of the President's family business interests, is the top officer of the $300,000 Highland Lakes Capital Corp.

The firm may start lending money in a month or two, said R. E. Stubbs Jr. of Johnson City, treasurer and one of three incorporators of Highland Lakes.

Records at the Texas secretary of state's office indicate that the third incorporator is Thomas C. Ferguson. Moursund's law partner. The state granted the firm its charter July 1.

Its dealings will be confined to Texas, according to its articles of confederation. It is organized and chartered to do business under the federal Small Business Investment Act of 1953.

Guest Speaker At Bethany Baptist

Bruce Russell, of Broadway Baptist Church, Denver, will be guest speaker at Bethany Baptist Church, Sunday.

Russell is being considered by Bethany for Director of Education. He is a graduate of Berkley Baptist Divinity School, and has served at Broadway Baptist Church as Director of Education for the past three years. Russell has also worked in camps and youth work throughout the state.

The Church Choir will sing "Word of God," by Mozart, and the Lord's Supper will be observed at the morning worship service. Teachers and Officers elected for the New Year will also be dedicated at this time.

Pope Paul Invited To See World's Fair

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope Paul VI was formally invited today to New York next summer to attend the World's Fair.

THRESH FOR TEETH

DUPONT, Wis. (AP) — It wasn't the proverbial needle-in-the haystack that a threshing crew was looking for on the Bill Miller farm, but the objects lost caused an hour-and-a-half delay. Work was haited until a set of false teeth could be located. A member of the crew sneezed, and his dentures took a flyer into the hay.

Volunteers Rush To Complete Negro Church

RIPLEY, Miss. (AP) — The "Christmas Carpenters" hustled today to install windows, lights and a heater before their new church houses its first civil rights rally.

The "carpenters" — a group of college students — are rebuilding a rural Negro church which went up in flames last October after a similar civil rights session.

"The roof is almost completely finished," said David Reed, 21, of Littleton, Mass., an Oberlin student.

"The windows are in hand and most of the electrical wiring should be done by tonight," he added. "There will be light. We hope there also will be heat."

The speaker scheduled for the rally is the same who visited the church in the pre-fire rally — Fannie Lou Hamer of Ruleville.

A leader in the Mississippi Freedom Democratic party, she is one of three Negroes who have filed claim to seats in the U.S. House of Representatives.

The Freedom party, mainly Negro, is challenging the election of Mississippi's white representatives on the ground that they represent only one faction of the state's citizens because few Negroes are allowed to vote.

The "carpenters" and their project are the object of intense interest in this rolling, strictly segregated rural area in northeast Mississippi.

There has been relatively little contact beween the white community and the students. Most of them are staying with Negro families who live near the church.

Sheriff Wayne Mauney said the uproar that night probably was due to pranksters with firecrackers. Some students still feel they were shot at but can't produce any bullet holes.

Students and Negroes helping them are at work by 7:30 a.m. Negroes in the area bring them lunch. The cooking brings cries of appreciation from the Northern boys.

Oberlin College was the moving force in the project but the work force includes students from Tulane, Yankton College, Northwestern, Massachusetts and Washington University in St. Louis.

DETERGENTS ARE SEWAGE PROBLEM

URBANA, Ill. (AP)—Detergents and their inability to break down in sewage disposal systems have scientists searching for ways to solve the problem.

Studies show that, in addition to their failure to be digested, the petroleum-based detergents interfere with the normal production of gas during the sewage digestion process.

University of Illinois specialists say detergents are toxic to the bacteria. Fat-based detergents readily break down in closed sewage systems. Earlier studies indicate the presence of air, such as in streams or in aerated sewage systems, fat-based detergents were more readily digested than alkyl, benzine, sulphonate detergents or ABS.

Sewage organisms must be able to digest waste materials in the absence of air because septic tanks and cesspools are unaerated.

DANGEROUS JOURNEY

FARMINGDALE, N.Y. (AP) —William Dein, 59, is back home again, eight pounds lighter and happy to be alive, after a 32 - day, 2,800 mile coast-to-coast bicycle trip as a tribute to the John F. Kennedy physical fitness program.

"I enjoyed the trip," he reports,"but I wouldn't do it again, because having to dodge the speeding cars and trucks that are on the highways these days almost made me a nervous wreck."

BOB HOPE CABLES HEDDA, SHE VISITS BING CROSBY

HOLLYWOOD — Bob Hope got out of Viet Nam in one piece, thank heaven, and despite all that heavy security surrounding him and his company, he managed to get a Christmas card to me through air force special services. All the troupe autographed it, then Bob wrote: "Played golf in Seoul and Osan. Rice divots." Later he cabled: "All's well. Most exciting trip yet."

While Hope was playing tag with the commies, his old buddy, Bing Crosby, was spending a much tamer Christmas in Hillsborough, Calif., taking his three children caroling. And three cuter ones you've never seen. Mary Frances, 5, is a dream — she had to prompt Harry, 6, when he went up in his lyrics.

For years my friends, Phyllis Tucker and Nini Martin, have invited me to Burlingame for Christmas. I finally went. I'll never miss another. It was an experience unlike any I've had. I watched 27 grandchildren charge like a heard of reindeer into a beautiful, huge music room where each had his own chair surrounded by his presents. On the opposite side were chairs and gifts for grownups. I never saw my seat — I was down on the floor with the toys. They got everything from tape recorders to ball gowns to footballs. It was the wildest scramble since U. S. C. defeated Notre Dame. But the sight to remember was a 3-year-old on his new tricycle (the peddles were too long) taking off across a beautiful Persian rug and bumping into Florentine chairs, without a word of caution from anyone.

Nini Martin, mother of five redheads, can do anything. If you think I exaggerate, here's a rundown on one afternoon I witnessed. Her mother accidentally spilled a bowl of shrimp salad on her lap. Nini got the stains out. The new dog she bought for her husband, Fran, ate the fringe off a rug. Somebody spilled ink down her white linen couch. The most used thing in the bathroom went berserk. Her husband and daughter, Priscilla, didn't feel well She took their temperatures — nothing serious — and sent them to bed. All the time this was going on, people kept dropping in from New York, Paris, London, all over the world. When I asked how she did it, she said, "During the war, I learned to do everything." After a sit-down dinner for 48, she went to another party and danced till 3 a.m.

Room Divider Is Economical To Build

By BILL MEYERRIECKS

Room dividers have proven their popularity in the world of interior decoration. They add beauty and practical division to a home's living areas. However they are usually costly and once installed, there's no changing your decor without expensive renovation and considerable upset.

Today's Sketchbook design, the Demountable Divider, overcomes both these disadvantages of cost and permanence. It requires only a modest amount of lumber. And by making use of a relatively new pole attachment, the divider's uprights can snap into place without a scratch to floor or ceiling.

Whether you live in a rented apartment or are second party a home mortgage, the demountable aspect of the divider is appealing. You can install it, then later on move it to another location in the room or home, or take it down for a party in a matter of minutes. Shelves and the sliding door cabinets are supported by dowels running through the wooden poles. Pull the dowels and the entire assembly comes apart in a jiffy. Cabinet backs and doors are plywood or hardboard.

In the divider illustrated here, there's also plenty of room for individual decorating taste. The tall framed panel is a piece of hardboard painted white with a modern drawing mounted in its center. You could just as easily mount a mirror, or inexpensive prints of colorful paintings.

The S-195 Sketchbook plan tells you what to buy, how to get the pole attachments, and provides easily followed step-by-step instructions on assembly. Send for the 50 cent building plan through this newspaper.

Save Apartment Decor for Home Use

If you now live in an apartment but hope to own your own home some day soon, keeping your furnishings new-looking will save you lots of money come moving day.

By keeping apartment furnishings in good shape, you can cut down on the new ones you will need in the new home.

There are three things to watch out for in protecting apartment rugs, furniture and drapes, says Eleanor Kandel, a home furnishings specialist for the Flexalum division of Bridgeport Brass Company — sunlight, excess heat and active children.

Sunlight fades carpeting and other furnishings, the Flexalum specialist points out. Venetian blinds in an apartment should be custom fitted to keep sunlight from leaking in from the side. Venetians should be the kind that are easily adjusted to admit light while keeping out direct sunlight. When a room is not in use, venetians should be closed tightly.

Overheating of apartments is bad for the finish of furniture and can age it rapidly. If your landlord gives too much heat, frequent airing of rooms is a must to restore moisture balance.

Finally, active children can make a shambles out of furniture upholstery, especially in an apartment living room that does double duty as a playroom. Covering furniture with sturdy, clear plastic adds years to life of the upholstery while retaining room color scheme. Covers can be removed on evenings when you entertain formally.

LAGOS — The Nigerian Railway Corporation has made plans to buy 29 new diesel locomotives with English money.

SCREEN DIVIDES, CONQUERS — This distinctive folding screen provides an effective and eye-catching divider between the dining L and living room in this contemporary home. The screen, an easy do-it-yourself project, is made of Masonite filigree hardboard, perforated in an interesting cloverleaf pattern. It has been painted to match the walls and contrast with darker furniture finishes. The screen is portable and can be used in family room, bedrooms, and other areas, as well as living-dining room.

Folding Screens Are Attractive And Practical

It can serve dozens of practical purposes, particularly in homes with today's popular open floor plans. At the same time, it can add an attractive decor.

Screens are finding favor as dividers between dining L's and living rooms. They're also being used to provide privacy for sewing, reading, studying, and other activities. In many homes, they "fence off" areas temporarily out of bounds for the youngsters in the family.

Among the screens which get high grades from decorators and designers for both beauty and utility are those made from the new filigreed hardboard, which is both distinctive and durable.

The lacework panels are perforated in interesting designs, such as the Cloverleaf and Camelot patterns by Masonite Corporation. These patterns let through light and air while performing their primary job of screening.

Factory-cut moldings and accessories make it easy and inexpensive for even the amateur home decorator to build folding screens. The panels, which can be cut with ordinary carpentry tools, merely slide into grooves.

When the frame is fastened and hinged, you have a folding screen which can be finished to match or contrast with your color scheme. As a final touch, vines, plants, or small knick-knacks can be fitted into the perforations.

PRICE CUT

NEW YORK (UPI)—General Electric Co. announced Monday it has withdrawn the $10,000 extra charge for a resistor device sold with its 345-kilovolt power circuit breakers.

As the circuit-breaker alone was priced at $180,000, this is in effect a price cut of 5.5 per cent.

Here's the Answer

QUESTION: We have some outdoor aluminum furniture I would like to paint. A friend of mine says he bought some aluminum furniture a few years ago and that, when he decided to paint it, the hardward dealer told him he first had to wash it with a phosphoric acid compound. My friend followed directions and got a good result. Now he tells me I should follow the same procedure. Is he correct?

ANSWER: Much of the aluminum you buy has a coating of factory - applied oil on it to protect it against damage during shipping. Before painting, this oil must be removed, and phosphoric acid does a good job of this. But aluminum which has been out in the weather for any length of time no longer has the oil coating — and needs no acid wash. It is important, however, that all dirt and grease be removed from aluminum which has been exposed. New or old, aluminum should be given a coat of exterior primer, preferably zinc chromate. When it is thoroughly dry, apply the desired finish paint.

QUESTION: Is it better to use pumice powder with water or oil to obtain a satin finish on lacquer?

ANSWER: I'll answer that with a true story. I once watched two professional wood finishers, working side by side, on lacquer table tops. One was using water with pumice. The other was using oil. Each was positive his mixture was better. When they finished, I could see no difference between the results. Why not do your own experimenting and form your own opinion?

(To get Andy Lang's detailed booklet, "Wood Finishing In The Home," send 25 cents and a long, stamped, self - addressed envelope to Know-How, P.O. Box 954, Jamaica, N.Y. 11431. Also available, at the same price, is "Paint Your House Inside and Out." Be sure to specify which booklet you want.)

PUSH-BUTTON BOILING WATER

A new product available for added convenience in today's home is a dispenser that provides instant boiling water at the push of a button. Acting as a "teakettle that's always ready to go," the compact device is connected to the kitchen water supply and mounted on the sink ledge or countertop. This automatic unit, which delivers instant boiling water in absolute, pressure-free safety, is available from qualified plumbing contractors.

WINDOW WISDOM

Installing larger windows is an exciting way to make an older home look newer without complete renovation. Besides adding more light and often giving a better view, large windows give a feeling of spaciousness and importance. Ceramic tile on the window sills will protect them from inclement weather. And, if carried through on patios or entryways outside the window, ceramic tile can give an even more gracious appearance to the new setting.

Would You Like To Live Next Door to You?

Would you like to live next door to you?

Leslie R. Forester, writing in the American Home magazine, claims you might not be the good suburban neighbor you think you are. He recommends looking at yourself from the other side of the fence and asking yourself some pertinent questions.

Do you take a short cut to your neighbor by going through a hole in his hedges?

Do you let your lawn run rampant with dandelions while your neighbor tries to cut out every weed on his hands and knees?

Do your children barge in unannounced when your neighbor is trying to take a nap or a shower?

Are you and your wife always ready to drop in to shoot the breeze with your neighbors when they are trying to get some household chores done?

Is your mower always on the blink forcing you to borrow your neighbor's?

Does your home and grounds at sunset look like a compost heap with garbage cans and bicycles still in the driveway?

If you have failed this test or part of it, now is the time to bring sweetness and light and brotherly love to suburbia. You might start. Forester says, by grounding the dog and curbing the children.

Tile Sills Can End Your Window Problem

Windowwills rank high on the list of all-time household nuisances. In any room, they are dust - catchers and frequently need sanding and repainting. In bathrooms, kitchens and laundries, they are easily damaged by steam and soap.

These annoyances can be reduced or eliminated for all time if you surface your windowsills with ceramic tile. What's more, you can do the job inexpensively and, in the process, have some fun. Here's how:

Measure the sill area that you wish to have covered in tile. Then take the measuremnts to a tile contractor listed in the Yellow Pages under "Tile-Ceramic." He'll be able to show you an almost unlimited selection of colors, plus various sizes and shapes. If there is any cutting necessary, he'll do that, too.

From the tile contractor you can also purchase the adhesive you'll need to secure the tile to the windowsill and the grout for filling the small joints between the tiles.

You'll find it easy to install tile. The cost for a single window should be around $4, according to the Tile Council of America. If you're planning to to surface several windows, the cost will drop to about $3 per window, because there will be no additional expense for the adhesive and grout.

Dining Has Come Full Circle For Americans

Dining has come full circle since Americans deserted the dining room to eat off trays in front of the TV set in the 1950s.

Now they've rediscovered the dining room—but they're bringing the portable TV set in there with them.

"True, architects and builders have rediscovered the dining room and they're building them into homes that would not have had dining rooms a few years ago," he concedes.

"But the fact is that when TV came into the living room, so did the typical American family—dinner hour or no—even if they lived in an older home and had a perfectly good dining room standing empty."

Manufacturers like American of Chicago have noted a big new demand for dining room furniture—but find that families are going in for room arrangements that allow room to wheel in the portable TV, Steinfeld reports.

"The public is as TV-happy as ever—but all things being equal it's easier to eat at a table than to snatch a meal from a tray," he points out.

"There is something psychological about a dining room that slows dining down to a leisurely pace, even when there's a TV set in there too," he explains. to the TV screen, but sitting at a table, they are less likely to bolt their food. And lingering over coffee and dessert is making a comeback—because they have to wait till the end of a favorite show to wheel the TV back into the living room."

The big unanswered question in all this is still how people can eat when some of the programs are going on. But that's a matter for the medical profession, or anyhow TV critics.

Home Handyman Can Install Random Plank

Marlite Random Plank, an easy - to - handle plastic-surfaced hardboard product, makes it simple to create beautiful woodgrained interiors with strong visual interest.

Lumber dealers have it in six new Trendwood finishes — Provincial and American Walnut, Colonial Maple, English Oak, and Swedish and Italian Cherry.

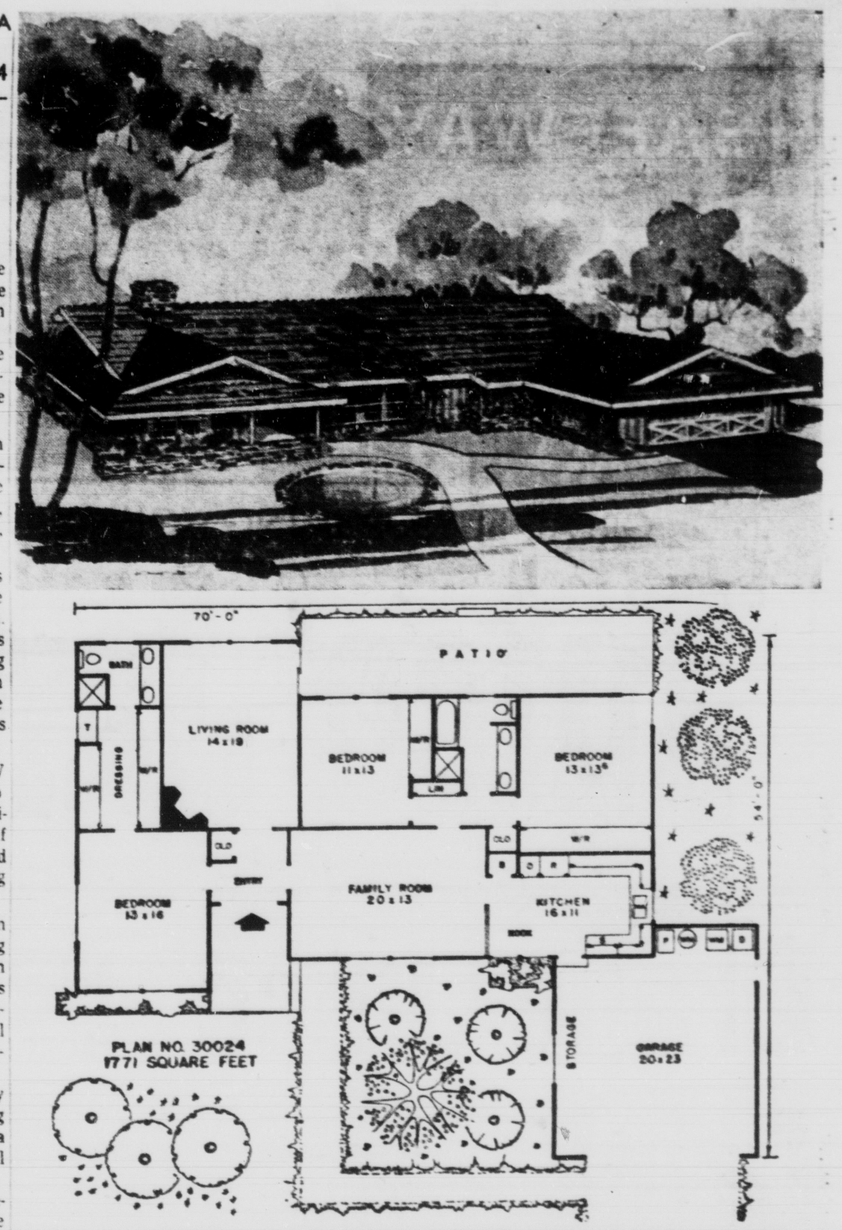
Extremely easy to install, Random Plank can be handled by most home handymen. Tongue - and - groove edges make the planks fit easily together, with special adhesive and concealed metal clips completing the installation. The result is an uninterrrupted random - plank wall that complements any decor.

Random Plank can be applied directly to any solid backing or to horizontal furring strips placed 16" apart if the walls are uneven. The adhesive and clips are used in both cases.

Masonry walls should be waterproofed and furred before installation. The only tools needed for most installations are a hammer, saw and level. Complete information describing the washable woodgrain paneling can be obtained at lumber dealers.

ALGIERS — Algerian roadbuilding equipment may be repaired locally now that the new maintenance shop is open here.



House Plans You Can Buy

By Hiawatha Estes, AIBD

This is a lot of house but then it does a lot of things. The long patio off the living room provides extra space for entertaining or for simple relaxation. The large family room-kitchen combination is nearly a house in itself.

All bedrooms are of sufficient size for twin beds. For privacy, the master bedroom suite is completely separated from the remaining bedrooms.

Today's bathrooms are much larger than they were only a few years ago. This makes good sense because a lot of time is spent in baths and no one wants to feel hemmed in or constricted by tight space.

Here, a private bath is located in the master bedroom suite while the family bath is strategically located to conveniently serve both of the remaining bedrooms plus the kitchen-family room. Both of the baths have twin pullman lavatories, semi - private water closet compartments, and oversized showers. The family bath also has a tub.

As homeowners, we are a nation of collectors. From the day we move into a home, we start accumulating "valued" possessions. Books, toys, clothing, appliances and numerous gadgets pile up at such a rapid rate that inevitably the time arrives when we have to face the problem of where to store everything. An abundant amount of storage space has been included in this plan.

There is over forty feet of wardrobes, all of which have storage drawers across the bottom. Shelf and drawer storage is available under each of the two pullman lavatories and the dressing table. A guest closet opens to the entry while a general storage closet opens to the bedroom hall. The linen exceeds five feet in length. There is a generous amount of both counter and wall hung cabinets in the kitchen plus a wide broom closet. The garage door has been offset so as to provide an entire storage wall along the left side of the garage.

Laundry facilities together with the furnace and water heater are in an offset at the rear of the garage. Doors open from the garage to the kitchen and rear yard.

Complete working drawings for this plan can be purchased at a cost of $8.50 for the first set and $5.00 for each additional set when ordered at the same time. This plan will be available at these prices until April 20, 1965. Please allow two to three weeks for delivery. The following home plan books are also available: Homes by Hiawatha - $1; Halimark Homes - $1; Town & Country Homes - $1; Homes for Living - $1; Distinctive Homes - $1; Ranch & Modern Homes-$2. All books - a $7 value - only $5. Send all orders for either plans or books to: Hiawatha Estes, P.O. Box 404-K, Northridge, California.

Old Tub Can Be Camouflaged or Even Replaced

features in many older homes

One of the less attractive features in many older homes — the bathtub — can be dramatically corrected by replacing it with a modern sunken tub. Or, if economy is a primary factor, you can camouflage the old tub by converting it into a daytime chaise lounge.

Either way, you'll want to use a durable and decorative surfacing material such as ceramic tile. The many sizes and shapes in which it's now available make ceramic tile ideal for sunken tubs.

If you prefer the chaise lounge camouflage idea, you can build a tile enclosure around the tub. A plywood cover, cut to exact measurements, will completely hide the tub. Atop the plywood you can place an upholstered cushion. Throw cushions can be used to hide faucets and soap dishes.

The convertible chaise will add beauty to your bath, and also can serve a practical use — such as providing an extra bed in an emergency.

By BILL MEYERRIECKS

Room dividers have proven their popularity in the world of interior decoration. They add beauty and practical division to a home's living areas. However they are usually costly and once installed, there's no changing your decor without expensive renovation and considerable upset.

Today's Sketchbook design, the Demountable Divider, overcomes both these disadvantages of cost and permanence. It requires only a modest amount of lumber. And by making use of a relatively new pole attachment, the divider's uprights can snap into place without a scratch to floor or ceiling.

Whether you live in a rented apartment or are second party a home mortgage, the demountable aspect of the divider is appealing. You can install it, then later on move it to another location in the room or home, or take it down for a party in a matter of minutes. Shelves and the sliding door cabinets are supported by dowels running through the wooden poles. Pull the dowels and the entire assembly comes apart in a jiffy. Cabinet backs and doors are plywood or hardboard.

In the divider illustrated here, there's also plenty of room for individual decorating taste. The tall framed panel is a piece of hardboard painted white with a modern drawing mounted in its center. You could just as easily mount a mirror, or inexpensive prints of colorful paintings.

The S-195 Sketchbook plan tells you what to buy, how to get the pole attachments, and provides easily followed step-by-step instructions on assembly. Send for the 50 cent building plan through this newspaper.

Save Apartment Decor for Home Use

If you now live in an apartment but hope to own your own home some day soon, keeping your furnishings new-looking will save you lots of money come moving day.

By keeping apartment furnishings in good shape, you can cut down on the new ones you will need in the new home.

There are three things to watch out for in protecting apartment rugs, furniture and drapes, says Eleanor Kandel, a home furnishings specialist for the Flexalum division of Bridgeport Brass Company — sunlight, excess heat and active children.

Sunlight fades carpeting and other furnishings, the Flexalum specialist points out. Venetian blinds in an apartment should be custom fitted to keep sunlight from leaking in from the side. Venetians should be the kind that are easily adjusted to admit light while keeping out direct sunlight. When a room is not in use, venetians should be closed tightly.

Overheating of apartments is bad for the finish of furniture and can age it rapidly. If your landlord gives too much heat, frequent airing of rooms is a must to restore moisture balance.

Finally, active children can make a shambles out of furniture upholstery, especially in an apartment living room that does double duty as a playroom. Covering furniture with sturdy, clear plastic adds years to life of the upholstery while retaining room color scheme. Covers can be removed on evenings when you entertain formally.

SCREEN DIVIDES, CONQUERS — This distinctive folding screen provides an effective and eye-catching divider between the dining L and living room in this contemporary home. The screen, an easy do-it-yourself project, is made of Masonite filigree hardboard, perforated in an interesting cloverleaf pattern. It has been painted to match the walls and contrast with darker furniture finishes. The screen is portable and can be used in family room, bedrooms, and other areas, as well as living-dining room.

* * *

Folding Screens Are Attractive And Practical

It can serve doz3ns of practical purposes, particularly in homes with today's popular open floor plans. At the same time, it can add an attractive decor.

Screens are finding favor as dividers between dining L's and living rooms. They're also being used to provide privacy for sewing, reading, studying, and other activities. In many homes, they "fence off" areas temporarily out of bounds for the youngsters in the family.

Among the screens which get high grades from decorators and designers for both beauty and utility are those made from the new filigreed hardboard, which is both distinctive and durable.

The lacework panels are perforated in interesting designs, such as the Cloverleaf and Camelot patterns by Masonite Corporation. These patterns let through light and air while performing their primary job of screening.

Factory-cut moldings and accessories make it easy and inexpensive for even the amateur home decorator to build folding screens. The panels, which can be cut with ordinary carpentry tools, merely slide into grooves.

When the frame is fastened and hinged, you have a folding screen which can be finished to match or contrast with your color scheme. As a final touch, vines, plants, or small knick-knacks can be fitted into the perforations.

PRICE CUT

NEW YORK (UPI)—General Electric Co. announced Monday it has withdrawn the $10,000 extra charge for a resistor device sold with its 345-kilovolt power circuit breakers.

As the circuit-breaker alone was priced at $180,000, this is in effect a price cut of 5.5 per cent.

Here's the Answer

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

QUESTION: We have some outdoor aluminum furniture I would like to paint. A friend of mine says he bought some aluminum furniture a few years ago and that, when he decided to paint it, the hardward dealer told him he first had to wash it with a phosphoric acid compound. My friend followed directions and got a good result. Now he tells me I should follow the same procedure. Is he correct?

ANSWER: Much of the aluminum you buy has a coating of factory - applied oil on it to protect it against damage during shipping. Before painting, this oil must be removed, and phosphoric acid does a good job of this. But aluminum which has been out in the weather for any length of time no longer has the oil coating — and needs no acid wash. It is important, however, that all dirt and grease be removed from aluminum which has been exposed. New or old, aluminum should be given a coat of exterior primer, preferably zinc chromate. When it is thoroughly dry, apply the desired finish paint.

QUESTION: Is it better to use pumice powder with water or oil to obtain a satin finish on lacquer?

ANSWER: I'll answer that with a true story. I once watched two professional wood finishers, working side by side, on lacquer table tops. One was using water with pumice. The other was using oil. Each was positive his mixture was better. When they finished, I could see no difference between the results. Why not do your own experimenting and form your own opinion?

(To get Andy Lang's detailed booklet, "Wood Finishing In The Home," send 25 cents and a long, stamped, self - addressed envelope to Know-How, P.O. Box 954, Jamaica, N.Y. 11431. Also available, at the same price, is "Paint Your House Inside and Out." Be sure to specify which booklet you want.)

PUSH-BUTTON BOILING WATER

A new product available for added convenience in today's home is a dispenser that provides instant boiling water at the push of a button. Acting as a "teakettle that's always ready to go," the compact device is connected to the kitchen water supply and mounted on the sink ledge or countertop. This automatic unit, which delivers instant boiling water in absolute, pressure-free safety, is available from qualified plumbing contractors.

WINDOW WISDOM

Installing larger windows is an exciting way to make an older home look newer without complete renovation. Besides adding more light and often giving a better view, large windows give a feeling of spaciousness and importance. Ceramic tile on the window sills will protect them from inclement weather. And, if carried through on patios or entryways outside the window, ceramic tile can give an even more gracious appearance to the new setting.

Would You Like To Live Next Door to You?

Would you like to live next door to you?

Leslie R. Forester, writing in the American Home magazine, claims you might not be the good suburban neighbor you think you are. He recommends looking at yourself from the other side of the fence and asking yourself some pertinent questions.

Do you take a short cut to your neighbor by going through a hole in his hedges?

Do you let your lawn run rampant with dandelions while your neighbor tries to cut out every weed on his hands and knees?

Do your children barge in unannounced when your neighbor is trying to take a nap or a shower?

Are you and your wife always ready to drop in to shoot the breeze with your neighbors when they are trying to get some household chores done?

Is your mower always on the blink forcing you to borrow your neighbor's?

Does your home and grounds at sunset look like a compost heap with garbage cans and bicycles still in the driveway?

If you have failed this test or part of it, now is the time to bring sweetness and light and brotherly love to suburbia. You might start. Forester says, by grounding the dog and curbing the children.

Tile Sills Can End Your Window Problem

Windowwills rank high on the list of all-time household nuisances. In any room, they are dust - catchers and frequently need sanding and repainting. In bathrooms, kitchens and laundries, they are easily damaged by steam and soap.

These annoyances can be reduced or eliminated for all time if you surface your windowsills with ceramic tile. What's more, you can do the job inexpenseively and, in the process, have some fun. Here's how:

Measure the sill area that you wish to have covered in tile. Then take the measuremnts to a tile contractor listed in the Yellow Pages under "Tile-Ceramic." He'll be able to show you an almost unlimited selection of colors, plus various sizes and shapes. If there is any cutting necessary, he'll do that, too.

From the tile contractor you can also purchase the adhesive you'll need to secure the tile to the windowsill and the grout for filling the small joints between the tiles.

You'll find it easy to install tile. The cost for a single window should be around $4, according to the Tile Council of America. If you're planning to to surface several windows, the cost will drop to about $3 per window, because there will be no additional expense for the adhesive and grout.

Dining Has Come Full Circle For Americans

Dining has come full circle since Americans deserted the dining room to eat off trays in front of the TV set in the 1950s.

Now they've rediscovered the dining room—but they're bringing the portable TV set in there with them.

"True, architects and builders have rediscovered the dining room and they're building them into homes that would not have had dining rooms a few years ago," he concedes.

"But the fact is that when TV came into the living room, so did the typical American family—dinner hour or no—even if they lived in an older home and had a perfectly good dining room standing empty."

Manufacturers like American of Chicago have noted a big new demand for dining room furniture—but find that families are going in for room arrangements that allow room to wheel in the portable TV, Steinfeld reports.

"The public is as TV-happy as ever—but all things being equal it's easier to eat at a table than to snatch a meal from a tray," he points out.

"There is something psychological about a dining room that slows dining down to a leisurely pace, even when there's a TV set in there too," he explains. to the TV screen, but sitting at a table, they are less likely to bolt their food. And lingering over coffee and dessert is making a comeback—because they have to wait till the end of a favorite show to wheel the TV back into the living room."

The big unanswered question in all this is still how people can eat when some of the programs are going on. But that's a matter for the medical profession, or anyhow TV critics.

Home Handyman Can Install Random Plank

Marlite Random Plank, an easy - to - handle plastic-surfaced hardboard product, makes it simple to create beautiful woodgrained interiors with strong visual interest.

Lumber dealers have it in six new Trendwood finishes — Provincial and American Walnut, Colonial Maple, English Oak, and Swedish and Italian Cherry.

Extremely easy to install, Random Plank can be handled by most home handymen. Tongue - and - groove edges make the planks fit easily together, with special adhesive and concealed metal clips completing the installation. The result is an uninterrrupted random - plank wall that complements any decor.

Random Plank can be applied directly to any solid backing or to horizontal furring strips placed 16" apart if the walls are uneven. The adhesive and clips are used in both cases.

Masonry walls should be waterproofed and furred before installation. The only tools needed for most installations are a hammer, saw and level. Complete information describing the washable woodgrain paneling can be obtained at lumber dealers.

Comedian Keeps Working While In Hospital

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Cedars of Lebanon Hospital may never be the same following the invasion by Allan Sherman.

The comedy songman checked into the hospital Dec. 1 for treatment of asthma and overweight. Since then he has written a television special and 200 pages of a book, keeping a secretary busy full time and entertaining a small squad of writers in rollicking story sessions.

The major result will be "Allan Sherman's Funnyland" on NBC Jan. 18 as forerunner for a possible series.

I dropped by Sherman's room one morning to check on his progress with scripts and scales. He was bleary-eyed and unshaven, looking somewhat like an undernourished Buddha. His doctor had just wakened him for a short consultation, pronounced him well and departed.

"I'm not quite in this world as yet," Sherman apologied. "I was up until 5 a.m. with Lou Busch working on the music for the show, and I didn't sleep until well after that." He called for a nurse to bring a scale.

Sherman padded around the bed and stepped up to weigh himself. "Hey — I broke the great barrier," he cried, awakening further. "I'm 199½. We'll call it 199, won't we, dear?" the nurse assented.

Sherman suffered an asthma attack in New York last November and submitted to an examination. The doctor pondered Sherman's weight — then 230 — and way of life, which includes playing night clubs and racing around at all hours. "The doctor's comment: "You're the most promising candidate for a heart attack I've ever seen."

"Being candidate for a heart attack didn't appeal to me," said Sherman. "I was invited by President Johnson to entertain at Austin on election even, but I canceled and went into the hospital. I dropped seven pounds in five days, then came out here to take off more.

"I plan to get down to 165, 170. Yeah, I know people tell me I might ruin my act by getting skinny. Well, this is the way I look at it: If people buy me because of my fat and not my personality, then I have no right to be in show business."

His loss of poundage — he is allowed 500 calories per day — seems to have no effect on the Sherman drive. Each afternoon the writers appear for a scrimmage with the script. All day Sherman is on the phone to agents, actors, executives, hammering out details for the show, which is being taped Jan. 12.

"Working in a hospital has its advantages," he observed. "No kids to bother you, room service any time, you can sleep whenever you want."

How do the other patients react to his activity?

"It doesn't seem to bother them," he said, "In fact, there was one lady from across the hall who used to come in her every morning and laugh and laugh at my jokes. Then one day her nurse came in and led her away, still laughing. I thought my material was great until I realized she was nuts."

Comedian Keeps Working While In Hospital

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Cedars of Lebanon Hospital may never be the same following the invasion by Allan Sherman.

The comedy songman checked into the hospital Dec. 1 for treatment of asthma and overweight. Since then he has written a television special and 200 pages of a book, keeping a secretary busy full time and entertaining a small squad of writers in rollicking story sessions.

The major result will be "Allan Sherman's Funnyland" on NBC Jan. 18 as forerunner for a possible series.

I dropped by Sherman's room one morning to check on his progress with scripts and scales. He was bleary-eyed and unshaven, looking somewhat like an undernourished Buddha. His doctor had just wakened him for a short consultation, pronounced him well and departed.

"I'm not quite in this world as yet," Sherman apologied. "I was up until 5 a.m. with Lou Busch working on the music for the show, and I didn't sleep until well after that." He called for a nurse to bring a scale.

Sherman padded around the bed and stepped up to weigh himself. "Hey — I broke the great barrier," he cried, awakening further. "I'm 199½. We'll call it 199, won't we, dear?" the nurse assented.

Sherman suffered an asthma attack in New York last November and submitted to an examination. The doctor pondered Sherman's weight — then 230 — and way of life, which includes playing night clubs and racing around at all hours. "The doctor's comment: "You're the most promising candidate for a heart attack I've ever seen."

"Being candidate for a heart attack didn't appeal to me," said Sherman. "I was invited by President Johnson to entertain at Austin on election even, but I canceled and went into the hospital. I dropped seven pounds in five days, then came out here to take off more.

"I plan to get down to 165, 170. Yeah, I know people tell me I might ruin my act by getting skinny. Well, this is the way I look at it: If people buy me because of my fat and not my personality, then I have no right to be in show business."

Four Sooners, Murdock to Miss Gator Bowl for Ineligibility

By F. T. MACFEELY
Associated Press Sports Writed

JACKSONVILLE Fla. (AP) — Four key Oklahoma players and Florida State's kicking specialist were withdrawn from the line-up Friday on the eve of the Gator Bowl in a furore over eligibility.

The 50,000 stadium spectators and the telecast viewers won't see Oklahoma's 261-pound tackle Ralph Neely; nor star runners Jim Grisham and Lance Rentzel; nor sub end Wes Skidgel in action.

Coach Gomer Jones immediately ruled them out after he learned less than 30 hours before kickoff time they had signed undated professional contracts.

Neely, Grisham and Rentzel were prime movers in the Oklahoma power attack that rated fifth in the nation.

One day earlier, Coach Bill Peterson of Florida State found out by a newspaper account that kicking specialist Les Murdock had enrolled at the University of Tampa in 1959, a year before he entered FSU, and was in his sixth year since entering college.

Late Friday, FSU took Murdock out of the line-up although officials said they believed he was eligible under a strict interpretation of the rules.

Oklahoma's ineligibility troubles reflected a struggle between the professional leagues for talent. All four players said they signed undated contracts in December — Neely with the Houston Oilers of the American Football League; the other three with the Minnesota Vikings of the National Football League.

Any one of three may start at right half in place of Rentzel, who was the Sooners' second leading runner, No. 1 pass receiver and regular punter. Mike Ringer and Tommy Pannel both juniors, and Bobby Robinson, a sophomore, were possible replacements.

Ringer, also first substitute for Larry Shields at safety, pulled a groin muscle early in the week. If he is recovered, he probably will start for Rentzel, providing safety man Shields is not bothered by a knee he twisted Monday.

Larry Brown is Oklahoma's best remaining runner. He gained 267 yards behind Grisham's 725 and Rentzel's 491 this season. Ben Hart, Negro split end, was second in pass receiving — eight catches for 235 yards while Rentezl caught 18 for 268.

Florida State, its role as favorite improved beyond the original three point margin, still has to face an intact Oklahoma defense with its star passing combination of Steve Tensi to All-America Fred Biletnikoff.

The 6 foot 5 Tensi completed 121 passes and Biletnikoff caught 57 of them this season.

Only if it comes to a question of a field goal, would the loss of Murdock hurt FSU. Phil Spooner, first string halfback and leading runner for the Seminoles will kick extra points and field goals. Tackle Tom West will handle kickoffs.

Spooner is a barefoot kicker who, Peterson said, has practiced regularly even though he hasn't placekicked in a game.

Texas, Michigan Celebrate Happy 1965

Koy, Hudson Carry Longhorns to Oranges

By WILL GRIMSLEY

MIAMI (AP) — Texas' workhorse Ernie Koy and sub quarterback Jim Hudson rocked national champion Alabama with two sledgehammer blows in the first 20 minutes but the Longhorns had to weather a dazzling air assault by injured Joe Namath for a 21-17 victory Friday night in the first Orange Bowl football game under the lights.

The 220-pound Koy raced 79 yards to a touchdown with 23 seconds left in the first quarter. Less than five minutes later Hudson a former safety man who never played on the offense until this year, shot a soaring 69-yard scoring pass to end George Sauer.

These were the blows that put the No. 1 ranked and previously unbeaten Crimson Tide in a hole from which they never recovered, although with less than six minutes to play the champions rammed their way to the Texas' one-half yard line and could go no farther.

Here Texas stiffened and three times the nation's fifth best defense threw back fullback Steve Bowman and thwarted a quarterback sneak by Namath.

It was a heart-breaking defeat for Namath, playing in tennis sneakers on a leg that throbbed with pain on every throw.

Setting an Orange Bowl record with 18 completions, he passed the Texans dizzy with short bullet heaves and long soaring spirals true to the mark to move into scoring territory. But it was Texas' night.

Namath was voted the game's most valuable player, beating out the hard-running and ever potent Koy.

"The pain was awful every time I tried a long one," he said.

Namath marshalled two comeback drives of 87 and 63 yards—the first midway of the second period and the second the third period.

The first scoring play was a seven-yarder to halfback Wayne Trimble in the end zone and the second was a 20-yard bullet to end Ray Perkins.

Alabama moved 30 yards to the 16 early in the fourth period and settled for a 6-yard field goal by ace place-kicker David Ray.

Coach Paul (Bear) Bryant and his Alabama partisans in the sellout crowd of 72,647 appeared supremely confident that Namath, with his golden arm that has drawn the biggest pro offer in history, would be able to score another touchdown.

This confidence appeared well-founded when Namath, now almost arrogant with the ease in which he operated, shot passes to big Ray Ogden and Steve Bowman and moved the ball to the six with first down and goal to go.

Bowman slammed to the three. Then he went to the two. The little fullback was sent into the middle to the one. Then Namath tried a quarterback sneak. Texas' defense held.

Bowman slammed to the three. Then he went to the two. The little fullback was sent into the middle to the one. Then Namath tried a quarterback sneak. Texas' defense held.

Moments later, when Alabama swarmed into the offensive again, Pete Lammons, who played a titanic role for Texas on defense, snared a pass on the Texas 32 and that was the ball game. There was less than three minutes to play and time ran out for Alabama.

Namath completed 18 of 37 passes for 255 yards, and no player in the history of this bowl game has ever hit as many.

He broke the record of 17 set by Frank Broyles of Georgia Tech against Tulsa in 1945 and Pat Stark of Syracuse against Alabama in 1953.

Koy, son of a former major league baseball player, was the leading ground gainer of the game. He ran for 145 yards in 24 tries for a 5.5 average.

Alabama's leading ground gainer was Bowman, with 23 yards in 10 carries. This gave an indication of the might of the Texas defense, rated fifth best in the country on the ground.

Hudson, the Texas sub quarterback who went into the game when No. 1 signal-caller Marvin Kristynik failed to get the team moving, threw 13 times for 101 yards.

Steve Sloan,, who started the game at quarterback for Alabama on a fragile knee hurt in the season's final game, threw seven times for 43 yards. He and Namath threw 44 passes between them—an Orange Bowl record.

The victory by once-beaten Texas, the national champion a year ago, continued the long-time jinx over Alabama and Bryant.

Alabama has never beaten a Texas team. This was victory No. 5, with one game ending in a tie. It was Texas Coach Darrell Royal's second victory over Bryant, who never has beaten him.

Namath Will Sign With Jets

MIAMI (AP) — Quarterback Joe Namath of Alabama's Orange Bowl team will sign for an estimated $400,000 Saturday, with New York of the American Football League Jets' Coach Weeb Ewbank said Friday night.

Ewbank said the signing would take place at a Miami Beach hotel.

Sources close to the Jets and the school said Namath would receive a three-year contract for $100,000 a year plus another $100,000 in bonuses and a new car. The contract would be the most expensive ever given a college player.

Namath also was selected by the St. Louis Cardinals of the National League. St. Louis officials said they dropped out of the bidding at $400,000.

Michigan Teams Exchange Notes

"Get a lead and keep it."

The message apparently referred to the narrow squeak the Michigan basketball forces had against Bill Bradley and Princeton, when the Wolverines had to make up a 12-point deficit in the last three minutes to win.

"Follow our example and rip Oregon State easily."

Razorbacks Quarterback Puts Down Cornhuskers

By HAROLD V. RATLIFF

DALLAS (AP) — Fred Marshall ran, passed and piloted Arkansas along 80 weary yards in the shadows of the Cotton Bowl Friday to bring the Razorbacks, the nation's No. 2 team, an undefeated, untied season and a 10-7 victory over Nebraska.

It was Arkansas' first victory in the Cotton Bowl in four efforts and had a crowd of 75,504 in a frenzy as Marshall, the comeback kid of the Razorbacks, passed for 61 yards and ran for 10 in the surge that finished with 4:41 left on the clock and the rain coming down.

	Nbe.	Ark.
First downs	11	11
Rushing yardage	100	45
Passing yardage	68	131
Passes	8-16	11-19
Passes intercepted by	1	2
Punts	6-33	6-40
Fumbles lost	0	2
Yards penalized	25	50

It was an amazing surge, coming as Arkansas, buffeted by the Nebraska defense all day, only once able to get in scoring territory as the result of a short Nebraska kick, seemed ready to be thwarted once more in the bid for the big one.

But Marshall, who had trouble making the team early this season, was not to be denied his last stab at glory. He threw passes to Jerry Lamb, Bobby Burnett and Jim Lindsey—two to the latter—and the Razorbacks moved smoothly and efficiently.

Once when Marshall seemed stopped he tore away from two Nebraskans and ran 10 yards to keep the surge going.

Arkansas scored first—a 31-yard field goal by Tom McKnelly—but that was the only threat from the Razorbacks until the great finish.

But McKnelly actually was the man who provided the difference, with his field goal and the extra point. It was the seventh field goal of the season for McKnelly. He scored 123 points in three years without the benefit of a touchdown.

The passing of Bob Churchich and the running and receiving of Harry Wilson, a couple of sophomores, had Nebraska in the game down to the last gun.

Nebraska got its touchdown midway of the second period with Churchich passing for 52 yards in a 69-yard drive. His 36-yard toss to Wilson on the Arkansas 18 set up the score. Two plays later Wilson slammed 10 yards to get within a yard of the goal and then he pounded over.

A 35-yard run by Wilson in the fourth quarter got Arkansas in deep trouble but the Razorback defense headed by Ronnie Caveness took charge.

Duncan Drum of Nebranka tried a field goal from the Arkansas 38 but it was short.

Marshall completed 11 of 19 passes for 131 yards and gave Arkansas a slight edge in total offense. Nebraska ran for 100 yards and the massive Cornhusker line held Arkansas to a bare 45. Arkansas limited Churchich to eight completions in 15 tries for 68 yards.

Wilson was the top runner with 84 yards on 12 carries. Arkansas held Frank Solich, the Nebraska rushing leader, to 34 yards on 11 tries.

Birds Host Four-Team Mat Meet

Wasson High will host a four team wrestling tournament at the Wasson Gymnasium this afternoon. In addition to the Thunderbirds, teams entered are Palmer, Fort Collins, and Boulder Fairview.

First round matches are scheduled to begin at 1:30 and should conclude around 3:15. There will then be a break and the finals should start at around 4.

Pairings for the tournament are made just prior to each match when two names are drawn, sending those two athletes against each other, with the other two meeting in a second match. Both matches in each weight will be run off at the same time and in the evening finals the championship and third place matches will also be wrestled on two mats starting at identical times.

Wasson will rate as a slight favorite to capture the title. George Kalber's Thunderbirds already own decisions over both Palmer and Fort Collins in dual competitions.

Young Skiers Score Wins At Alpine Holiday Classic

Rick Chaffee, University of Denver sophomore from Rutland, Vt., won the men's division and Cathy Nagel, 15-year-old high school junior from Enumclaw, Wash., led the feminine field.

Chaffee lost by only one-tenth of a second to Billy Kidd, University of Colorado skier and member of the U.S. Olympic team in Thursday's slalom.

Kidd posted the best time—one minute, 44 seconds—on the mile-long course Friday but was disqualified for missing two gates.

Chaffee made the run in 1:46, beating two Olympic team members from the University of Colorado. Bill Marolt had 1:46.3 and Jim Heuga 1:46.8.

Miss Nagel's winning time was 1:59. The next three girls finished within two-tenths of a second of one another, Jean Saubert of Oregon State, who won two medals at the Winter Olympics in Austria, finished fourth.

Eleven girls were disqualified, including Olympian Margo Walters of Salt Lake City. The race was run under ideal conditions—bright sunshine and hard snow.

A majority of the collegiate skiers taking part in the third annual Alpine training camp at Vail will compete in the New Year Intercollegiate tournament at Steamboat Springs, Colo., Saturday and Sunday.

Wolverines Scatter Ducks Before 100,000 Spectators

By BOB MYERS

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Fullback Mel Anthony ripped through the Oregon State defense on a record 84-yard touchdown run and started Michigan off to a smashing 34-7 victory over the Beavers in the 51st Rose Bowl game.

Performing before a packed bowl crowd of 100,423, the Wolverines from the Big Ten powered their way to the school's fourth straight triumph in the postseason classic, with nary a loss.

It ignited a team which had started slowly, trailing 7-0 at the time in the second quarter, and went on to gain momentum over a gallant but underdog, outmanned Oregon State squad.

Michigan halfback Carl Ward followed Anthony's mad dash with a 43-yard scoring dash, sending the Wolverines into a 12-7 lead at the half.

After a scoreless first quarter, sophomore quarterback Paul Brothers guided the spirited Beavers 84 yards in 17 plays most of them on his talented passing arm, and Oregon State hit the scoreboard first.

Mich—Ward 43 run (pass failed)
Mich—Anthony 1 run (Timberlake run)
Mich—Anthony 7 run (Timberlake kick)
Mich—Timberlake 34 run (Sygar kick)
Attendance 100 423.

By the time the scoring binge was over, Anthony added two more touchdowns, scoring from one and seven yards out, to chalk up 15 points in the third quarter for a 27-7 lead.

Big Bob Timberlake, Michigan's All-America, herded the Wolverines 54 yards on a fourth quarter drive and in his finest run of the bright afternoon, banged out the final 24 yards for a touchdown.

Oregon State, co-champions of the Athletic Association of Western Universities, could never get a ground attack going to compliment its overhead game.

The crowd had its laughs. Just before the half, a Michigan rooter with a great arm hurled a smoke bomb onto the field.

Bewildered officials trotted over to examine the flare. They could do nothing until it expired of its own strength.

The fumes were golden, Michigan's colors.

Then, of all things a tiny pig wandered onto the field. It sauntered into the end zone, then made it downfield the 100 yards and got a rousing ovation when it trotted across the goal line.

Michigan got the first scoring opportunity when Oregon State's Charlie Shaw fumbled and Tom Cecchini recovered for Michigan on the OSU 41.

The Wolverines drove to the 23 but Timberlake's try from the 30 for a field goal was short.

A bad break for Michigan led to the OSU touchdown. It was second and 19 on their own 18 and Brothers, by orders of Coach Tommy Prothro, elected to punt.

But a clipping penalty was called on Michigan's Dick Rindfuss. OSU got the ball back, with second and four yards to go, and that's when young Brothers took off.

They got the first down and Brothers hit on passes to Bob Grim for 24 to start it off.

Michigan blocked a punt by Mielke and recovered on the OSU 15. It took six plays for Anthony to plunge over from the one.

As the Beavers appeared to tire Michigan traveled 78 yards in seven plays to end the scoring in the third quarter. Anthony made it No. 3 for the day.

Gordon Queen, a senior who lost his quarterbacking job to Brothers, took over in the final minutes and got the Beavers down to the Wolverine five, but Michigan, by then having emptied its bench held and took over.

Anthony's big run started when he swung out to his right and down the Oregon State side of the field for a few yards. He then cut back across field and under great protection went all the way.

Ward's 43-yard sprint saw the swift halfback, like Anthony from Cincinnati, escape at least five tacklers on much the same maneuver as his teammate. Once free, no hand touched him.

The victory made it 15 out of 19 for the Big Ten teams since the series with the coast conference began in 1947.

CC Icers Pounce On Providence, 5-3

PROVIDENCE, R.I. — Bob Magie, skating at center for Jim Amidon who was kicked out of the game, turned the hat trick Friday night as Colorado College defeated Providence College, 5-3, in the first round of the Brown U. Hockey Tournament.

Magie replaced sophomore Amidon after he and Providence's Joe Sullivan took part in a second period fight and were banished from further action. Then the senior from Duluth, Minn., took passes from Warren Fordyce for two goals within 27 seconds of each other to boost CC into the lead after a scoreless opening stanza.

It was the second three-goal game of the year for Magie.

Dave Peterson scored the Tigers' third goal in the second period on assists from Steve Ebert and Jeff Sauer. CC had a fourth goal taken away at the second period buzzer.

Providence roared back to tie the count in the third period. Forward John Keough whipped in a goal on an assist from Grant Heffernan. Then John Doherty tallied twice to knot the score.

Mike Carter, CC goalie, played a magnificent game, making 39 hard saves. Carter was shaken in the second period and had to take a short rest from action. Providence Journal hockey writer Bob Englert said after the game that Carter did an outstanding job.

Four Sooners, Murdock to Miss Gator Bowl for Ineligibility

By F. T. MACFEELY
Associated Press Sports Writed

JACKSONVILLE Fla. (AP) — Four key Oklahoma players and Florida State's kicking specialist were withdrawn from the line-up Friday on the eve of the Gator Bowl in a furore over eligibility.

The 50,000 stadium spectators and the telecast viewers won't see Oklahoma's 261-pound tackle Ralph Neely; nor star runners Jim Grisham and Lance Rentzel; nor sub end Wes Skidgel in action.

Coach Gomer Jones immediately ruled them out after he learned less than 30 hours before kickoff time they had signed undated professional contracts.

Neely, Grisham and Rentzel were prime movers in the Oklahoma power attack that rated fifth in the nation.

One day earlier, Coach Bill Peterson of Florida State found out by a newspaper account that kicking specialist Les Murdock had enrolled at the University of Tampa in 1959, a year before he entered FSU, and was in his sixth year since entering college.

Late Friday, FSU took Murdock out of the line-up although officials said they believed he was eligible under a strict interpretation of the rules.

Oklahoma's ineligibility troubles reflected a struggle between the professional leagues for talent. All four players said they signed undated contracts in December — Neely with the Houston Oilers of the American Football League; the other three with the Minnesota Vikings of the National .Football League.

Any one of three may start at right half in place of Rentzel, who was the Sooners' second leading runner, No. 1 pass receiver and regular punter. Mike Ringer and Tommy Pannel both juniors, and Bobby Robinson, a sophomore, were possible replacements.

Ringer, also first substitute for Larry Shields at safety, pulled a groin muscle early in the week. If he is recovered, he probably will start for Rentzel, providing safety man Shields is not bothered by a knee he twisted Monday.

Larry Brown is Oklahoma's best remaining runner. He gained 267 yards behind Grisham's 725 and Rentzel's 491 this season. Ben Hart, Negro split end, was second in pass receiving — eight catches for 235 yards while Rentezl caught 18 for 268.

Florida State, its role as favorite improved beyond the original three point margin, still has to face an intact Oklahoma defense with its star passing combination of Steve Tensi to All-America Fred Biletnikoff.

The 6 foot 5 Tensi completed 121 passes and Biletnikoff caught 57 of them this season.

Only if it comes to a question of a field goal, would the loss of Murdock hurt FSU. Phil Spooner, first string halfback and leading runner for the Seminoles will kick extra points and field goals. Tackle Tom West will handle kickoffs.

Spooner is a barefoot kicker who, Peterson said, has practiced regularly even though he hasn't placekicked in a game.

Texas, Michigan Celebrate Happy 1965

Koy, Hudson Carry Longhorns to Oranges

By WILL GRIMSLEY

MIAMI (AP) — Texas' workhorse Ernie Koy and sub quarterback Jim Hudson rocked national champion Alabama with two sledgehammer blows in the first 20 minutes but the Longhorns had to weather a dazzling air assault by injured Joe Namath for a 21-17 victory Friday night in the first Orange Bowl football game under the lights.

The 220-pound Koy raced 79 yards to a touchdown with 23 seconds left in the first quarter. Less than five minutes later Hudson a former safety man who never played on the offense until this year, shot a soaring 69-yard scoring pass to end George Sauer.

These were the blows that put the No. 1 ranked and previously unbeaten Crimson Tide in a hole from which they never recovered, although with less than six minutes to play the champions rammed their way to the Texas' one-half yard line and could go no farther.

Here Texas stiffened and three times the nation's fifth best defense threw back fullback Steve Bowman and thwarted a quarterback sneak by Namath.

It was a heart-breaking defeat for Namath, playing in tennis sneakers on a leg that throbbed with pain on every throw.

Setting an Orange Bowl record with 18 completions, he passed the Texans dizzy with short bullet heaves and long soaring spirals true to the mark to move into scoring territory. But it was Texas' night.

Namath was voted the game's most valuable player, beating out the hard-running and ever potent Koy.

"The pain was awful every time I tried a long one," he said.

Namath marshalled two comeback drives of 87 and 63 yards—the first midway of the second period and the second the third period.

The first scoring play was a seven-yarder to halfback Wayne Trimble in the end zone and the second was a 20-yard bullet to end Ray Perkins.

Alabama moved 30 yards to the 16 early in the fourth period and settled for a 6-yard field goal by ace place-kicker David Ray.

Coach Paul (Bear) Bryant and his Alabama partisans in the sellout crowd of 72,647 appeared supremely confident that Namath, with his golden arm that has drawn the biggest pro offer in history, would be able to score another touchdown.

This confidence appeared well-founded when Namath, now almost arrogant with the ease in which he operated, shot passes to big Ray Ogden and Steve Bowman and moved the ball to the six with first down and goal to go.

Bowman slammed to the three. Then he went to the two. The little fullback was sent into the middle to the one. Then Namath tried a quarterback sneak. Texas' defense held.

Bowman slammed to the three. Then he went to the two. The little fullback was sent into the middle to the one. Then Namath tried a quarterback sneak. Texas' defense held.

Moments later, when Alabama swarmed into the offensive again, Pete Lammons, who played a titanic role for Texas on defense, snared a pass on the Texas 32 and that was the ball game. There was less than three minutes to play and time ran out for Alabama.

Namath completed 18 of 37 passes for 255 yards, and no player in the history of this bowl game has ever hit as many.

He broke the record of 17 set by Frank Broyles of Georgia Tech against Tulsa in 1945 and Pat Stark of Syracuse against Alabama in 1953.

Koy, son of a former major league baseball player, was the leading ground gainer of the game. He ran for 145 yards in 24 tries for a 5.5 average.

Alabama's leading ground gainer was Bowman, with 23 yards in 10 carries. This gave an indication of the might of the Texas defense, rated fifth best in the country on the ground.

Hudson, the Texas sub quarterback who went into the game when No. 1 signal-caller Marvin Kristynik failed to get the team moving, threw 13 times for 101 yards.

Steve Sloan,, who started the game at quarterback for Alabama on a fragile knee hurt in the season's final game, threw seven times for 43 yards. He and Namath threw 44 passes between them—an Orange Bowl record.

The victory by once-beaten Texas, the national champion a year ago, continued the long-time jinx over Alabama and Bryant.

Alabama has never beaten a Texas team. This was victory No. 5, with one game ending in a tie. It was Texas Coach Darrell Royal's second victory over Bryant, who never has beaten him.

Wolverines Scatter Ducks Before 100,000 Spectators

By BOB MYERS

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Fullback Mel Anthony ripped through the Oregon State defense on a record 84-yard touchdown run and started Michigan off to a smashing 34-7 victory over the Beavers in the 51st Rose Bowl game.

Performing before a packed bowl crowd of 100,423, the Wolverines from the Big Ten powered their way to the school's fourth straight triumph in the postseason classic, with nary a loss.

It ignited a team which had started slowly, trailing 7-0 at the time in the second quarter, and went on to gain momentum over a gallant but underdog, outmanned Oregon State squad.

Michigan halfback Carl Ward followed Anthony's mad dash with a 43-yard scoring dash, sending the Wolverines into a 12-7 lead at the half.

After a scoreless first quarter, sophomore quarterback Paul Brothers guided the spirited Beavers 84 yards in 17 plays most of them on his talented passing arm, and Oregon State hit the scoreboard first.

Attendance 100 423.

By the time the scoring binge was over, Anthony added two more touchdowns, scoring from one and seven yards out, to chalk up 15 points in the third quarter for a 27-7 lead.

Big Bob Timberlake, Michigan's All-America, herded the Wolverines 54 yards on a fourth quarter drive and in his finest run of the bright afternoon, banged out the final 24 yards for a touchdown.

Oregon State, co-champions of the Athletic Association of Western Universities, could never get a ground attack going to compliment its overhead game.

The crowd had its laughs. Just before the half, a Michigan rooter with a great arm hurled a smoke bomb onto the field.

Bewildered officials trotted over to examine the flare. They could do nothing until it expired of its own strength.

The fumes were golden, Michigan's colors.

Then, of all things a tiny pig wandered onto the field. It sauntered into the end zone, then made it downfield the 100 yards and got a rousing ovation when it trotted across the goal line.

Michigan got the first scoring opportunity when Oregon State's Charlie Shaw fumbled and Tom Cecchini recovered for Michigan on the OSU 41.

The Wolverines drove to the 23 but Timberlake's try from the 30 for a field goal was short.

A bad break for Michigan led to the OSU touchdown. It was second and 19 on their own 18 and Brothers, by orders of Coach Tommy Prothro, elected to punt.

But a clipping penalty was called on Michigan's Dick Rindfuss. OSU got the ball back, with second and four yards to go, and that's when young Brothers took off.

They got the first down and Brothers hit on passes to Bob Grim for 24 to start it off.

Michigan blocked a punt by Mielke and recovered on the OSU 15. It took six plays for Anthony to plunge over from the one.

As the Beavers appeared to tire Michigan traveled 78 yards in seven plays to end the scoring in the third quarter. Anthony made it No. 3 for the day.

Gordon Queen, a senior who lost his quarterbacking job to Brothers, took over in the final minutes and got the Beavers down to the Wolverine five, but Michigan, by then having emptied its bench held and took over.

Anthony's big run started when he swung out to his right and down the Oregon State side of the field for a few yards. He then cut back across field and under great protection went all the way.

Ward's 43-yard sprint saw the swift halfback, like Anthony from Cincinnati, escape at least five tacklers on much the same maneuver as his teammate. Once free, no hand touched him.

The victory made it 15 out of 19 for the Big Ten teams since the series with the coast conference began in 1947.

CC Icers Pounce On Providence, 5-3

PROVIDENCE, R.I. — Bob Magie, skating at center for Jim Amidon who was kicked out of the game, turned the hat trick Friday night as Colorado College defeated Providence College, 5-3, in the first round of the Brown U. Hockey Tournament.

Magie replaced sophomore Amidon after he and Providence's Joe Sullivan took part in a second period fight and were banished from further action. Then the senior from Duluth, Minn., took passes from Warren Fordyce for two goals within 27 seconds of each other to boost CC into the lead after a scoreless opening stanza.

It was the second three-goal game of the year for Magie.

Dave Peterson scored the Tigers' third goal in the second period on assists from Steve Ebert and Jeff Sauer. CC had a fourth goal taken away at the second period buzzer.

Providence roared back to tie the count in the third period. Forward John Keough whipped in a goal on an assist from Grant Heffernan. Then John Doherty tallied twice to knot the score.

Mike Carter, CC goalie, played a magnificent game, making 39 hard saves. Carter was shaken in the second period and had to take a short rest from action. Providence Journal hockey writer Bob Englert said after the game that Carter did an outstanding job.

Track Discovers Drugged Horses

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) —Tropical Park stewards said Friday that traces of a prohibited drug have been found in the urine analysis of two horses that won races Dec. 23, Esquent and Peniel Lady.

The medication, phenylephrine, was discovered by a chemist for the State Racing Commission.

The mutuel payoffs cannot be affected, but the purse money will be taken away from the winners and redistributed among the horses that finished second, third, fourth and fifth.

Namath Will Sign With Jets

MIAMI (AP) — Quarterback Joe Namath of Alabama's Orange Bowl team will sign for an estimated $400,000 Saturday, with New York of the American Football League Jets' Coach Weeb Ewbank said Friday night.

Ewbank said the signing would take place at a Miami Beach hotel.

Sources close to the Jets and the school said Namath would receive a three-year contract for $100,000 a year plus another $100,000 in bonuses and a new car. The contract would be the most expensive ever given a college player.

Namath also was selected by the St. Louis Cardinals of the National League. St. Louis officials said they dropped out of the bidding at $400,000.

Michigan Teams Exchange Notes

"Get a lead and keep it."

The message apparently referred to the narrow squeak the Michigan basketball forces had against Bill Bradley and Princeton, when the Wolverines had to make up a 12-point deficit in the last three minutes to win.

"Follow our example and rip Oregon State easily."

Razorbacks Quarterback Puts Down Cornhuskers

By HAROLD V. RATLIFF

DALLAS (AP) — Fred Marshall ran, passed and piloted Arkansas along 80 weary yards in the shadows of the Cotton Bowl Friday to bring the Razorbacks, the nation's No. 2 team, an undefeated, untied season and a 10-7 victory over Nebraska.

It was Arkansas' first victory in the Cotton Bowl in four efforts and had a crowd of 75,504 in a frenzy as Marshall, the comeback kid of the Razorbacks, passed for 61 yards and ran for 10 in the surge that finished with 4:41 left on the clock and the rain coming down.

	Nbe.	Ark.
First downs	11	11
Rushing yardage	100	45
Passing yardage	68	131
Passes	8-16	11-19
Passes intercepted by	1	2
Punts	6-33	6-40
Fumbles lost	0	2
Yards penalized	25	50

It was an amazing surge, coming as Arkansas, buffeted by the Nebraska defense all day, only once able to get in scoring territory as the result of a short Nebraska kick, seemed ready to be thwarted once more in the bid for the big one.

But Marshall, who had trouble making the team early this season, was not to be denied his last stab at glory. He threw passes to Jerry Lamb, Bobby Burnett and Jim Lindsey—two to the latter—and the Razorbacks moved smoothly and efficiently.

Once when Marshall seemed stopped he tore away from two Nebraskans and ran 10 yards to keep the surge going.

Arkansas scored first—a 31-yard field goal by Tom McKnelly—but that was the only threat from the Razorbacks until the great finish.

But McKnelly actually was the man who provided the difference, with his field goal and the extra point. It was the seventh field goal of the season for McKnelly. He scored 123 points in three years without the benefit of a touchdown.

The passing of Bob Churchich and the running and receiving of Harry Wilson, a couple of sophomores, had Nebraska in the game down to the last gun.

Nebraska got its touchdown midway of the second period with Churchich passing for 52 yards in a 69-yard drive. His 36-yard toss to Wilson on the Arkansas 18 set up the score. Two plays later Wilson slammed 10 yards to get within a yard of the goal and then he pounded over.

A 35-yard run by Wilson in the fourth quarter got Arkansas in deep trouble but the Razorback defense headed by Ronnie Caveness took charge.

Duncan Drum of Nebranka tried a field goal from the Arkansas 38 but it was short.

Marshall completed 11 of 19 passes for 131 yards and gave Arkansas a slight edge in total offense. Nebraska ran for 100 yards and the massive Cornhusker line held Arkansas to a bare 45. Arkansas limited Churchich to eight completions in 15 tries for 68 yards.

Wilson was the top runner with 84 yards on 12 carries. Arkansas held Frank Solich, the Nebraska rushing leader, to 34 yards on 11 tries.

Birds Host Four-Team Mat Meet

Wasson High will host a four team wrestling tournament at the Wasson Gymnasium this afternoon. In addition to the Thunderbirds, teams entered are Palmer, Fort Collins, and Boulder Fairview.

First round matches are scheduled to begin at 1:30 and should conclude around 3:15. There will then be a break and the finals should start at around 4.

Pairings for the tournament are made just prior to each match when two names are drawn, sending those two athletes against each other, with the other two meeting in a second match. Both matches in each weight will be run off at the same time and in the evening finals the championship and third place matches will also be wrestled on two mats starting at identical times.

Wasson will rate as a slight favorite to capture the title. George Kalber's Thunderbirds already own decisions over both Palmer and Fort Collins in dual competitions.

Young Skiers Score Wins At Alpine Holiday Classic

Rick Chaffee, University of Denver sophomore from Rutland, Vt., won the men's division and Cathy Nagel, 15-year-old high school junior from Enumclaw, Wash., led the feminine field.

Chaffee lost by only one-tenth of a second to Billy Kidd, University of Colorado skier and member of the U.S. Olympic team in Thursday's slalom.

Kidd posted the best time—one minute, 44 seconds—on the mile-long course Friday but was disqualified for missing two gates.

Chaffee made the run in 1:46, beating two Olympic team members from the University of Colorado. Bill Marolt had 1:46.3 and Jim Heuga 1:46.8.

Miss Nagel's winning time was 1:59. The next three girls finished within two-tenths of a second of one another, Jean Saubert of Oregon State, who won two medals at the Winter Olympics in Austria, finished fourth.

Eleven girls were disqualified, including Olympian Margo Walters of Salt Lake City. The race was run under ideal conditions—bright sunshine and hard snow.

A majority of the collegiate skiers taking part in the third annual Alpine training camp at Vail will compete in the New Year Intercollegiate tournament at Steamboat Springs, Colo., Saturday and Sunday.

Field Goal Clinches LSU Victory

By BOB HOOBING

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Flanker Doug Moreau kicked a 28-yard field goal with 3:51 remaining and completed Louisiana State's second half rally Friday for a 13-10 victory over Syracuse in the first fully integrated Sugar Bowl football game.

Moreau earlier caught a 57-yard scoring pass plan from alternate quarterback Billy Ezell in tht third quarter.

Stunned by an early 10-2 Syracuse lead, LSU continuously applied the defensive presure for which it is noted to contain the easterners touchdown twins, Jim Nance and Floyd Little.

Moreau, te nation's leading field goal kicker with 13 during the season including three-game winners and a boot that brought a tie, split the uprights at an angle in the pulsating finish.

Pat Screen, the talented quarterback with the oft-injured right knee which he'll have operated upon Jan. 4, put the Tigers in scoring position in a masterful drive battling the clock. He picked up 29 yards on a rollout and passed 35 yards to Joe Labruzzo on the 19.

The victory was the eighth straight by a Southeastern Conference team in the Sugar Bowl classic but marked the first visit of a non-Southern-Southwestern representative since 1956 when Georgia Tech edged Pitt 7-0. That was the game in which the only Negro to appear here previously, Bobby Grier, was charged with the pass interception which set up Tech's score.

Syracuse had eight Negroes on its squad and there were no incidents inside the stadium.

Syracuse, the nation's most powerful running team, leaned on its defense, instead for its first period touchdown. Its lesser known defense, known as the Spiders, clicked when Dennis Reilly blocked Buster Brown's punt at the LSU 45.

Earlier in the quarter Roger Smith, who hadn't kicked a field goal all year, opened the scoring by booting a 23-yarder.

Quarterback Walley Mahle, operating at right halfback for the first time as advertised, barged down to the four on a drive which opened at the Syracuse 20. But a holding penalty and the LSU defenders slammed the door and Smith got three points.

Moreau, an end last year switched to flanker to key the new Tiger offense, was easily the choice as outstanding player. He is the son of a former LSU track coach and learned the kicking art in his backyard booting over a telephone wire. He tied a national record with his 13 field goals this season.

Louisiana State, which did not allow Syracuse to puncture its famed Chinese Bandit defensive unit for a score from scrimmage, staged its great 75-yard march in seven plays in the third quarter.

His touchdown pass had a touch of genius. He was running to his right, momentarily lost control of the ball, then quickly arched a long pass to Doug Moreau, key receiver in the Tiger flanker offense. Moreau had outrun the defense, grabbed the ball in full flight at the 24 and completed the sensational maneuver.

Ezell came back with his tying two-pointer on a flip to Labruzzo. The latter wrenched the ball out of the handn of defender Jim Cheyunski at the two and spun just inside the end zone flag.

LSU had been practicing the long bomb since it began practice for the bowl game and had receivers open much of the time. Pass defense had been the clink in Syracus armor all year.

The high, hanging punts of Brown kept Syracuse in poor field position in the first half. Two were downed at the two and three yard lines, respectively. the first led to a safety when tackle George Rice nailed Little, the slick running sophomore, in the end zone almost the instant he received a pitchout.

While scattered pickets strolled outside the huge Tulane University enclosure carrying banners reading "Integration has ruined the Sugar Bowl," a disappointing crowd entimated at 65,000 watched a hard, clean scrap.

Reasons given for the attendance considerably less than the 82,000 capacity were the final game losses suffered by both participants, failure to back out local television and, to a lesser degree, the racial issue.

McClendon Happy to Win By 'One Point or Three'

By BEN THOMAS

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — "One point or three, I'm tickled to death to win," Louisiana State Coach Charlie McClendon said Friday after his football Tigers came from behind to defeat Syracuse 13-10 in the Sugar Bowl.

"I think our defense was tired in the second half," said Schwartzwalder, who has never defeated a Southeastern Conference team. The last time Syracuse played an SEC team was in the 1953 Orange Bowl and Alabama won 61-6.

McClendon, urged by photographers to sit next to flanker back Doug Moreau, who kicked the game-winning field goal as well as catching a 57-yard touchdown pass, said "Dougie was great but I wish I could get about 15 more with me."

Turning to defensive back Jerry Joseph, McClendon said "Did you know Jerry's mama was the first Sugar Bowl queen?"

McClendon thought his team did an effective job of stopping Syracuse's highly touted sophomore back, Floyd Little.

"But that Jim Nance," McClendon added. "He got into us for some yardage."

"I've got to give a lot of credit to Pat Screen," McClendon said. "That long run of his sure saved the day for us."

Screen got away midway in the fourth quarter and moved the Tigers into field goal kicking range.

Moreau was kicking into the sun, but it slipped behind a cloud just before he booted.

"I wasn't thinking about the sun, but I'm sure glad it didn't come out," said Moreau.

McClendon said Syracuse presented an offense "different from what we expected. They ran from the slot at times and we hadn't seen that in any of their films."

Even though Syracuse was ahead 10-2 at intermission, Schwartzwalder said "Our first half was terrible offensively and our statistics were poor. . . . If we could have kept the ball more in the first half, the boys wouldn't have been so tired.

"Neither one of our quarterbacks threw too well and I think that was one of our problems."

Schwartzwalder agreed with McClendon that Screen's bootleg run in tht fourth quarter was "probably the turning point."

Little said LSU was "terrific on gang tackling and their pursuit was too much for us to handle. I didn't have any break away runs because LSU's pursuit was so fast that when I got to a hole I'd meet four or five guys there."

Little, a Negro, said that LSU showed no prejudice.

Smith Smashes 300 Mark In Orange Track Meet

By KELSO STURGEON
Associated Press Sports Witer

MIAMI Fla. (AP) — Grady Smith, a powerful sprinter from Florida A&M, stole the show in the Orange Bowl track meet Friday by smashing a 45-year-old American record in the 300-yard dash.

Smith knocked two-tenths of a second off the record for this seldom-run event by hitting the tape in 30 seconds flat. Charlie Paddock set the record at 30.2 in 1920.

George Anderson of Louisiana's Southern University was just a half-step behind Smith and also was clocked under the record.

The 6-7, 275-pound Olympic silver medal winner from Texas A &M put the 16-pound lead ball the record distance on the second of his six attempts.

"I just didn't have comfortable form today," Matson said. "Something wasn't going right. Maybe it's just that I didn't have enough practice."

"I didn't know until a couple of weeks ago that I was coming here and just couldn't get ready properly," he explained.

Many meet officials, who had watched Matson toss the shot about 65 feet in practice this week, felt he might break Dallas Long's world record of 67-10.

The old meet mark of 59-7½ was set last year by Gary Gubner of New York University.

The Southern University relay team—made up of Alex Booker, Albert Williams, James Wirden and George Anderson—broke Florida A&M's meet record in the 440-yard relay with a lightning-fast clocking of 41.1 seconds.

This time compared with the old meet standard of 42.6 and the world record of 40 seconds.

Southern's Theron Lewis put another meet record in the books in the 440-yard dash when he was clocked in 47.1—compared with the old mark of 47.6.

George Anderson of Southern captured the 100 yard dash in 9.5 seconds while the mile was won by Coppey Vickers of Tennessee in 4:16.5

O-State Coach Blames Loss on Poor Defense

By CHARLES MAHER

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — "We had a fine season," said Oregon State Coach Tommy Prothro Friday. "It's a shame it had to end on a note like this."

The Beavers lost to Michigan 34-7 in the Rose Bowl and Prothro said their strongest point during the regular season was unaccountably their weakest on New Year's Day.

"If anything carried us this season," Prothro said, "it was defense. I felt our offense did as well as could be expected today, but not our defense."

Half way through the second period, the Beavers were ahead 7-0. In the next 2½ quarters, they were outscored five touchdowns to none.

"Either they picked up the tempo a lot," Prothro said, "or we dropped off—and I think it was a lot of both.

"I've never felt there were turning points very often in football games, but I'll tell you the play that hurt us most. It was when we were ahead 7-0 and had 'em back on their 16 and let 'em go all the way on that one play (a record-breaking 84-yard run by fullback Mel Anthony).

Some Southern California writers had suggested in recent days that Oregon State should never have gotten into the game and that the Athletic Association of Western Universities should have sent Southern California instead. Prothro was asked how he felt about this.

"Well," he said, "I think with all due respect we could have beaten the Los Angeles sports writers today. Of course, they're a little past their prime."

He was asked which Michigan players hurt Oregon State most. He said Bob Timberlake, the Wolverines' All-America quarterback, was "a good passer and a real good player all around," but "the whole Michigan team hurt us."

"We ran into a real fine defensive team, and a better offensive team than I had anticipated."

Al East, Oregon State's defensive right end, said Anthony "was the greatest back we faced all season."

"Defense was our strong suit all year," East said, "but today when our ends tried to crash they couldn't penetrate. That was the tip-off."

Quarterback Paul Brothers was asked about the Oregon State running game, which made only 64 yards all day.

"We thought if we hit with the passes a little it would open up our running games," he said. "But we just ran into a smart defense. If you hit passes against most teams you can start running, but this team just shut us off both ways.

"We were ready for the game," Brothers said, "but after we scored we had a real bad letdown."

Macedonia Runs Away With Race

CORAL GABLES, Fla. (AP) — Macedonia, making his first start at Tropical Park meeting, ran away with the $15,000-added New Year's Handicap Friday.

The winner ran six furlongs in 1:09 2-5 and as the second choice with the crowd of 15,528 paid $6.80, $3.80 and $3. Second Breakfast, an entry with Silver Monarch, paid $4.60 and $3. Boston Sailor paid $4.60.

Trader, which won the Coral Gables Handicap in his only previous start here, went off the 9-5 favorite but never was a factor. He was fourth at the half-mile pole but dropped back steadily thereafter and finished eighth in the 11-horse field.

Macedonia broke on the pace and stayed there, running head and head with Boston Sailor and Happy Angle down the backstretch and still was under wraps to the quarter pole.

Second Breakfast closed fast on the outside to get second money, Boston Sailor hanging on for third. Receptive's late rush got him home fourth, with Temper fifth and Happy Angle a tiring sixth.

Macedonia, a 5-year-old son of Olympia, now has been in the money 11 straight times. He won four of 21 starts last year and was in the money 16 times. His most important victory in 1964 was in the Stuyvesant Handicap at Aqueduct last Dec. 5.

Macedonia's victory completed the twin double which paid $28,645.20. Three tickets were sold on the 2-10-4-7 combination. The daily double paid $91 on Nimbus Cloud, $12, and Who Will $18.40.

Big 8 Chief Criticizes Pro Teams

DALLAS (AP) — Wayne Duke, executive director of the Big Eight Conference, issued a statement here Friday regarding the signing to pro football contracts of four Oklahoma football players.

He said a wire had been sent to Commissioners Pete Rozelle of the National Football League and Joe Foss of the American Football League protesting the actions and citing the conference's intentions of placing the matter before the NCAA convention Jan. 11-13 at Chicago.

Oklahoma ruled ineligible Friday for the Gator Bowl game in Jacksonville, Fla., Saturday the four key players who had signed the contracts — backs Jim Grisham, Lance Rentzel and Wes Skidgel, with Minnesota of the NFL, and tackle Ralph Neely with Houston of the AFL.

"This prompt action by the University of Oklahoma and head Coach Gomer Jones is to be highly commended and represents a most courageous step," said Duke of the Oklahoma action in ruling the players ineligible.

"The necessity of such action emphasizes the selfish interest of professional football, its complete disregard for the welfare of the intercollegiate program and the individual student-athlete upon which it must rely for its very existence."

Duke made the announcement just before the start of the Cotton Bowl game between Nebraska of the Big Eight and Arkansas of the Southwest Conference.

The wire Duke sent to Rozelle and Foss said the actions of Minnesota and Houston "violate all rules of the Big Eight Conference and the National Collegiate Athletic Association, as well as often-stated rules and intentions by your two organizations to cooperate fully with college and high school bodies.

"Press reports of the past several weeks concerning the illegal signing of college players would indicate that these are not isolated cases, but reflect the selfish and irresponsible attitudes of professional football interests.

"Such total disregard for the welfare of intercollegiate football prompts this conference to urge the NCAA to adopt at its meetings in Chicago next week effective measures designed to eliminate such practices."

Wolverines Seek Grasp On Top Slot

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Michigan Wolverines seek to maintain their top ranking in The Associated Press college basketball poll and the king of the Queen City Tournament will be crowned Saturday in windup action on two holiday tourney fronts.

The Wolverines meet St. John's, N.Y., for the championship of the Eastern College Athletic Conference Holiday Festival in the finale of a tripleheader in Madison Square Garden.

Princeton meets Cincinnati for third place and LaSalle takes on Syracuse in the consolation opener.

Michigan, led by Cazzie Russell, is a seven-point favorite to beat the Redmen. Each team just managed to move into the final Wednesday night, the Wolverines on Russell's pop shot with three seconds left and St. John's on Jerry Houston's two free throws with two seconds remaining.

Michigan, in fact, made a remarkable comeback after Princeton star Bill Bradley fouled out, overcoming a 10-point Tiger lead in the last two minutes.

In the Queen City in Buffalo, N.Y., unbeaten Connecticut faces Virginia for the title. The Huskies, 8-0, beat Cornell 75-63 and Virginia whipped Cornell 64-61 in the first round Thursday night.

Four other teams among the top ten will see action Saturday. Minnesota, No. 3, is home to Detroit. Duke, No. 8, plays Wake Forest at Greensboro, N.C., St. Louis, No. 9, entertains Drake and 10th ranked St. Joseph's, Pa., is at Providence.

Other major games include Georgia Tech at Ohio State, Dartmouth at Kentucky, Yale at North Carolina State, and Tennessee at Vanderbilt.

Field Goal Clinches LSU Victory

By BOB HOOBING

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Flanker Doug Moreau kicked a 28-yard field goal with 3:51 remaining and completed Louisiana State's second half rally Friday for a 13-10 victory over Syracuse in the first fully integrated Sugar Bowl football game.

Moreau earlier caught a 57-yard scoring pass plan from alternate quarterback Billy Ezell in tht third quarter.

Stunned by an early 10-2 Syracuse lead, LSU continuously applied the defensive presure for which it is noted to contain the easterners touchdown twins, Jim Nance and Floyd Little.

Syracuse	10	0	0	0—10
Louisiana St.	2	0	8	3—13

Nor-FG Smith 27
LSU-Safety Little tackled by Rice in end zone
Syr-Clarke 28 run with blocked punt (Smith kick)
LSU-Moreau 57 pass from Ezell (Labruzzo pass from Ezell)
LSU-FG Moreau 28
Attendance 65,000.

Pat Screen, the talented quarterback with the oft-injured right knee which he'll have operated upon Jan. 4, put the Tigers in scoring position in a masterful drive battling the clock. He picked up 29 yards on a rollout and passed 35 yards to Joe Labruzzo on the 19.

The victory was the eighth straight by a Southeastern Conference team in the Sugar Bowl classic but marked the first visit of a non-Southern-Southwestern representative since 1956 when Georgia Tech edged Pitt 7-0. That was the game in which the only Negro to appear here previously, Bobby Grier, was charged with the pass interception which set up Tech's score.

Syracuse had eight Negroes on its squad and there were no incidents inside the stadium.

He was asked which Michigan players hurt Oregon State most. He said Bob Timberlake, the Wolverines' All-America quarterback, was "a good passer and a real good player all around," but "the whole Michigan team hurt us."

"We ran into a real fine defensive team, and a better offensive team than I had anticipated."

Al East, Oregon State's defensive right end, said Anthony "was the greatest back we faced all season."

"Defense was our strong suit all year," East said, "but today when our ends tried to crash they couldn't penetrate. That was the tip-off."

Quarterback Paul Brothers was asked about the Oregon State running game, which made only 64 yards all day.

"We thought if we hit with the passes a little it would open up our running games," he said. "But we just ran into a smart defense. If you hit passes against most teams you can start running, but this team just shut us off both ways.

"We were ready for the game," Brothers said, "but after we scored we had a real bad letdown."

Ghana Boxer KOs Mastellaro in Two

Macedonia Runs Away With Race

CORAL GABLES, Fla. (AP) — Macedonia, making his first start at Tropical Park meeting, ran away with the $15,000-added New Year's Handicap Friday.

The winner ran six furlongs in 1:09 2-5 and as the second choice with the crowd of 15,528 paid $6.80, $3.80 and $3. Second Breakfast, an entry with Silver Monarch, paid $4.60 and $3. Boston Sailor paid $4.60.

Trader, which won the Coral Gables Handicap in his only previous start here, went off the 9-5 favorite but never was a factor. He was fourth at the half-mile pole but dropped back steadily thereafter and finished eighth in the 11-horse field.

Macedonia broke on the pace and stayed there, running head and head with Boston Sailor and Happy Angle down the backstretch and still was under wraps to the quarter pole.

Second Breakfast closed fast on the outside to get second money, Boston Sailor hanging on for third. Receptive's late rush got him home fourth, with Temper fifth and Happy Angle a tiring sixth.

Macedonia, a 5-year-old son of Olympia, now has been in the money 11 straight times. He won four of 21 starts last year and was in the money 16 times. His most important victory in 1964 was in the Stuyvesant Handicap at Aqueduct last Dec. 5.

Macedonia's victory completed the twin double which paid $26,645.20. Three tickets were sold on the 2-10-4-7 combination. The daily double paid $91 on Nimbus Cloud, $12, and Who Will $18.40.

Wolverines Seek Grasp On Top Slot

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Michigan Wolverines seek to maintain their top ranking in The Associated Press college basketball poll and the king of the Queen City Tournament will be crowned Saturday in windup action on two holiday tourney fronts.

The Wolverines meet St. John's, N.Y., for the championship of the Eastern College Athletic Conference Holiday Festival in the finale of a tripleheader in Madison Square Garden.

Princeton meets Cincinnati for third place and LaSalle takes on Syracuse in the consolation opener.

Michigan, led by Cazzie Russell, is a seven-point favorite to beat the Redmen. Each team just managed to move into the final Wednesday night, the Wolverines on Russell's pop shot with three seconds left and St. John's on Jerry Houston's two free throws with two seconds remaining.

Michigan, in fact, made a remarkable comeback after Princeton star Bill Bradley fouled out, overcoming a 10-point Tiger lead in the last two minutes.

In the Queen City in Buffalo, N.Y., unbeaten Connecticut faces Virginia for the title. The Huskies, 8-0, beat Cornell 75-63 and Virginia whipped Cornell 64-61 in the first round Thursday night.

Four other teams among the top ten will see action Saturday. Minnesota, No. 3, is home to Detroit. Duke, No. 8, plays Wake Forest at Greensboro, N.C., St. Louis, No. 9, entertains Drake and 10th ranked St. Joseph's, Pa., is at Providence.

Other major games include Georgia Tech at Ohio State, Dartmouth at Kentucky, Yale at North Carolina State, and Tennessee at Vanderbilt.

Young Terrors Appear So-So in Warmup Action

By MORRIS FRASER
Gazette Telegraph Sports Writer

On paper, Palmer's basketball team is couched somewhere in the anonymous middle of the pre-south Central League standings.

Its record, 3-3, is far from the best, but tops the losing trend of Pueblo South and Wasson. But those two teams have shown better scoring offenses than the Terrors and South has a better defensive mark. Palmer has won its trio of games by an average of nine points, a long fast break from Central's 15.8 victory margins. And even Wasson, though it has won but two games, captured those by 22.5-point spreads.

So where do the Terrors stand as coach Roger O'Neil prepares them for the league chase Jan. 8 at Pueblo South?

They have beaten Denver South, Aurora Hinkley and Air Academy High. They have lost to Lamar, Jefferson County and Larmie, Wyo. Their top scorer is 5-11 forward Bill McCalvy but another forward, Bob Pearson and center Ed Fitzgerald have taken some of the load off McCalvy's shoulder's in the last two starts.

They have three sophomores on the team who play quite a bit — two have started in previous outings.

They start slow, get adjusted to their offense by the halftime and put on the steam the last two quarters. In four games the Terrors have outscored their opponents in the second half. Only Lamar topped them in the final 16 minutes and Jefferson County played to a 28-28 second half tie.

They shoot at a respectable 40.5 clip from the field, but get in only 40.3 per cent of their shots from the free throw line. They average 56 points a game while allowing 52.7. Their defensive game is not all O'Neil would like, but they have averaged over 38 rebounds a game to 28 for their opponents.

But there is more to a team than paperwork. A team must improve from its first game of the year to its first league game if it hopes to contend for the championship.

"We're looking better," conceded O'Neil after the four-point loss to Laramie. "We have a lot of work to do, but we're in the woods now."

Primary cause of hope in O'Neil's heart is the coming-around of Pearson and Fitzgerald. In three of the first four games McCalvy scored 24 points or better and had to keep Palmer in the running.

But both Pearson and the 6-5 Fitzgerald found their touch against Air Academy and all three backliners have been in double figures since.

McCalvy and Fitzgeraud have carried most of the rebounding chores in non-conference play, but Pearson, after 14 caroms against Denver South, has come back to boost the Tribe on the boards.

Fitzgerald is the only sophomore to have started every game, but O'Neil, faced with problems at guard, put in Charles McKenzie and the 5-8 sophomore has responded with better-than-sophomore ball-handling, although a few downcourt passes went astray against Laramie.

Another sophomore, 5-9 Wade Exum, has seen action in only two games after getting some duty on the B-team and should see more competition this year.

With three sophomores getting a good deal of time on the court, Palmer fields one of the most inexperienced teams in the SCL. McCalvy and Pearson, the top two shooters for average, are seniors.

Central, defending champ, poses as the team with the best chance to reap the title, although two sophomores start on that quintet. Central has averaged 70 points a game. Only Centennial of the four Steel City schools scores less than 60 points a game.

Burnett's Come-From-Behind TD Sparks Arkansas's 10-7 Triumph

By MIKE COCHRAN

DALLAS (AP) — Arkansas cracked a four-game Cotton Bowl jinx Friday and end Jerry Lamb and linebacker Ronnie Caveness celebrated by signing with the Kansas City Chiefs.

Lamar Hunt's American Football League club captured the prize Razorbacks seconds after the unbeaten Hogs tripped Nebraska 10-7.

Asked in the Arkansas dressing room if he landed any other members of the Ozark club, Hunt, a Dallas millionaire, smiled and said:

"We're just satisfied with these two."

Pandemonium reigned in the steamy quarters as the jubilant Hogs discussed their No. 2 ranking, 12-game winning streak and come-from-behind triumph in the 29th Cotton Bowl classic.

Coach Frank Broyles praised both the conquerors and the conquered and said a third down pass was the turning point in the game.

"We were third and six when Jim Lindsey, who wasn't even looking when the pass was thrown, made a great catch to keep us rolling," he said.

"Then we went right on in."

Broyles said he sent his Southwest Conference champions to the air because the Nebraska ends were throttling the ground attack.

"Their ends gave us a real hard time," he said. "We couldn't get them inside and we couldn't get around them."

Asked about the Porkers' offensive ineffectiveness in the first three quarters, quarterback Fred Marshall said:

"They just whipped us."

He added that the Nebraska line "rushed much harder than I thought they would."

Marshall assumed full blame for two first quarter fumbles which the Nebraskans failed to convert into points.

"I was hit pretty hard, but I didn't have the ball tucked in and it just got away from me. There was no excuse for it," he said.

"They just had a good football team," he said.

"It's an outside belly play where Marshall fakes to the wingback and pitches out to me. I saw a crack between two guys and when I got to the one I lunged in," he said.

"I knew I was going in."

Crow's Condition in Doubt As Cardinals Meet GB

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — The condition of John David Crow, leading ground gainer of the St. Louis Cardinals, remained a question mark Friday as the Cardinals and the Green Bay Packers tapered off for the National Football League playoff game Sunday in the Orange Bowl.

"However, we may be forced to use Crow," the Cardinal coach added. "He means a lot to our ground game and he could be used for spot service in an emergency."

An emergency is possible in the game between NFL divisional runners-up. Green Bay, second to the Baltimore Colts in the Western Conference, is a six-point favorite on the strength of one of the league's best running attacks.

Jim Taylor and Paul Hornung give the Packers a ground punch that has been hard to stop. Backing up this tough threat is the league's percentage passer, Bart Starr.

The Cardinals are banking on the passing arm of Charley Johnson, who has thrown for more than 3,000 yards, to counteract anything the Packers can throw at them on the ground.

The game, at 2 p.m., EST, will be viewed by 65,000 fans and a large television audience over NBC.

Forzano Does Not Want Navy Post

NORWICH, Conn. (AP) — Rick Forzano, head football coach at the University of Connecticut, said Thursday he was not an applicant for the job of coach at the U.S. Naval Academy.

Forzano, one-time assistant to ousted Navy Coach Wayne Hardin, made the statement to the Norwich Bulletin in commenting on a report that he was among the applicants.

"I won't say I haven't contemplated applying, but I definitely have not done so," Forzano said.

Horses in 4-Year-Old Debut

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Roman Brother and Hill Rise, two of the prominent members of the 3-year-old division last year, make their 4-year-old debuts Saturday in the richest event on the national horse racing card.

Other top races on Saturday's card are two divisions of the Orange Bowl Handicap, with each carrying a purse of $15,000 in added money, at Tropical Park and the 1 1-16 miles of the $10,000-added Mississippi Handicap at New Orleans' Fair Grounds.

Roman Brother, from Louis E. Wolfson's Harbor View Farm, was heavily campaigned in 1964. In 20 starts he chalked up six victories, all of them stakes, six seconds and three thirds for earnings of $449,350.

Hill Rise, representing George A. Pope, Jr.'s El Peco Ranch, was an early-year sensation with victory in the Santa Anita Derby but was unable to handle the likes of Northern Dancer, Quadrangle and Roman Brother when he shifted his campaign to the East.

Arrayed against the two aces will be such top flight sprinters as Nearco Blue, 119, and National, 116.

When the 1 1-16 miles of the Orange Bowl Handicap attracted 17 entries Friday it was split into two divisions. The first division finds Tronado carrying top-weight of 122 pounds against Suspicious, 117, and Morry E., 116.

Valiant Man is the high weight of the nine-horse second section under 116 pounds. But he gives only one pound to the fleet Fan Jet and no more than four to his other rivals.

The consistent Lemon Twist heads a field of nine named for the Fair Grounds' feature. The veteran campaigner will carry 124 pounds and give as much as 16 to his opponents.

There are two entries in the race and they could furnish Lemon Twist with his chief opposition. They are the Marion Van Berg twosome of Fisherman's Reef and Herb Scott and T. A. Grissom's combination of County Chairman and Charolero.

Call Echoes Through Little Rock

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — The hog call, that long, shrill cheer for the Arkansas Razorback football team, echoed jubilantly down the nearly deserted streets of Little Rock Friday night.

Second-ranked Arkansas whipped Nebraska 10-7 in the Cotton Bowl game at Dallas for triumph No. 11 this season.

An estimated 30,000 Razorback fans were in Dallas for the game. Only a few remained in downtown Little Rock, but they made themselves heard with, "Woo, pig, sooie" wails and automobile horn honking.

Radio stations popped a new ballad onto the air glorifying the victory of the "Big Red" Razorbacks. It tells of Arkansas' Cotton Bowl conquest in nearly the same way as a previous "Big Red" record told of Arkansas' 14-13 victory over Texas earlier this season.

The last lines of the newest version are:

"The moral of this song is easy to spot,

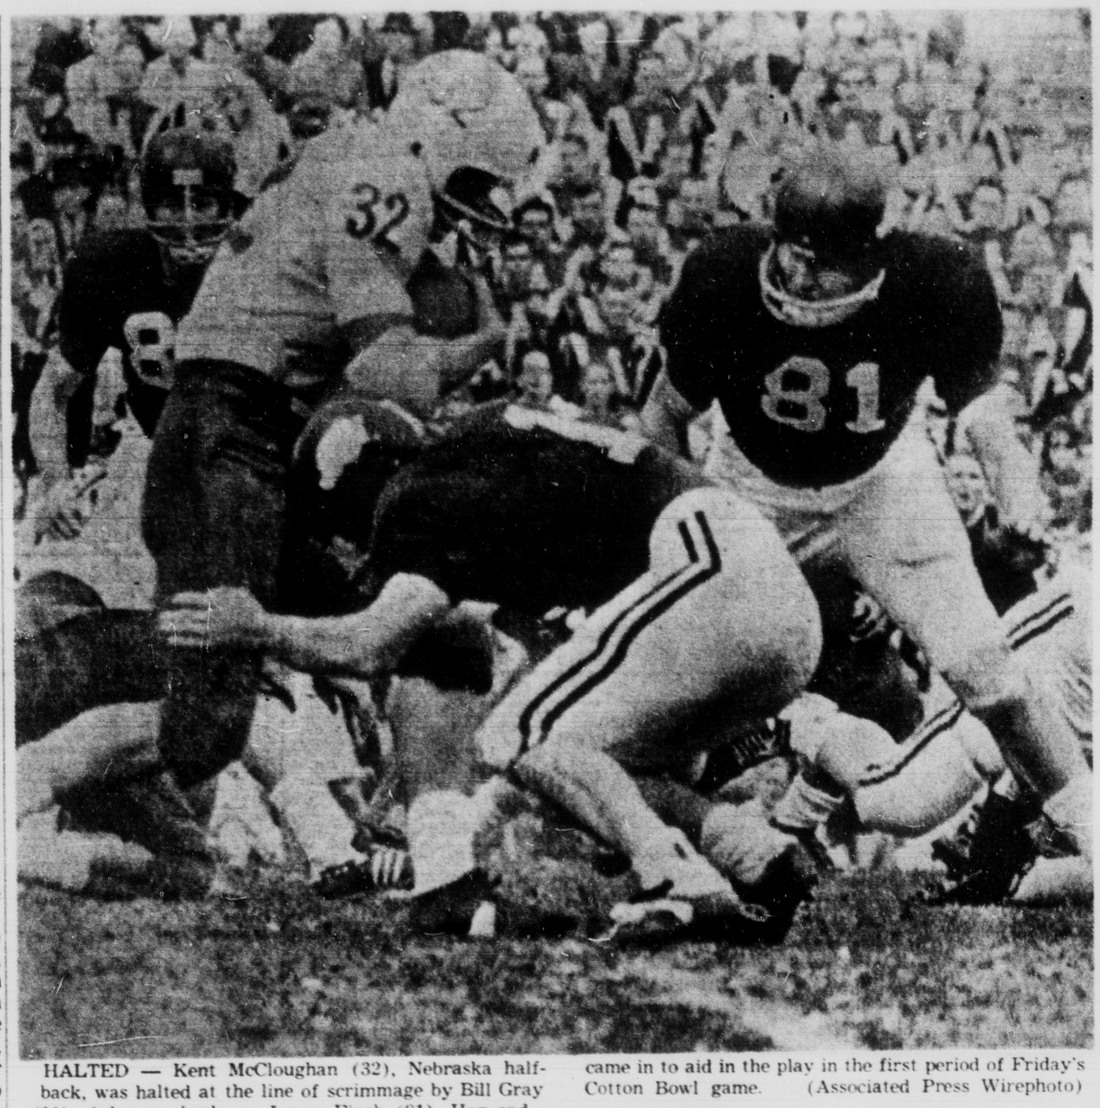
Hinkley, Boulder In Prep Finals

LONGMONT (UPI) —Aurora Hinkley and Boulder sat it out Friday before tangling Saturday to decide the championship of the Longmont Prep Invitational Basketball Tournament.

Aurora Hinkley clobbered Fort Collins, 57-42, and Boulder topped Poudre, 70-55, Thursday to gain berths in the tourney final. Fort Collins and Poudre will clash Saturday to determine the No. 3 place.

In other action at the invitational Thursday, Greeley edged Loveland, 64-56, and Aurora Central outgunned host Longmont, 59-43, in consolation activity.

Greeley and Central will meet Saturday to determine fifth place and Loveland will take on Longmont in a battle to keep out of the tourney cellar.



HALTED — Kent McCloughan (32), Nebraska halfback, was halted at the line of scrimmage by Bill Gray (11), Arkansas back, as James Finch (81), Hog end, came in to aid in the play in the first period of Friday's Cotton Bowl game. (Associated Press Wirephoto)

Roses Fall On Anthony Of Michigan

By BERNIE KENNEDY
Associated Press Sports Writer

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Key plays in each half and a slight deviation from the game plan spelled the difference in Michigan's one-sided Rose Bowl victory over Oregon State Friday.

"Mel Anthony's first touchdown in the second quarter and that blocked punt in the third gave us the spark we needed in each half," Michigan Coach Bump Elliott explained.

"The game was touch and go from the start," Elliott said: "But after those two big plays we just go the momentum and kept right on rolling."

Michigan outgained the Beavers on the ground, 332 yards to 64. Anthony led the way with 123 in 13 carries.

"I'm glad to hear that Mel was named the game's outstanding player," Elliott said "but I could have named 22 others. I can't say whether this was our best game, but it was a real good one."

A penalty against the Wolverines, which returned the ball to Oregon State when Michigan should have gained possession on a punt, set the eventual winners back for a spell.

"That penalty gave them the spark for their only touchdown," Elliott said. "Anthony's run made us forget about it, though."

Early in the third quarter, Bob Mielke led a Wolverines charge at Oregon State punter Len Frketich and blocked the ball. After a brief scramble, Anthony recovered on the OSU 15.

"That play came from the bench," Elliott said. "We were waiting and hoping to block one. We just sent four players in from the right side and two of them gave sort of a scissors action to get through."

Eliott said that the U-M game plan was to play to its strong side, especially on the ground.

"Midway through the second period we found we could go as well to the other side and that opened our game up quite a bit," he added.

Michigan did not make any drastic changes in the second half except to cut out a few plays which didn't work, Elliott added.

"I got some real good blocking on that long touchdown run," Anthony said. "The second one (one yard) was just a power play. On the third I went seven yards through a hole the fellows tell me was there the whole game. I just couldn't find it."

The Rochester Americans posted the best home record in the American Hockey League last season. They won 27 games and played one tie. They lost 8 games.

Huskers Say Arkansas Should Be Rated Tops

By BOB HORTON

DALLAS (AP) — Trainers toted the red athletic supply trunks into the dressing room as gingerly as coffins, and behind them like so many pallbearers came Nebraska's Cornhuskers.

And of the 28-yard pass that spelled death for Nebraska's hopes, he said:

"We rotate our secondary on pass defense, and they seemed to catch us at the right time. It was no one player's fault. They just beat us all."

He was referring to the pass from Arkansas quarterback Fred Marshall to wingback Jim Lindsey that placed the Southwest Conference champions only two plays from a decisive touchdown.

Nebraska Coach Bob Devaney said:

"If any one play beat us, that one did. Lindsey looked like he was looking one way, started the other way and then he was standing right there in the open."

"Arkansas," Devaney said, "is at least as good as anybody we played this year. They didn't dominate us the way Oklahoma (only team to beat Nebraska in regular season) did.

"They threw the ball better than we expected. We played as well as we can."

Devaney said if any Razorbacks deserved the most credit it should be Marshall.

"He's a fine quarterback," Devaney said. "He got them out of the hole and ran several times on pass attempts."

Nebraska fullback Frank Solich said the Razorback defensive linemen were "the quickest of any team we played . . . real fine."

"I would compare them more with Missouri than any other team we met," he said.

"But I don't think they should be No. 1," he said.

Who, then, someone asked.

"We should be," the 189-pound Negro replied.

Devaney was asked if he had any players who planned to sign professional football contracts, a question which referred to Oklahoma's dismissal of four boys who inked pacts before the season was over.

"We have four who were drafted, and I'm sure they will sign," Devaney replied, naming tackle Larry Kramer, halfback Kent McCloughan, halfback Robert Hohn and end Preston Love.

"If they had already signed, we would be glad to forfeit this game," Devaney quipped. "And I'd be surprised if they have."

Nortre Dame, Tulane Will Resume Rivalry

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Tulane and Notre Dame will resume their gridiron rivalry in 1969, Green Wave Athletic Director Rix Yard announced Thursday.

Yard said Notre Dame would play here Oct. 25, 1969, and the two teams would meet again at South Bend, Ind., on Nov. 13, 1961.

The Greenies have played Notre Dame six previous times, the last in 1950, and the Fighting Irish won all six games.

Soccer Fans Brawl, 50 Arrested

More than 50 fans were arrested, 40 others were given first aid treatment, six were taken to the hospital and a policeman had his head gashed by a flying whiskey bottle.

Then an ambulance taking injured to the hospital was attacked and kicked by a howling mob that attempted to overturn it. The ambulance was painted blue — the same as the Rangers colors. Celtic colors are green.

It took 500 police to restore order.

The trouble started among 60,000 fans when a Celtic player Jimmy Johnstone, was thrown out of the game. Whiskey bottles and beer cans began raining down and soon things got out of hand.

The score: Rangers 1, Celtics 0.

Pukka Wins in Four-Hill Jump

SKI GARMISCH Germany (AP) — Erkki Pukka of Finland, won the second event of the German-Austrian four hill ski jump Friday with leaps of 265 feet, 9 inches and 272-4 that neeted him 216 points.

Heini Ihle of Germany had jumps of 265-9 and 283-9 but his poor form cut his points to 215.9. The next two jumps will be held Sunday and Wednesday.

The three United States entrants finished far down the list. David Hicks was 27th with 194.3 points on leaps of 247-8 and 252-7. Jay Martin was 36th with 252-7 and 275-8 while John Balfanz was 46th with 226-4 and 239-6. Martin received 189.2 points and Balfanz 178.7.

Adams Says He Signed OU's Neely

HOUSTON (UPI) — The owner of the Houston Oilers professional football team, K. S. (Bud) Adams, admitted Friday his team signed an Oklahoma player with a college bowl game remaining, but he said if the Oilers had not done it, Baltimore would have.

Adams said Baltimore held the draft rights in the National Football League for Ralph Neely, Oklahoma tackle kicked off the team when news of the contract signing came out. Adams also said Neely was being sought after by the Dallas Cowboys.

Three other Oklahoma football players were dismissed for early signings, before the team was to play Florida State in the Gator Bowl Saturday.

"We don't make a practice of signing players early," Adams said. "But we have been forced to do so if we are to sign players in competition with the NFL. If we hadn't signed Neely he would have signed early with Baltimore, which held the draft rights to him in the NFL.

"When he told them he had signed with us, they apparently turned him over to the Dallas Cowboys and told them to see what they could do with him."

The Oilers' general manager, Carroll Martin, who was in Jacksonville, Fla., for the bowl game, said the Oilers expect Neely to honor the Oiler contract, whatever Dallas does.

"I cannot state that Dallas has signed Neely," Martin said. "I do know they are working on him diligently."

Cotton Bowl Teams Get $212,000

DALLAS (AP) — The competing teams in the Cotton Bowl —Arkansas and Nebraska—will receive a check for $212,000 each as their share for playing in the game that Arkansas won 10-7 Friday.

Arkansas will be able to keep $60,000 and about $3,000 in travel money, and then share in the remaining $149,000 with other members of the Southwest Conference. This means Arkansas will receive more than $81,000 and other members of the conference will get $18,600 each.

The Big Eight Conference, of which Nebraska is a member, has a similar rule but the amount is expected to be raised at the meeting of the conference during the NCAA convention this month. Thus Nebraska will receive $70,000 plus $5,000 traveling expense.

The remaining $147,000 will be divided eight ways among the Big Eight schools.

This means Nebraska will keep about $93,000. Other members of the Big Eight will get more than $18,000 each.

So where do the Terrors stand as coach Roger O'Neil prepares them for the league chase Jan. 8 at Pueblo South?

They have beaten Denver South, Aurora Hinkley and Air Academy High. They have lost to Lamar, Jefferson County and Larmie, Wyo. Their top scorer is 5-11 forward Bill McCalvy but another forward, Bob Pearson and center Ed Fitzgerald have taken some of the load off McCalvy's shoulder's in the last two starts.

They have three sophomores on the team who play quite a bit — two have started in previous outings.

They start slow, get adjusted to their offense by the halftime and put on the steam the last two quarters. In four games the Terrors have outscored their opponents in the second half. Only Lamar topped them in the final 16 minutes and Jefferson County played to a 28-28 second half tie.

They shoot at a respectable 40.5 clip from the field, but get in only 40.3 per cent of their shots from the free throw line. They average 56 points a game while allowing 52.7. Their defensive game is not all O'Neil would like, but they have averaged over 38 rebounds a game to 28 for their opponents.

But there is more to a team than paperwork. A team must improve from its first game of the year to its first league game if it hopes to contend for the championship.

"We're looking better," conceded O'Neil after the four-point loss to Laramie. "We have a lot of work to do, but we're in the woods now."

Primary cause of hope in O'Neil's heart is the coming-around of Pearson and Fitzgerald. In three of the first four games McCalvy scored 24 points or better and had to keep Palmer in the running.

But both Pearson and the 6-5 Fitzgerald found their touch against Air Academy and all three backliners have been in double figures since.

McCalvy and Fitzgeraud have carried most of the rebounding chores in non-conference play, but Pearson, after 14 caroms against Denver South, has come back to boost the Tribe on the boards.

Fitzgerald is the only sophomore to have started every game, but O'Neil, faced with problems at guard, put in Charles McKenzie and the 5-8 sophomore has responded with better-than-sophomore ball-handling, although a few downcourt passes went astray against Laramie.

Another sophomore, 5-9 Wade Exum, has seen action in only two games after getting some duty on the B-team and should see more competition this year.

With three sophomores getting a good deal of time on the court, Palmer fields one of the most inexperienced teams in the SCL. McCalvy and Pearson, the top two shooters for average, are seniors.

Central, defending champ, poses as the team with the best chance to reap the title, although two sophomores start on that quintet. Central has averaged 70 points a game. Only Centennial of the four Steel City schools scores less than 60 points a game.

Horses in 4-Year-Old Debut

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Roman Brother and Hill Rise, two of the prominent members of the 3-year-old division last year, make their 4-year-old debuts Saturday in the richest event on the national horse racing card.

Other top races on Saturday's card are two divisions of the Orange Bowl Handicap, with each carrying a purse of $15,000 in added money, at Tropical Park and the 1 1-16 miles of the $10,000-added Mississippi Handicap at New Orleans' Fair Grounds.

Roman Brother, from Louis E. Wolfson's Harbor View Farm, was heavily campaigned in 1964. In 20 starts he chalked up six victories, all of them stakes, six seconds and three thirds for earnings of $449,350.

Hill Rise, representing George A. Pope, Jr.'s El Peco Ranch, was an early-year sensation with victory in the Santa Anita Derby but was unable to handle the likes of Northern Dancer, Quadrangle and Roman Brother when he shifted his campaign to the East.

Arrayed against the two aces will be such top flight sprinters as Nearco Blue, 119, and National, 116.

When the 1 1-16 miles of the Orange Bowl Handicap attracted 17 entries Friday it was split into two divisions. The first division finds Tronado carrying top-weight of 122 pounds against Suspicious, 117, and Morry E., 116.

Valiant Man is the high weight of the nine-horse second section under 116 pounds. But he gives only one pound to the fleet Fan Jet and no more than four to his other rivals.

The consistent Lemon Twist heads a field of nine named for the Fair Grounds' feature. The veteran campaigner will carry 124 pounds and give as much as 16 to his opponents.

There are two entries in the race and they could furnish Lemon Twist with his chief opposition. They are the Marion Van Berg twosome of Fisherman's Reef and Herb Scott and T. A. Grissom's combination of County Chairman and Charolero.

Burnett's Come-From-Behind TD Sparks Arkansas's 10-7 Triumph

By MIKE COCHRAN

DALLAS (AP) — Arkansas cracked a four-game Cotton Bowl jinx Friday and end Jerry Lamb and linebacker Ronnie Caveness celebrated by signing with the Kansas City Chiefs.

Lamar Hunt's American Football League club captured the prize Razorbacks seconds after the unbeaten Hogs tripped Nebraska 10-7.

Asked in the Arkansas dressing room if he landed any other members of the Ozark club, Hunt, a Dallas millionaire, smiled and said:

"We're just satisfied with these two."

Pandemonium reigned in the steamy quarters as the jubilant Hogs discussed their No. 2 ranking, 12-game winning streak and come-from-behind triumph in the 29th Cotton Bowl classic.

Coach Frank Broyles praised both the conquerors and the conquered and said a third down pass was the turning point in the game.

"We were third and six when Jim Lindsey, who wasn't even looking when the pass was thrown, made a great catch to keep us rolling," he said.

"Then we went right on in."

Broyles said he sent his Southwest Conference champions to the air because the Nebraska ends were throttling the ground attack.

"Their ends gave us a real hard time," he said. "We couldn't get them inside and we couldn't get around them."

Asked about the Porkers' offensive ineffectiveness in the first three quarters, quarterback Fred Marshall said:

"They just whipped us."

He added that the Nebraska line "rushed much harder than I thought they would."

Marshall assumed full blame for two first quarter fumbles which the Nebraskans failed to convert into points.

"I was hit pretty hard, but I didn't have the ball tucked in and it just got away from me. There was no excuse for it," he said.

"They just had a good football team," he said.

"It's an outside belly play where Marshall fakes to the wingback and pitches out to me. I saw a crack between two guys and when I got to the one I lunged in," he said.

"I knew I was going in."

Crow's Condition in Doubt As Cardinals Meet GB

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — The condition of John David Crow, leading ground gainer of the St. Louis Cardinals, remained a question mark Friday as the Cardinals and the Green Bay Packers tapered off for the National Football League playoff game Sunday in the Orange Bowl.

"However, we may be forced to use Crow," the Cardinal coach added. "He means a lot to our ground game and he could be used for spot service in an emergency."

An emergency is possible in the game between NFL divisional runners-up. Green Bay, second to the Baltimore Colts in the Western Conference, is a six-point favorite on the strength of one of the league's best running attacks.

Jim Taylor and Paul Hornung give the Packers a ground punch that has been hard to stop. Backing up this tough threat is the league's percentage passer, Bart Starr.

The Cardinals are banking on the passing arm of Charley Johnson, who has thrown for more than 3,000 yards, to counteract anything the Packers can throw at them on the ground.

The game, at 2 p.m., EST, will be viewed by 65,000 fans and a large television audience over NBC.

Forzano Does Not Want Navy Post

NORWICH, Conn. (AP) — Rick Forzano, head football coach at the University of Connecticut, said Thursday he was not an applicant for the job of coach at the U.S. Naval Academy.

Forzano, one-time assistant to ousted Navy Coach Wayne Hardin, made the statement to the Norwich Bulletin in commenting on a report that he was among the applicants.

"I won't say I haven't contemplated applying, but I definitely have not done so," Forzano said.

Roses Fall On Anthony Of Michigan

By BERNIE KENNEDY
Associated Press Sports Writer

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Key plays in each half and a slight deviation from the game plan spelled the difference in Michigan's one-sided Rose Bowl victory over Oregon State Friday.

"Mel Anthony's first touchdown in the second quarter and that blocked punt in the third gave us the spark we needed in each half," Michigan Coach Bump Elliott explained.

"The game was touch and go from the start," Elliott said: "But after those two big plays we just go the momentum and kept right on rolling."

Michigan outgained the Beavers on the ground, 332 yards to 64. Anthony led the way with 123 in 13 carries.

"I'm glad to hear that Mel was named the game's outstanding player," Elliott said "but I could have named 22 others. I can't say whether this was our best game, but it was a real good one."

A penalty against the Wolverines, which returned the ball to Oregon State when Michigan should have gained possession on a punt, set the eventual winners back for a spell.

"That penalty gave them the spark for their only touchdown," Elliott said. "Anthony's run made us forget about it, though."

Early in the third quarter, Bob Mielke led a Wolverines charge at Oregon State punter Len Frketich and blocked the ball. After a brief scramble, Anthony recovered on the OSU 15.

"That play came from the bench," Elliott said. "We were waiting and hoping to block one. We just sent four players in from the right side and two of them gave sort of a scissors action to get through."

Eliott said that the U-M game plan was to play to its strong side, especially on the ground.

"Midway through the second period we found we could go as well to the other side and that opened our game up quite a bit," he added.

Michigan did not make any drastic changes in the second half except to cut out a few plays which didn't work, Elliott added.

"I got some real good blocking on that long touchdown run," Anthony said. "The second one (one yard) was just a power play. On the third I went seven yards through a hole the fellows tell me was there the whole game. I just couldn't find it."

The Rochester Americans posted the best home record in the American Hockey League last season. They won 27 games and played one tie. They lost 8 games.

Call Echoes Through Little Rock

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — The hog call, that long, shrill cheer for the Arkansas Razorback football team, echoed jubilantly down the nearly deserted streets of Little Rock Friday night.

Second-ranked Arkansas whipped Nebraska 10-7 in the Cotton Bowl game at Dallas for triumph No. 11 this season.

An estimated 30,000 Razorback fans were in Dallas for the game. Only a few remained in downtown Little Rock, but they made themselves heard with, "Woo, pig, sooie" wails and automobile horn honking.

Radio stations popped a new ballad onto the air glorifying the victory of the "Big Red" Razorbacks. It tells of Arkansas' Cotton Bowl conquest in nearly the same way as a previous "Big Red" record told of Arkansas' 14-13 victory over Texas earlier this season.

The last lines of the newest version are:

"The moral of this song is easy to spot,

Hinkley, Boulder In Prep Finals

LONGMONT (UPI) —Aurora Hinkley and Boulder sat it out Friday before tangling Saturday to decide the championship of the Longmont Prep Invitational Basketball Tournament.

Aurora Hinkley clobbered Fort Collins, 57-42, and Boulder topped Poudre, 70-55, Thursday to gain berths in the tourney final. Fort Collins and Poudre will clash Saturday to determine the No. 3 place.

In other action at the invitational Thursday, Greeley edged Loveland, 64-56, and Aurora Central outgunned host Longmont, 59-43, in consolation activity.

Greeley and Central will meet Saturday to determine fifth place and Loveland will take on Longmont in a battle to keep out of the tourney cellar.

Huskers Say Arkansas Should Be Rated Tops

By BOB HORTON

DALLAS (AP) — Trainers toted the red athletic supply trunks into the dressing room as gingerly as coffins, and behind them like so many pallbearers came Nebraska's Cornhuskers.

And of the 28-yard pass that spelled death for Nebraska's hopes, he said:

"We rotate our secondary on pass defense, and they seemed to catch us at the right time. It was no one player's fault. They just beat us all."

He was referring to the pass from Arkansas quarterback Fred Marshall to wingback Jim Lindsey that placed the Southwest Conference champions only two plays from a decisive touchdown.

Nebraska Coach Bob Devaney said:

"If any one play beat us, that one did. Lindsey looked like he was looking one way, started the other way and then he was standing right there in the open."

"Arkansas," Devaney said, "is at least as good as anybody we played this year. They didn't dominate us the way Oklahoma (only team to beat Nebraska in regular season) did.

"They threw the ball better than we expected. We played as well as we can."

Devaney said if any Razorbacks deserved the most credit it should be Marshall.

"He's a fine quarterback," Devaney said. "He got them out of the hole and ran several times on pass attempts."

Nebraska fullback Frank Solich said the Razorback defensive linemen were "the quickest of any team we played. . . . real fine."

"I would compare them more with Missouri than any other team we met," he said.

"But I don't think they should be No. 1," he said.

Who, then, someone asked.

"We should be," the 189-pound Negro replied.

Devaney was asked if he had any players who planned to sign professional football contracts, a question which referred to Oklahoma's dismissal of four boys who inked pacts before the season was over.

"We have four who were drafted, and I'm sure they will sign," Devaney replied, naming tackle Larry Kramer, halfback Kent McCloughan, halfback Robert Hohn and end Preston Love.

"If they had already signed, we would be glad to forfeit this game," Devaney quipped. "And I'd be surprised if they have."

Nortre Dame, Tulane Will Resume Rivalry

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Tulane and Notre Dame will resume their gridiron rivalry in 1969, Green Wave Athletic Director Rix Yard announced Thursday.

Yard said Notre Dame would play here Oct. 25, 1969, and the two teams would meet again at South Bend, Ind., on Nov. 13, 1961.

The Greenies have played Notre Dame six previous times, the last in 1950, and the Fighting Irish won all six games.

Soccer Fans Brawl, 50 Arrested

More than 50 fans were arrested. 40 others were given first aid treatment, six were taken to the hospital and a policeman had his head gashed by a flying whiskey bottle.

Then an ambulance taking injured to the hospital was attacked and kicked by a howling mob that attempted to overturn it. The ambulance was painted blue — the same as the Rangers colors. Celtic colors are green.

It took 500 police to restore order.

The trouble started among 60,000 fans when a Celtic player Jimmy Johnstone, was thrown out of the game. Whiskey bottles and beer cans began raining down and soon things got out of hand.

The score: Rangers 1, Celtics 0.

Pukka Wins in Four-Hill Jump

SKI GARMISCH Germany (AP) — Erkki Pukka of Finland, won the second event of the German-Austrian four hill ski jump Friday with leaps of 265 feet, 9 inches and 272-4 that neeted him 216 points.

Heini Ihle of Germany had jumps of 265-9 and 283-9 but his poor form cut his points to 215.9. The next two jumps will be held Sunday and Wednesday.

The three United States entrants finished far down the list. David Hicks was 27th with 194.3 points on leaps of 247-8 and 252-7. Jay Martin was 36th with 252-7 and 275-8 while John Balfanz was 46th with 226-4 and 239-6. Martin received 189.2 points and Balfanz 178.7.

Adams Says He Signed OU's Neely

HOUSTON (UPI) — The owner of the Houston Oilers professional football team, K. S. (Bud) Adams, admitted Friday his team signed an Oklahoma player with a college bowl game remaining, but he said if the Oilers had not done it, Baltimore would have.

Adams said Baltimore held the draft rights in the National Football League for Ralph Neely, Oklahoma tackle kicked off the team when news of the contract signing came out. Adams also said Neely was being sought after by the Dallas Cowboys.

Three other Oklahoma football players were dismissed for early signings, before the team was to play Florida State in the Gator Bowl Saturday.

"We don't make a practice of signing players early," Adams said. "But we have been forced to do so if we are to sign players in competition with the NFL. If we hadn't signed Neely he would have signed early with Baltimore, which held the draft rights to him in the NFL.

"When he told them he had signed with us, they apparently turned him over to the Dallas Cowboys and told them to see what they could do with him."

The Oilers' general manager, Carroll Martin, who was in Jacksonville, Fla., for the bowl game, said the Oilers expect Neely to honor the Oiler contract, whatever Dallas does.

"I cannot state that Dallas has signed Neely," Martin said. "I do know they are working on him diligently."

Cotton Bowl Teams Get $212,000

DALLAS (AP) — The competing teams in the Cotton Bowl —Arkansas and Nebraska—will receive a check for $212,000 each as their share for playing in the game that Arkansas won 10-7 Friday.

Arkansas will be able to keep $60,000 and about $3,000 in travel money, and then share in the remaining $149,000 with other members of the Southwest Conference. This means Arkansas will receive more than $81,000 and other members of the conference will get $18,600 each.

The Big Eight Conference, of which Nebraska is a member, has a similar rule but the amount is expected to be raised at the meeting of the conference during the NCAA convention this month. Thus Nebraska will receive $70,000 plus $5,000 traveling expense.

The remaining $147,000 will be divided eight ways among the Big Eight schools.

This means Nebraska will keep about $93,000. Other members of the Big Eight will get more than $18,000 each.

PEA-SIZE MOTORS — Tiny rocket motors, each the size of a small pea and made of plastic, move on tape through a firing device. These motors, thought to be the smallest in the world, will be given their first trial in space sometime during this year, as stabilizing motors for Tiros weather satellites. A string of the expendable motors is mounted on tape that feeds through a half-pound triggering device.

THE ROLE OF THE AGED IN OUR CULTURE

The trouble with growing old is that you feel so young. This is hard on the ego, especially when the oldster follows his instincts instead of sticking to reality. To paraphrase the Bible, we might add, "The mind is willing but the flesh is weak."

Aging seldom alters basic drives, and the elderly may become unhappy when they cannot satisfy them. The difficulty begins when they refuse to accept the limitations the years bring, such as loss of coordination, flexibility, speed, and libido. In addition, our culture is youth-oriented, which may depress or frustrate those along in years. The situation becomes more complicated when these factors act as a psychological hazard that impairs performance.

In the past, too much attention was paid to the physical and materialistic needs of the aged, while their ego or self-image was neglected. This did not appear to bother those who welcome retirement and enjoyed sitting around or tinkering with a hobby. But we know some of this individuals were not entirely satisfied. They were putting on an act and resorted to dependency and regression as a defense mechanism.

The man who thrived on working urder siress for 35 years may find little to bolster his ego when he retires to a job that offers no challenge, inspiration, chance to get ahead, or praise for work well done.

In general, the sooner a senior citizen learns to adjust to his physical decline, the better. He should take it easy, but this does not mean he cannot live an active and purposeful life.

There are many ways in which the older person can devote his energy to community interests or creative expression. Opportunities exist in neighborhood centers, parks, and hospitals. Such activities are made to order for our aging men and women who have the time. Participation will go a long way in helping them find their place between instinct and reality.

Dr. Van Dellen will answer questions on medical topics if stamped, self - addressed envelope accompanies request.

BLOOD STUDIES

R. T. writes: Is there a blood test to determine whether a person's fatigue is due to infection somewhere in the body?

REPLY

Nonspecific tests along this line include the white blood count and the sedimentation rate. In addition, there are skin and agglutination tests for several viral and fungal diseases and special blood tests for infectious mononucleosis and syphilis.

EXERCISE AND PHLEBITIS

A. B. M. writes: Can phlebitis be caused by excessive walking?

REPLY

No, and if anything, phlebitis is more likely to follow prolonged bed rest, standing, or sitting. The blood tends to clot when the flow is slowed, hence, exercise improves the circulation.

REDUCING OPERATION

Mrs. L. K. writes: We have been advised that our 16-year-old daughter should have the breast reducing operation. Is such an operation worth the risk?

REPLY

Yes, as the risk is minimal. I assume the operation is recommended because she has abnormally large breasts.

SUITABLE JOB

M. O. writes: Is it better for a man with a spastic colon to work at a sitting or a walking job?

REPLY

He can take his choice unless one is more likely to make him nervous, frustrated, or overfatigued. These are the most common causes of spastic colon.

PEA-SIZE MOTORS — Tiny rocket motors, each the size of a small pea and made of plastic, move on tape through a firing device. These motors, thought to be the smallest in the world, will be given their first trial in space sometime during this year, as stabilizing motors for Tiros weather satellites. A string of the expendable motors is mounted on tape that feeds through a half-pound triggering device. (AP Wirephoto)

HOW TO KEEP WELL

THE ROLE OF THE AGED IN OUR CULTURE

The trouble with growing old is that you feel so young. This is hard on the ego, especially when the oldster follows his instincts instead of sticking to reality. To paraphrase the Bible, we might add, "The mind is willing but the flesh is weak."

Aging seldom alters basic drives, and the elderly may become unhappy when they cannot satisfy them. The difficulty begins when they refuse to accept the limitations the years bring, such as loss of coordination, flexibility, speed, and libido. In addition, our culture is youth-oriented, which may depress or frustrate those along in years. The situation becomes more complicated when these factors act as a psychological hazard that impairs performance.

In the past, too much attention was paid to the physical and materialistic needs of the aged, while their ego or self-image was neglected. This did not appear to bother those who welcome retirement and enjoyed sitting around or tinkering with a hobby. But we know some of this individuals were not entirely satisfied. They were putting on an act and resorted to dependency and regression as a defense mechanism.

The man who thrived on working urder stress for 35 years may find little to bolster his ego when he retires to a job that offers no challenge, inspiration, chance to get ahead, or praise for work well done.

In general, the sooner a senior citizen learns to adjust to his physical decline, the better. He should take it easy, but this does not mean he cannot live an active and purposeful life.

There are many ways in which the older person can devote his energy to community interests or creative expression. Opportunities exist in neighborhood centers, parks, and hospitals. Such activities are made to order for our aging men and women who have the time. Participation will go a long way in helping them find their place between instinct and reality.

Dr. Van Dellen will answer questions on medical topics if stamped, self - addressed envelope accompanies request.

BLOOD STUDIES

R. T. writes: Is there a blood test to determine whether a person's fatigue is due to infection somewhere in the body?

REPLY

Nonspecific tests along this line include the white blood count and the sedimentation rate. In addition, there are skin and agglutination tests for several viral and fungal diseases and special blood tests for infectious mononucleosis and syphilis.

EXERCISE AND PHLEBITIS

A. B. M. writes: Can phlebitis be caused by excessive walking?

REPLY

No, and if anything, phlebitis is more likely to follow prolonged bed rest, standing, or sitting. The blood tends to clot when the flow is slowed, hence, exercise improves the circulation.

REDUCING OPERATION

Mrs. L. K. writes: We have been advised that our 16-year-old daughter should have the breast reducing operation. Is such an operation worth the risk?

REPLY

Yes, as the risk is minimal. I assume the operation is recommended because she has abnormally large breasts.

SUITABLE JOB

M. O. writes: Is it better for a man with a spastic colon to work at a sitting or a walking job?

REPLY

He can take his choice unless one is more likely to make him nervous, frustrated, or overfatigued. These are the most common causes of spastic colon.

BOURNEMOUTH England (UPI)—Locksmith Cecil Rudkin worked for an hour trying to open the jammed lock on a bank's front door. Of all the people who walked by him on Main Street, not one called police or asked why he was trying to get into the bank.

"I think it must been an example of the British attitude of not interfering with other people," the bank manager said later.

Use of Credit Devices Is Increasing

By JESSE BOGUE

NEW YORK (UPI)—The use of credit devices by Mr. and Mrs. Average Householder, and even by their children, has been a growing feature of the postwar economy.

It has been accompanied, according to the credit and financial newsletter published by the National Association of Credit Management, by a rise in the use of trade credit. The current issue of this publication calls attention to this, and to the disagreement among economists of its effect upon the nation's economic health.

As of Nov. 1, according to the latest estimate by Credit Research Foundation, manufacturers' investment in receivables stood at $54.1 billion, the same as the previous month, but a four per cent increase over Nov. 1, 1963.

An examination of the role of trade credit, the newsletter said, finds little agreement among financiers and economists except on a few basic facts; a need for more accurate and up-to-date information and analysis; and a division of opinion on how it should be used in periods of stress in the economy.

Some sources believe that in declining periods of recent years, trade credit has had a stabilizing effect. What the newsletter calls "apparent leniency in credit" has helped to cushion the effects of a slide in economic activity, these sources believe.

Quite possibly, they say, many hard - pressed customer firms—such as those who deal with the householder family — have been able to survive when sales and profits began to slip because manufacturers were willing and able to extend credit. In the downturns of recent years—scarcely any in the past four—there has been strain on the financial resources of creditors, but they have been able to keep their own production and sales relatively stable.

But another school of thought views the readiness of sellers to extend credit somewhat more dimly, the newsletter continues.

This group suggests that during economic slumps, sellers restrict credit, reducing their investment in receivables — amounts due from others—and cutting their potential losses from bad debts.

State Medicare Plan Changes Requested

DENVER (UPI)—The federal government has been asked to approve changes in Colorado's Medical Assistance for the Aged program, State Welfare Director Thomas Bell announced Monday.

The state came up with the changes after the federal government refused to accept the plan as proposed. The refusal meant Colorado was ineligible for more than $7 million in federal matching funds.

Bell said the revisions, drafted last week by the Colorado Welfare Board, would cost the state another $800,000.

The program became effective last July 1. Since that time withheld $1.5 million in matching funds because it was unable to accept the plan.

Bell said he expected the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare to decide next month whether the new proposals were acceptable.

Filling Gap in State's Water Laws Proposed

By GORDON G. GAUSS
Associated Press Writer

Perhaps the most difficult and important task — from a long range standpoint — which will confront Colorado's new legislature when it assembles Jan. 6 in Denver will be an attempt to fill gaps in the state's water laws.

Admittedly, the subject is technical, and even few of the legislators understand it completely. It probably will draw comparatively little attention.

Yet, what is accomplished or left undone will have a major effect upon the state's economy for the foreseeable future. Especially, it will determine whether Colorado's agricultural potential can be utilized fully. This, in turn, will spell the future of many towns and cities—especially those in the South Platte and Arkansas drainage basins.

At the heart of the problem is whether a landowner has the right to drill a big well tapping water which flows into a stream, thereby affecting the stream flow and reducing surface water which already has been allocated. Irrigation wells are big business in Colorado now and are growing in importance yearly.

Probably it is too much to expect the lawmakers to solve the problem completely in a single session, since even the Water Conservation Board members aren't entirely in agreement yet.

The water problem is one of several which special bi-partisan legislative committees have been studying and which will be solved with little reference to Democratic and Republican politics.

Another of these proposals—certain to evoke opposition—is the idea of a super-county, or urban county, embracing all of the Denver metropolitan area. This would lump a million persons, half the state's residents, in a single governmental unit and would wipe out Jefferson, Adams and Arapahoe counties as political entities. It promises to touch off a bitter struggle between Denver and the suburbs. Efforts may be made to stall consideration for a year.

Also due to stir up difficulties is a new proposal which would open the way for Denver to annex more chunks of territory from the suburban counties. Two such laws have been vetoed in past years.

Legislation affecting business is due for serious consideration in the 45th General Assembly. A major proposal will be for a freeport law — a measure allowing goods shipped into Coloroad to be stored in the state for shipment elsewhere without being subject to property tax. Another will be to reduce the property tax on merchandise in manufacturing establishments or on merchants' shelves—often dubbed the inventory tax.

Still another possibility is adoption of a uniform commercial code. Introduction of labor legislation is certain, although Democratic control of the House and Republican control of the Senate makes passage of controversial measures questionable. There may be, however, some further revision of workmen's compensation in line with committee studies.

The legislature may or may not delve deeply into the revision of the state's gross ton-mile tax on trucks and perhaps may consider a half-cent or one-cent a gallon increase in gasoline tax. A special study committee headed by Rep. Bill Gossard, R-Craig, still hasn't made its recommendations.

Reorganization of the state governmental structure is due for consideration, although the plan won't be as sweeping as one offered a year ago by Gov. John A. Love. That plan failed to get legislative approval. The more modest approach calls for combination of several agencies into a Department of Finance and some others into a Department of Administration. Love also wants a college coordinating council set up.

Stamps in the News

By SYD KRONISH

India has issued a new stamp with a theme which is a departure from previous Indian issues, reports the World Wide Philatelic Agency. The new adhesive honors the visit of Pope Paul VI to that country and depicts St. Thomas who brought Christianity to India. Historians have traced the journeys of St. Thomas along the coast of the Persian Gulf and the Arabian

Sea, founding Christian churches as he traveled. His influence was felt in Iran, Pakistan and India where he was martyred in the city of Madras. The new stamp from India shows a photograph of the bust portion of a radiant golden and bejeweled statue of St. Thomas from a church in southern India.

Austria has announced its 1965 schedule of commemorative stamps. Some of the themes are: the 75th birthday of Austria's President Dr. Adolf Schaerf, the 600th anniversary of Vienna University, the 100th anniversary of Austria's Telecommunications Union, 50th anniversary of the Union of Austrian cities, 175th anniversary of the birth of Austrian poet Ferdinand Raimund, 150th anniversary of Vienna's Technical University, 60th anniversary of the first Nobel Peace Prize award to Berta von Suttner.

Malawi has issued the first Christmas stamps ever produced by an African nation. There are four values in the set. The design shows a world globe with the Star of Bethlehem shining down on it. The inscription at the top of the stamp reads "Peace & Goodwill Toward All Men."

Ceylon reports the issuance of a new stamp for th International Industrial Exhibition and Trade Fair which will be held at the Havelock Race Course in Colombo in 1965. The stamp depicts exhibition buildings and also features the symbolic wheels of industry. The new stamp was printed in Hungary and this is a "first" for Ceylon postal authorities. Heretofore Ceylon stamps have been printed in England, Switzerland or the Netherlands.

Ghana has issued three new stamps and a souvenir sheet to honor Human Rights Day. Two of the stamps depict George Washington Carver and the highest value shows Albert Einstein.

From Nationalist China on Formosa comes word via the World Wide Philatelic Agency that two new stamps have been issued. One honors Hsu Kuang-Chi, scholar and statesman of the Ming Dynasty, and bears his portrait. The other is a set of four depicting local industries — pharmaceuticals, textile, cement and chemicals.

COLOMBO — Ceylon has announced she has no intention of paying for any losses suffered when she nationalized some firms.

Cataract Is Frozen for Winter Fun

NIAGARA FALLS —A mantle of ice and snow has transformed the cataracts of Niagara into a panorama of wintry beauty, one which many believe is the epitome of Niagara Falls scenery.

Freezing spray from the cataracts has coated the rocks near the Falls, bent the trees near the cataracts into unusual shapes and generally provided a dramatic scene for the nature-lover and unparalleled photographic opportunities for those who wish to record one of the world's great scenic wonders on film.

In addition to the icy spectacle surrounding the falls, each year an ice bridge has formed in the lower river below the cataracts, spanning the river from Canadian to United States shores. The "bridge" is formed by ice plunging over the cataracts jamming in the river below the falls.

Visitors are not permitted to cross the river on this "bridge." Until 1912, it was a popular winter pastime to explore the ice glut. Refreshment stands were built on the "bridge." Then, one Sunday afternoon, the ice tore apart unexpectedly and three persons who could not escape to shore were carried to their deaths.

Safe vantage points in the New York and Ontario parks are provided now for sightseers, and those wishing to cross the border can do so on one of the Niagara Falls area's three briges.

While winter clothing is recommended for visitors, they generally will escape extreme conditions despite their icy surroundings. Temperatures usually are in the 20's and 30's, often higher. A zero-degree day is considered a major news story by area newspapers.

The falls are at their peak heights at this time of year. With maximum diversion permitted the power-producing agencies in the U. S. and Canada, the lower river is at its lowest level.

TODAY'S COVER

The year that was, was 1964 and today's cover is made up of some of the covers from the past year. It indicates some of the wide variety of cover stories carried in Leisuretime during the past year. They include just about everything from stone faces to witches to "good junk" to chess to slot racing to snow shoe hiking. On pages 12 and 13, you'll find some more pictures from popular stories presented in Leisuretime during 1964 and a brief recap of Leisuretime's year. Lest you don't read the story, we will take this opportunity to wish our readers a very happy and prosperous 1965.

Hollywood is Drearier Without Lovely Olivia

BY DICK KLEINER
Hollywood Correspondent
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Olivia DeHavilland has gone back to Paris. and Hollywood is a bit drearier for her absence. I had lunch with her a few days before she left and we talked about this Hollywood visit, her first in some years.

"I've thoroughly enjoyed it," she said, beaming as only DeHavilland can beam. "What a wonderful change has come over Hollywood! Ten years ago it was a very depressing place to work in. Everyone was living in the past, and the whole attitude was one of dust.

"But now, Hollywood seems to have come to terms with the past. This city is living in the present now, and it is a comforting thing to see it and be a part of it."

And she was a vital part of it, for the few months she was here. If you remember, she was rushed here from Switzerland to take over Joan Crawford's part in "Hush . . .Hush, Sweet Charlotte" with Bette Davis.

"Yes," she says, "I've seen the picture. And I was pleased with it—and with my performance. I shouldn't say that. The proper attitude, I know, is that one should be humble and full of self-doubt. And I usually am. But in this case I must say that I liked both the picture and my performance."

Olivia says this was the first time she has seen Hollywood through her children's eyes. Giselle is 8 and Benjy is 15. And both loved it here.

She explained that they came directly from Switzerland. And Giselle brought with her her four Swiss snails—Etienne, Gaston, Jules and Clementine—who were promptly confiscated by an alert Department of Agriculture representative. They were returned to her as she stepped on the plane for the return trip.

Benjy's problem was a more difficult one. He fell in love with American television. He would sit mesmerized in front of the set by the hour, the day, the week.

"Finally," Olivia says, "I ordered the set removed from his room. But he outsmarted me, the television man and the entire hotel staff."

Benjy created a diversionary skirmish. He locked himself in a bathroom. By the time mama and the authorities persuaded him to open up, they had completely forgotten the television set. And Benjy had taken the precaution of hiding it first—in and among his mother's luggage in a vast closet.

"For a week or so," Olivia says, with a mixture of pride and disappointmeent, "he kept it hidden. When I went out, he'd take it out and plug it in and watch. When I came home, he'd stick it in the closet again.

Stamps in the News

By SYD KRONISH

India has issued a new stamp with a theme which is a departure from previous Indian issues, reports the World Wide Philatelic Agency. The new adhesive honors the visit of Pope Paul VI to that country and depicts St. Thomas who brought Christianity to India. Historians have traced the journeys of St. Thomas along the coast of the Persian Gulf and the Arabian

Sea, founding Christian churches as he traveled. His influence was felt in Iran, Pakistan and India where he was martyred in the city of Madras. The new stamp from India shows a photograph of the bust portion of a radiant golden and bejeweled statue of St. Thomas from a church in southern India.

Austria has announced its 1965 schedule of commemorative stamps. Some of the themes are: the 75th birthday of Austria's President Dr. Adolf Schaerf, the 600th anniversary of Vienna University, the 100th anniversary of Austria's Telecommunications Union, 50th anniversary of the Union of Austrian cities, 175th anniversary of the birth of Austrian poet Ferdinand Raimund, 150th anniversary of Vienna's Technical University, 60th anniversary of the first Nobel Peace Prize award to Berta von Suttner.

Malawi has issued the first Christmas stamps ever produced by an African nation. There are four values in the set. The design shows a world globe with the Star of Bethlehem shining down on it. The inscription at the top of the stamp reads "Peace & Goodwill Toward All Men."

Ceylon reports the issuance of a new stamp for th International Industrial Exhibition and Trade Fair which will be held at the Havelock Race Course in Colombo in 1965. The stamp depicts exhibition buildings and also features the symbolic wheels of industry. The new stamp was printed in Hungary and this is a "first" for Ceylon postal authorities. Heretofore Ceylon stamps have been printed in England, Switzerland or the Netherlands.

Ghana has issued three new stamps and a souvenir sheet to honor Human Rights Day. Two of the stamps depict George Washington Carver and the highest value shows Albert Einstein.

From Nationalist China on Formosa comes word via the World Wide Philatelic Agency that two new stamps have been issued. One honors Hsu Kuang-Chi, scholar and statesman of the Ming Dynasty, and bears his portrait. The other is a set of four depicting local industries — pharmaceuticals, textile, cement and chemicals.

COLOMBO — Ceylon has announced she has no intention of paying for any losses suffered when she nationalized some firms.

Cataract Is Frozen for Winter Fun

NIAGARA FALLS —A mantle of ice and snow has transformed the cataracts of Niagara into a panorama of wintry beauty, one which many believe is the epitome of Niagara Falls scenery.

Freezing spray from the cataracts has coated the rocks near the Falls, bent the trees near the cataracts into unusual shapes and generally provided a dramatic scene for the nature-lover and unparalleled photographic opportunities for those who wish to record one of the world's great scenic wonders on film.

In addition to the icy spectacle surrounding the falls, each year an ice bridge has formed in the lower river below the cataracts, spanning the river from Canadian to United States shores. The "bridge" is formed by ice plunging over the cataracts jamming in the river below the falls.

Visitors are not permitted to cross the river on this "bridge." Until 1912, it was a popular winter pastime to explore the ice glut. Refreshment stands were built on the "bridge." Then, one Sunday afternoon, the ice tore apart unexpectedly and three persons who could not escape to shore were carried to their deaths.

Safe vantage points in the New York and Ontario parks are provided now for sightseers, and those wishing to cross the border can do so on one of the Niagara Falls area's three briges.

While winter clothing is recommended for visitors, they generally will escape extreme conditions despite their icy surroundings. Temperatures usually are in the 20's and 30's, often higher. A zero-degree day is considered a major news story by area newspapers.

The falls are at their peak heights at this time of year. With maximum diversion permitted the power-producing agencies in the U. S. and Canada, the lower river is at its lowest level.

Figaro Proves Past Image Of Mozart Was Very Wrong

By JIM GLEN
Gazette Telegraph Staff Writer

The Mozart image of our predecessors was the rococo Mozart confined to a world characterized by the concepts of "charm" and "gracefulness."

When Wagner described Mozart as "genius of light and love" the phrase had an unfortunate effect as its implications led people to view the master of Salzburg from an almost completely wrong angle.

Today's opera, "Le Nozze de Figaro," (The Marriage of Figaro), which will be broadcast at noon on radio station KOA from the stage of the Met, is something more than charming and graceful. The work is soaked in the spirit of revolution.

Mozart based it on Beaumarchais' comedy, "Le Mariage de Figaro," first given in Paris in 1784 after three years of the very finest kind of publicity—being banned by the authorities. It had also been banned in Vienna where Mozart was living off and on.

The play struck straight at the heart of the existing order — the so-called divine right of the nobles to do as they pleased. Only five years after its premiere the Bastille fell and the French Revolution was under way.

Mozart had read the play and wanted to transfer it to the opera house. But he encountered serious difficulties for Emperor Joseph II refused to sanction such a work which he believed immoral. Even more distrubing than the moral aspect were the political implications inherent in the piece.

Finally Lorenzo da Ponte, a poet and Mozart's librettist, submitted a satisfactory draft, the emperor gave the royal nod, and the composer set to work.

On May 1, 1786 "The Marriage of Figaro" was first presented at Vienna's Burg Theatre and the first act was a fiasco.

Due to backbiting and intrigue by Mozart's and da Ponte's rivals, half the cast had been induced to forget their lines, sing flat or sharp as the notion took them, and in general to make a hideous hash of the opera.

Mozart suffered dreadfully, and at the first intermission raced to the emperor in the Royal Box. After the composer had dutifully kissed his ruler's hand, says a contemporary account, His Royal Highness fixed a royal and steely glare on a Count Rosenburg. The count apparently was at the bottom of the whole wretched debacle. "Go and tell those singers," thundered the emperor, "that they stop their treachery instantly and sing that opera as they should, or they all leave my service tonight."

The threat was sufficient. The curtain rose on an excellent second act and the performance was a tremendous success with endless ovations and demands for encores.

But the "complete triumph" was not what it seemed for Mozart only got 450 gulden for his score and never received another penny. Although he was better known after "figaro" he was no better off.

Once more he reverted to what was almost a continual, monotonous and heart breaking pattern throughout his brief life, extreme poverty and teaching music for his living. He only lived 35 years and when he died his body was tumbled into a pauper's grave.

But Mozart's "Figaro" is one of the sunniest, one of the most civilized pieces of music ever written. It is filled with a profound humanity and sympathetic penetration of the human heart, particularly the heart of woman. In all opera there is no more poignant aria than the Dove sono sung by the countess.

"Figaro" is a landmark in the history of opera and in the development of Mozart. The bustling overture lays the groundwork of what is to come and though none of the melodies used here are heard later, the mood of intrigue and eighteenth century scheming and skullduggery is deftly laid with the most consumate elegance.

The plot is immensely complicated but so skilfully planned that one event follows the other without strain or awkward contriving.

Perhaps for the first time in opera we meet individuals, people with their own personalities and not stock figures or types.

How did Mozart achieve this? The simplest answer is his overwhelming genius, but the attentive listener can glean a further hint here and there.

In the marvelous recitative just before the countess sings Dove sono, the yearnings of a woman for her philandering husband and the intense loneliness of her situation are expressed in the strings. The countess herself is too well bred to put such sentiments into words.

In the duet, Via resti servita, where Mercellina and Susanna are two spitting alley cats, the turbulence of their feelings is again portrayed in the violins. The two women confine themselves to highly abusive comments. And so throughout the opera Mozart has caught the essential character of his men and women by his magical manipulation of the orchestra.

These recitatives provide yet another argument in that long standing dispute for opera in English. They are characteristic of many of the maestro's operas and though the libretto of "figaro" was written in Italian the Germans do not hesitate to sing it in German.

The recitative is a vocal composition in which the melody and fixed rhythm is largely discarded in favor of some imitation of natural speech inflexion. In Mozart the harpsichord or sometimes the piano provides the continuo, the stacatto phrases punctuating the speech rhythm.

The recitative expresses hurried thoughts, interjections and commands or communications furthering the plot and action. There is no question that an understanding of them increases the enjoyment of the listener. He knows what's going on.

So why not in English? It is a thought to ponder. Of course when the singer is singing in a foreign language we are more tolerant for we can depend on the melody to carry us along. And what if he or she sings in English? Past experience has convinced this listener that frequently an aria in English is as incomprehensible as the "Madaincomprehensible as the "Madam Butterfly" he once heard in Hebrew.

O'Brien Set To Appear in Cowboy Film

Pat O'Brien makes his first appearance in a feature western film with his signing by producer A. C. Lyles for an important role in "Town Tamer" at Paramount. O'Brien, who just returned this week from Eastern appearances in conjunction with his newly published autobiography, "The Wind at My Back," will appear as a judge in the outdoor-action drama which stars Dana Andrews and Terry Moore.

"Town Tamer," which is being directed by Leslie Selander in Technicolor and Techniscope is based on a novel and screenplay by noted author Frank Gruber.

Charlie Is A Girl--at Cooper

Now showing at the Cooper theatre, "Goodbye Charlie" is a modern comedy based on the far-out premise that an unscrupulous, lecherous screenwriter, after being shot during a dalliance, can be reincarnated as a beautiful, blonde girl who retains the man's mind and guile. The cast includes many of the brightest talents in Hollywood and is headed by Debbie Reynolds, as "Charlie," Tony Curtis, Pat Boone, Walter Matthau Laura Devon, Martin Gabel, Joanna Barnes and Ellen McRae.

Curtis and Miss Reynolds were signed by producer David Weisbart and director Vincente Minnelli immediately following their recent successes: Curtis in "Captain Newman, M.D." and Miss Reynolds in "The Unsinkable Molly Brown." Pat Boone is at the peak of his career in three fields — acting, singing and writing, and Walter Matthau appears in "Goodbye Charlie" after many notable stage, screen and television assignments, including "Charade."

Others in the cast are Myrna Hansen, Michael Romanoff, Roger Carmel, Harry Madden and Playboy Magazine's 1964 Playgirl of the Year, Donna Michelle.

"Goodbye Charlie" is based on an original play by George Axelrod and was filmed in CinemaScope and DeLuxe Color, the perfect setting for the $250,000 wardrobe created for Miss Reynolds by Academy Award-winning designer Helen Rose. Her creations range from a provocative two - piece blue-checked bikini to a breath-taking beaded evening gown. Working closely with Miss Rose was one of Hollywood's top hair stylists, Sydney Guilaroff, who shaped Miss Reynold's blonde tresses in styles enhancing her dazzling wardrobe. In fact, when Miss Reynolds is having her hair done in the picture, it is actually Guilaroff who portrays the hair stylist.

The title song and "Seven at Once" were written by Academy Award - winner Andre Previn with lyrics by Dory Langdon, Previn's wife. Previn also wrote the background score for the film.

NO MOTHER, I'M ALONE — Or so Sean Connery, alias James Bond, alias Agent 007, seems to be saying in this scene from Ian Fleming's last novel, "Goldfinger." Now playing at the Chief Theatre, the film is the third made from the 10 Bond novels Fleming wrote. Oh yes, the nubile young thing in the golden tresses is Honor Blackman, who is cast as Pussy Galore in the film.

CLINCH—James Garner and Julie Andrews, portraying a U.S. Navy Commander and a British volunteer driver in World War II, find themselves head-over-heels in love in Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's "The Americanization of Emily," now at the Ute Theatre. Academy-winner Melvyn Douglas also stars in the screen version of William Bradford Huie's controversial best-selling novel.

'Goldfinger' Now Playing At Chief

A top - rated British television series called "The Avengers" made Honor Blackman famous as a black - booted, leather - clad heroine — but she is destined for American immortality as Pussy Galore in the latest James Bond Technicolor thriller, "Goldfinger," now playing at the Chief Theatre, through United Artists release. Again starring Sean Connery as the dapper Agent 007, "Goldfinger" casts Miss Blackman as a man - hating girl flyer who succumbs to the romantic attentions of the irresistible, indestructible James Bond.

A former Rank contract star, Miss Blackman's film credits include "Fame is the Spur," "Quartet" and "A Night to Remember." More recently she has concentrated mainly upon stage and television work, since her last screen role as the goddess Hera in "Jason and the Argonauts."

Blond, with vivid blue eyes and a memorable figure, Miss Blackman has been signed to a five year contract by Harry Saltzman and Albert R. Broccoli, producers of the popular Bond series ("Dr. No" and "From Russia With Love" were the first two — and there are seven more to go!). In "Goldfinger," Honor is the pilot of arch - criminal Auric Goldfinger, who plots to rob, of all places, Fort Knox!

Error Brings Memories of Depression

A recent Lucille Ball television show plunged us back into the worst days of the depression, when it grossly underrated the value of the rare misprinted 1918 U.S. airmail stamp, considered a collectors treasure. The stamp, featuring a picture of a plane upside down, was quoted as worth $3,000, while the "plane" truth, according to Scott Catalog Number C3APl 24c Invert, current value is $12,500. The last time it was valued at anywhere near the lower figure was in 1932, and even then it sold for $200 more than the show quoted. Is this television's answer to inflation?

Ute to Get Epic Movie Of the West

The battle, considered among the most exciting spectacles ever filmed, was stated on the very soil where the Uncompahgre Utes raged relentless war against the white men heading West by wagon train.

This was the region around Montrose, Colorado, in the shadows of the Rocky Mountains, with the Metro-color cameras moving about in a radius of 1,000 square miles to take advantage of some of the world's most spectacular and colorful scenery.

Gregory Peck, Debbie Reynolds, Robert Preston and Thelma Ritter headed the group of 200 players who made up the members of the wagon train. More than 600 horses and mules were used in the scenes, plus 50 head of oxen. Thirty wagons, historically accurate in every detail, made up the wagon train.

Director Henry Hathaway filmed the covered wagon and Indian battle scenes over a period of three weeks in the Montrose area and then spent an additional four weeks in the High Sierras of California. He accomplished this ambitious assignment with such painstaking care that only a few minor injuries were suffered by riders from intentional horse falls or accidental spills. None of the animals was injured.

For one spectacular shot, a wagon train was rolled around and around down a hillside with two men inside. A specially placed camera in the interior of the wagon recorded every second of their bouncing, tumbling ride while the scenery spins about like shirts in a clothes dryer.

Each Indian tested for "How the West Was Won" had to prove himself in a sort of tournament that might have been called the "Early American Olympics." They had to ride without saddles at top speed while firing a gun or shooting bow and arrow, their hands never once touching the rope reins. Only one out of every three tested qualified.

'Emily' Now Showing at Ute Theatre

Popular James Garner and James Coburn deliver standout comedy portrayals and, as a dramatic followup to the song-filled "Mary Poppins," Julie Andrews again proves herself a deft and charming performer.

The story finds Lt. Commander James Garner as an aide to Admiral Melvyn Douglas who is devoted to the Navy first, last, and always. Garner is attracted to British Army driver Julie Andrews and she to him, especially since he is an admitted coward. She feels that he is safe in World War II, which resulted thus far in the loss of her father, husband, and a brother. They have quite an affair.

Douglas becomes mentally upset by the strain of war and the recent loss of his wife and orders Garner to make a film about how important the Navy is in the forthcoming invasion, which he hopes to use to impress Congressional committees. Fellow officer James Coburn becomes intrigued at seeing the Navy come out on top and insists that Garner go through with the film, which is also to show that the first man killed in the invasion of France is a Navy man. Coburn forces Garner to advance up the beach at gun point when Garner only wants out.

His picture is taken as he falls under a hail of shot and shell, and his photo is used in all the papers. He is only wounded, it turns out, and there is a reconciliation between Andrews and Garner.

He is scheduled to make an appearance before a Congressional committee alongside a now mentally - recovered Douglas. Andrews prevents him from telling the truth about his part in the war and thus becomes Americanized.

They're Staying on the Beach and Making Money

By DICK KLEINER
Hollywood Correspondent
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

"Beach Blanket Bingo," now before the cameras here, is the latst of the Beach series — there was "Beach Party," Muscle Beach Party" and "Bikini Beach." But no, no, Nanette, "On the Beach" wasn't one of them.

These are the teen-agers' an- "Crime and Punishment."They swer to "War and Peace" and "Crime and Punishment." They are written and acted in a language that frequently defies adult comprehension. They follow certain patterns with their own traditions as rigid as a Kabuki dance.

Italked with director Bill Asher (Elizabeth Montgomery's husband) on the sand, as we tried to ignore the dozen or so assorted teenage sirens in bikinis and other beach attire who lounged around waiting for the next shot.

"I won't direct any other kind of picture any more," says Asher, who has done all the Beach films. "These are fun. And, also, these are honest. And I feel they have a lot of satire in them—there is much the same quality as 'Pink Panther' and 'A Shot In the Dark,' only on a teen-age level, of course.

"I could do many bigger pictures, with bigger stars. But I think that these pictures, even with all the girls in the bikinis, are mueh more moral than things like 'Night of the Iguana.'

"Maybe that is partly because these pictures are unreal. Maybe you've noticed that none of our kids are ever shown in their homes or even mention their parents or families."

"Beach Blanket Bingo," like its three predecessors, stars Annette Funicello, Frankie Avalon and Harvey Lembeck. These three play continuing roles, with others like Jody McCrea back again and then a few new faces and figures.

Lembeck, the fine comic actor, plays Eric Von Zipper, leader of a motorcycle gang. There are six boys and two girls in his group and he feels very paternal toward them. The group hangs out together around the set and there is talk about them making some personal appearances.

"These pictures are good for me," Lembeck says. "I enjoy them and they pay well and reach a tremendous audience. And my association with this company is the most pleasant I've ever had.

"In fact, there is a possibility that I may start a dramatic school for the younger American-International players."

Unlike most movies, there is a casual air around the "Beach Blanket Bingo" location. Wandering around and observing for a few hours, I noted:

Deborah Walley, a teen-age favorite, wearing a peppermint-striped sky diver suit and matching helmet (don't ask me why, except the script calls for it). She's working for the first time with her husband, John Ashley, and likes it because she doesn't have to drive herself to work.

Patti Chandler, one of the girls, saying how she came over from Hawaii to California and for the first few weeks had to huddle in bed with an electric blanket because she was so cold.

'Green Eyes' At Broadmoor Wednesday

Such an actor, it appears, is Peter Finch, who appears with the sensational find Rita Tushingham in the Woodfall Films production for Lopert Pictures release "Girl With Green Eyes," opening Wednesday at the Broadmoor Theatre after a triumphant New York engagment. This is Miss Tushingham's second picture, her first being the sensationally successful "A Taste of Honey."

In "Green Eyes," Finch plays a worldly writer who becomes involved in an incongruous love affair with the naive country girl half his age played by Miss Tushingham.

Finch was born in London but spent most of his growing years in Australia. Before becoming an actor he was a sheepherder, waiter, reporter and vaudeville comic. His first attempt at acting came in 1935 when he joined a road company putting shows in New South Wales and Queensland. By the time he was 23 he had twice won the annual award for radio acting.

His career, a highly promising one, was interrupted by the war in which he served as a gunner in the Australian Army. He later organized his own traveling company. One of his shows was accidentally "caught" by Sir Laurence Olivier and Vivien Leigh who liked his work and advised him to go to England.

He did, and began a highly successful career in British films in which he is still regarded as a top figure. Some of his better known films to American audiences are "No Love for Johnny," "Elephant Walk" (with Elizabeth Taylor), "The Nun's Story" and "The Sins of Rachel Cade."

T-a-m-i Now Showing at Aircadia

Teenagers are loaded. Consider these two eloquent facts. Twelve of their world-wide top musical favorites were cast in "The T-A-M-I Show," starting tonight at the Aircadia Drive In, after research disclosed that the youngsters spent $65 million on these stars' recordings during the past year alone.

Fact No. 2: "The T-A-M-I Show" was shown to theater owners. They know teenagers can buy what teenagers want. Result was that demand for the film rolled in from 2,200 theaters.

It seems to us there is an awful lot of loose criticism of teenagers. Take for example their reaction to their music. They scream. Well, let anyone who complains about that take a long, level look at the mothers of those teenagers. What did the mothers do when Frank Sinatra loomed up in the late 30's and early 40's? Everyone past 30 remembers. They screamed!

At a poll of 2,600 teenagers, the youngsters were screaming their delight at Jan and Dean, The Beach Boys, The Rolling Stones, and nine other top musical idols from throughout the world. All — fans and performers alike — are on local motion picture screens.

Your foot, too, will start beating out the rhythm if you join the fun in seeing Electronovision's "The T-A-M-I Show." It's what remains of the teenager in you, and we see nothing wrong in it.

'Tom Jones' Held Over At 'Flick'

The popular comedy classic, "Tom Jones," has also proven to be equally successful in its exclusive return engagement at the Flick Theatre. By popular demand, "Tom Jones" is being held over for a second and final week.

"Tom Jones" achieved the distinction of being voted best picture of the year by all the movie reviewers participating in the New Yorks critics poll. The film has also been honored lavishly by the Academy Awards as "Best Picture of the Year;" and in addition, won awards for "best director, best screenplay," and "best music score."

The National Board of Review named "Tom Jones" as the best picture of the year. Albert Finney, who plays the title role was voted "Best Actor" and producer-director Tony Richardson was voted "Best Director" by the New York Film Critics Poll.

The Finney-Richardson team has also been highly honored in legitimate theatre circles for the play "Luther." Finney has previously appeared in the film "Saturday Night and Sunday Morning;" and Richardson has directed "The Entertainer" and "Loneliness of the Long Distance Runner."

Roland Signs For Role in 'Harlow'

Joseph E. Levine has completed one of the most important castings of the year with the signing of Gilbert Roland in "Harlow" which will star Carroll Baker in the title role.

Roland's casting in "Harlow" is the third role set by producer Levine with Peter Lawford already signed to play Jean Harlow's second husband, Paul Bern, in the film based on Irving Shulman's best-seller, "Harlow. . .An Intimate Biography," and additional research by Embassy Pictures and Paramount Pictures.

"Harlow" is scheduled to go before the cameras in January at Paramount Studio in Hollywood. Gordon Douglas will direct the multi-million dollar Panavision - Technicolor production from Sydney Boehm's screenplay. Levine will personally supervise the production which will be released worldwide by Paramount Pictures.

Father Goose Slated Soon At Cooper

The actor, starring with Leslie Caron and Trevor Howard in Universal's "Father Goose," in Technicolor, opening soon at the Cooper Theatre, reports he is simply emulating the athletic appearance of the late Douglas Fairbanks.

Grant recalls that the first time he caught a glimpse of Fairbanks, aboard a ship en route from London to New York, he was indelibly impressed by Fairbanks bronze-hued complexion.

"I looked positively anemic in comparison," he says.

By DICK KLEINER
Hollywood Correspondent
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

"Beach Blanket Bingo," now before the cameras here, is the latst of the Beach series — there was "Beach Party," Muscle Beach Party" and "Bikini Beach." But no, no, Nanette, "On the Beach" wasn't one of them.

These are the teen-agers' an- "Crime and Punishment." They swer to "War and Peace" and "Crime and Punishment." They are written and acted in a language that frequently defies adult comprehension. They follow certain patterns with their own traditions as rigid as a Kabuki dance.

Italked with director Bill Asher (Elizabeth Montgomery's husband) on the sand, as we tried to ignore the dozen or so assorted teenage sirens in bikinis and other beach attire who lounged around waiting for the next shot.

"I won't direct any other kind of picture any more," says Asher, who has done all the Beach films. "These are fun. And, also, these are honest. And I feel they have a lot of satire in them—there is much the same quality as 'Pink Panther' and 'A Shot In the Dark,' only on a teen-age level, of course.

"I could do many bigger pictures, with bigger stars. But I think that these pictures, even with all the girls in the bikinis, are much more moral than things like 'Night of the Iguana.'

"Maybe that is partly because these pictures are unreal. Maybe you've noticed that none of our kids are ever shown in their homes or even mention their parents or families."

"Beach Blanket Bingo," like its three predecessors, stars Annette Funicello, Frankie Avalon and Harvey Lembeck. These three play continuing roles, with others like Jody McCrea back again and then a few new faces and figures.

Lembeck, the fine comic actor, plays Eric Von Zipper, leader of a motorcycle gang. There are six boys and two girls in his group and he feels very paternal toward them. The group hangs out together around the set and there is talk about them making some personal appearances.

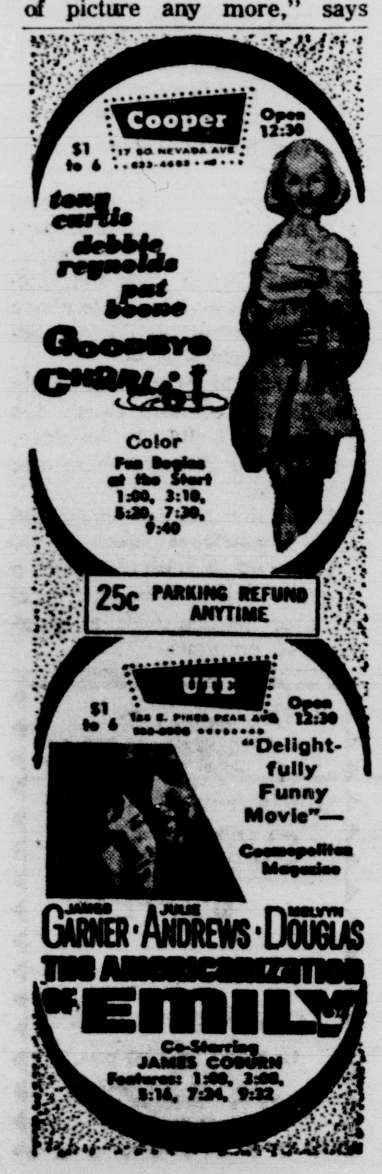
"These pictures are good for me," Lembeck says. "I enjoy them and they pay well and reach a tremendous audience. And my association with this company is the most pleasant I've ever had.

"In fact, there is a possibility that I may start a dramatic school for the younger American-International players."

Unlike most movies, there is a casual air around the "Beach Blanket Bingo" location. Wandering around and observing for a few hours, I noted:

Deborah Walley, a teen-age favorite, wearing a peppermint-striped sky diver suit and matching helmet (don't ask me why, except the script calls for it). She's working for the first time with her husband, John Ashley, and likes it because she doesn't have to drive herself to work.

Patti Chandler, one of the girls, saying how she came over from Hawaii to California and for the first few weeks had to huddle in bed with an electric blanket because she was so cold.



'Green Eyes' At Broadmoor Wednesday

An actor who can step instantly and absolutely into a character while expressing precisely a directors and screenwriter's image, is indeed endowed with a requisite for success. It should get him places, as the saying goes.

Such an actor, it appears, is Peter Finch, who appears with the sensational find Rita Tushingham in the Woodfall Films production for Lopert Pictures release "Girl With Green Eyes," opening Wednesday at the Broadmoor Theatre after a triumphant New York engagment. This is Miss Tushingham's second picture, her first being the sensationally successful "A Taste of Honey."

In "Green Eyes," Finch plays a worldly writer who becomes involved in an incongruous love affair with the naive country girl half his age played by Miss Tushingham.

Finch was born in London but spent most of his growing years in Australia. Before becoming an actor he was a sheepherder, waiter, reporter and vaudeville comic. His first attempt at acting came in 1935 when he joined a road company putting shows in New South Wales and Queensland. By the time he was 23 he had twice won the annual award for radio acting.

His career, a highly promising one, was interrupted by the war in which he served as a gunner in the Australian Army. He later organized his own traveling company. One of his shows was accidentally "caught" by Sir Laurence Olivier and Vivien Leigh who liked his work and advised him to go to England.

He did, and began a highly successful career in British films in which he is still regarded as a top figure. Some of his better known films to American audiences are "No Love for Johnny," "Elephant Walk" (with Elizabeth Taylor), "The Nun's Story" and "The Sins of Rachel Cade."

T-a-m-i Now Showing at Aircadia

Teenagers are loaded. Consider these two eloquent facts. Twelve of their world-wide top musical favorites were cast in "The T-A-M-I Show," starting tonight at the Aircadia Drive In, after research disclosed that the youngsters spent $65 million on these stars' recordings during the past year alone.

Fact No. 2: "The T-A-M-I Show" was shown to theater owners. They know teenagers can buy what teenagers want. Result was that demand for the film rolled in from 2,200 theaters.

It seems to us there is an awful lot of loose criticism of teenagers. Take for example their reaction to their music. They scream. Well, let anyone who complains about that take a long, level look at the mothers of those teenagers. What did the mothers do when Frank Sinatra loomed up in the late 30's and early 40's? Everyone past 30 remembers. They screamed!

At a poll of 2,600 teenagers, the youngsters were screaming their delight at Jan and Dean, The Beach Boys, The Rolling Stones, and nine other top musical idols from throughout the world. All — fans and performers alike — are on local motion picture screens.

Your foot, too, will start beating out the rhythm if you join the fun in seeing Electronovision's "The T-A-M-I Show." It's what remains of the teenager in you, and we see nothing wrong in it.

'Tom Jones' Held Over At 'Flick'

The popular comedy classic, "Tom Jones," has also proven to be equally successful in its exclusive return engagement at the Flick Theatre. By popular demand, "Tom Jones" is being held over for a second and final week.

"Tom Jones" achieved the distinction of being voted best picture of the year by all the movie reviewers participating in the New Yorks critics poll. The film has also been honored lavishly by the Academy Awards as "Best Picture of the Year;" and in addition, won awards for "best director, best screenplay," and "best music score."

The National Board of Review named "Tom Jones" as the best picture of the year. Albert Finney, who plays the title role was voted "Best Actor" and producer-director Tony Richardson was voted "Best Director" by the New York Film Critics Poll.

The Finney-Richardson team has also been highly honored in legitimate theatre circles for the play "Luther." Finney has previously appeared in the film "Saturday Night and Sunday Morning;" and Richardson has directed "The Entertainer" and "Loneliness of the Long Distance Runner."

Roland Signs For Role in 'Harlow'

Joseph E. Levine has completed one of the most important castings of the year with the signing of Gilbert Roland in "Harlow" which will star Carroll Baker in the title role.

Bello, the stepfather of Jean Harlow, played a powerful and disturbing part in the late actress' career.

Roland's casting in "Harlow" is the third role set by producer Levine with Peter Lawford already signed to play Jean Harlow's second husband, Paul Bern, in the film based on Irving Shulman's best-seller, "Harlow. . .An Intimate Biography," and additional research by Embassy Pictures and Paramount Pictures.

"Harlow" is scheduled to go before the cameras in January at Paramount Studio in Hollywood. Gordon Douglas will direct the multi-million dollar Panavision - Technicolor production from Sydney Boehm's screenplay. Levine will personally supervise the production which will be released worldwide by Paramount Pictures.

Father Goose Slated Soon At Cooper

The actor, starring with Leslie Caron and Trevor Howard in Universal's "Father Goose," in Technicolor, opening soon at the Cooper Theatre, reports he is simply emulating the athletic appearance of the late Douglas Fairbanks.

Grant recalls that the first time he caught a glimpse of Fairbanks, aboard a ship en route from London to New York, he was indelibly impressed by Fairbanks bronze-hued complexion.

"I looked positively anemic in comparison," he says.

Lou and Husband Get Special Recognition

There was a big representation at the Southeast Council meeting at the Carriage Stop. A double slate of officers was presented and election will be held at the January meeting in Pueblo.

The Pikes Peak Promenaders entertained with exhibition dances and were given a great ovation for their perfect performance. Visitors from the State Association were Mr. and Mrs. Owen Milman, president; Mr. and Mrs. Jack Halfacre, public relations chairman; and Mr. & Mrs. Harold Weselquist, chairman of reservations for the National Convention. Jack Halfacre presented a beautiful designed plaque to the Southeast Council as an award for the most publicity obtained for "Learn to Square Dance Week." Maurice and Lou Maddock were given special recognition for their efforts in getting this publicity before the people of the Pikes Peak Region (through the GT), and recognition was also given to Norman and Joy Chichester for their assistance. Refreshments were served by the host clubs, the Waggin Wheelers and Circle B's.

The Country Two Steppers dance was well attended Wednesday evening, with Don Hanhurst of Golden calling. Don brought his wife, Loretta, along. Refreshments were served during the evening.

The Waggin Wheelers had their Christmas dance on Friday night with a Carriage Stop full of squares. The Pikes Peak Promenaders presented their exhibition dances. Lee Barnes, their caller, says he can use three more girls, teenagers who are already square dancers, to come dance or join the Promenaders. Refreshments in keeping with the season were served throughout the evening. At intermission, two lines, one of men and one of women, marched up to the beautifully decorated tree and chose a gift.

The Eagle's Hall was full to capacity at their covered dish supper and dance on Tuesday evening. Many couples from other clubs were present, and Norm Chichester's Beaus and Belles took the banner home with them. That calls for a visit of Eagle 8's to their dance to retrieve the banner, a beautiful way to invite visitors. During the evening graduation ceremonies were held for Spencer's latest class. We hope to see them around at some of the other clubs in order for them to get the most out of square dancing — Friendship.

Five couples from the area journeyed to Lyons to the big Holiday Dance last Saturday, called by Don Franklin, Jerry Haag, and Beryl Main. The Treasurer of Red Rock Ramblers reported 532 people paid admission, which divided makes more than 68 sets, and the hall has a capacity of 30 squares, so it was crowded to say the least. Our travelers earned their Knothead badges. There were dancers there from as far away as Liverpool, England, and the Island of Guam.

All the beginners classes have now graduated and two new classes are being announced. Harold Palmer will start a class on Thursday evening, January 7 at the Carriage Stop. Spencer Yates will begin a new class at the Eagles Lodge on Thursday evening, January 21. The first dance will be free.

Voice of JFK On 'Courage' Is Explained

On "Profiles in Courage" over NBC-TV Sunday evenings the late President Kennedy's voice is heard speaking words he never got a chance to tape.

The explanation for this seeming paradox lies in a chain of events that goes back to 1957.

At that time, John F. Kennedy was a Senator and — more to the point — an author. He had just written that year's Pulitzer Prize winning book, "Profiles in Courage," stories of Americans who had risked their careers and popularity in unusual displays of personal courage.

Because of his book, Senator Kennedy was invited by Robert Saudek, producer of the television series, "Omnibus," to narrate one of the series' programs, "Call It Courage."

This was the first meeting between these two men, but not the last. They met next in 1961. By this time the Senator had become the President. And by this time the President had chosen Saudek to bring "Profiles in Courage" to televison.

In the producer's initial conversation with President Kennedy on the latter's role in the series, it was agreed that the President should not be seen. Also, it was agreed that he also would not be heard, as narrator, except for one possibility.

Saudek hoped that each drama in the series could end with the President's narration of the book's closing paragraph:

"The stories of past courage can teach, they can offer hope, they can provide inspiration. But they cannot supply courage itself. For this each man must look into his own soul."

Before the start of the series, Saudek, for no particular reason, felt moved to rerun his kinescoped recording of the 1957 program. To his utter surprise, because he had completely forgotten it, the program closed with the paragraph in question. And in the voice of John F. Kennedy.

Now each episode of "Profiles in Courage" ends with John F. Kennedy speaking the words he never got a chance to tape.

Beattie: Key To Success Is French Style

In setting up an annual National Alpine training camp such as the one going on now at Vail-American ski leadership is using a system which has been proven effective by international powers Austria and France. The training approach by all three nations is the same. It involves great stress on downhill racing — a stress designed to improve durability and stamina in addition to the speed of the racers. U.S. Head Alpine Coach Bob Beattie explains the approach.

"The purpose of a national camp is to give our nation's top racers an opportunity to work long and hard on an excellent racing trail. As coaches, we don't try to work too much with the racers insofar as their techniques are concerned. We don't want to tamper with their styles. It is too late in the season for that. What we do want, though, is their complete dedication to improving their stamina and speed. There is only one way to do this — through long hours of hard work. That's what everybody is here for. There is no mysterious formula for success."

The U.S. training camp is scheduled over the Christmas holiday period because the great majority of trainees are college and high school students who will be on vacation.

The Austrians have been training at Bad Gastein, the French at Val d'Isere. The three nations will collide in the number one international race of the winter at Vail — March 13-14-15 in the first annual American International Team Race —"A Memorial to Bud Werner."

These three countries captured 17 of the 18 Alpine ski medals at the 1964 Winter Olympics and most of the athletes who won them will be in action at Vail during the March snow classic.

GOOD APPETITE by Marguerite Mitchell

'Salmugundi Salad' is The Answer to Leftovers

Before the icebox roars with rage at being stuffed with an assortment of bowls of this and that, take everything out and make a "Salamagundi" salad.

I had this served to me once on a voyage from New Orleans to Panama when the ship's galley became a trifle heavy with leftovers.

Combine two cups cold cooked pork or chicken (or any other meat for that matter), cut in one-half inch dice, with one-half cup each cold cooked beets and potatoes, both diced, peas, beans or limas, two tablespoons each pickles, onion, parsley and chives, all chopped, and four anchovey fillets, chopped.

Combine one-half cup oil with three tablespoons vinegar, add to above mixture and toss thoroughly but lightly. Marinate in refrigerator for one hour. Drain off excess marinade and serve in lettuce cups.

Serve with mayonnaise separately, or with a Cream French dressing.

Cream French Dressing

2 egg yolks
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon dry mustard
1 tablespoon paprika
1 tablespoon sugar
¼ teaspoon white pepper
½ cup lemon juice
½ cup vinegar
1 quart salad oil
½ cup ketchup
½ cup boiling water
1 small clove garlic

Beat yolks until light and stir in salt and mustard, paprika, sugar and white pepper. Alternate lemon juice and vinegar with oil and beat into above mixture as you would in making a mayonnaise.

Beat in ketchup and finally the boiling water. Crush the garlic and add to mixture, shake well. Remove the garlic if desired.

¼ teaspoon white pepper
½ cup lemon juice
½ cup vinegar
1 quart salad oil
½ cup ketchup
½ cup boiling water
1 small clove garlic

Beat yolks until light and stir in salt and mustard, paprika, sugar and white pepper. Alternate lemon juice and vinegar with oil and beat into above mixture as you would in making a mayonnaise.

Beat in ketchup and finally the boiling water. Crush the garlic and add to mixture, shake well. Remove the garlic if desired.

PIGS IN A POKE—Voluptuous Kim Novak, whose charms are self evident, appears fascinated with rustic life. However, these silly pigs seem totally oblivious to her own natural endowments. The farm setting is a scene from "The Amorous Adventures of Moll Flanders," currently being filmed in England.

PIGS IN A POKE—Voluptuous Kim Novak, whose charms are self evident, appears fascinated with rustic life. However, these silly pigs seem totally oblivious to her own natural endowments. The farm setting is a scene from "The Amorous Adventures of Moll Flanders," currently being filmed in England.

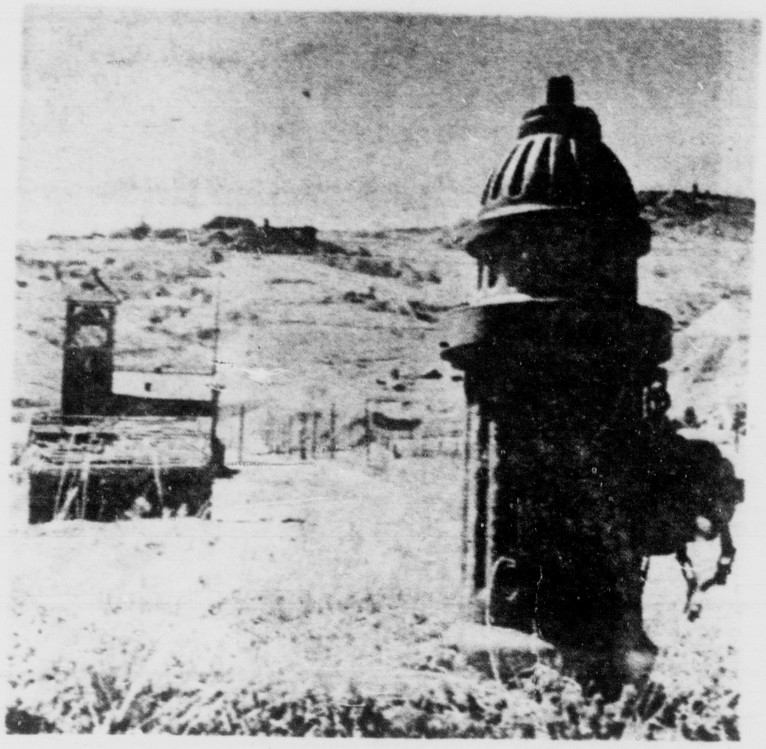
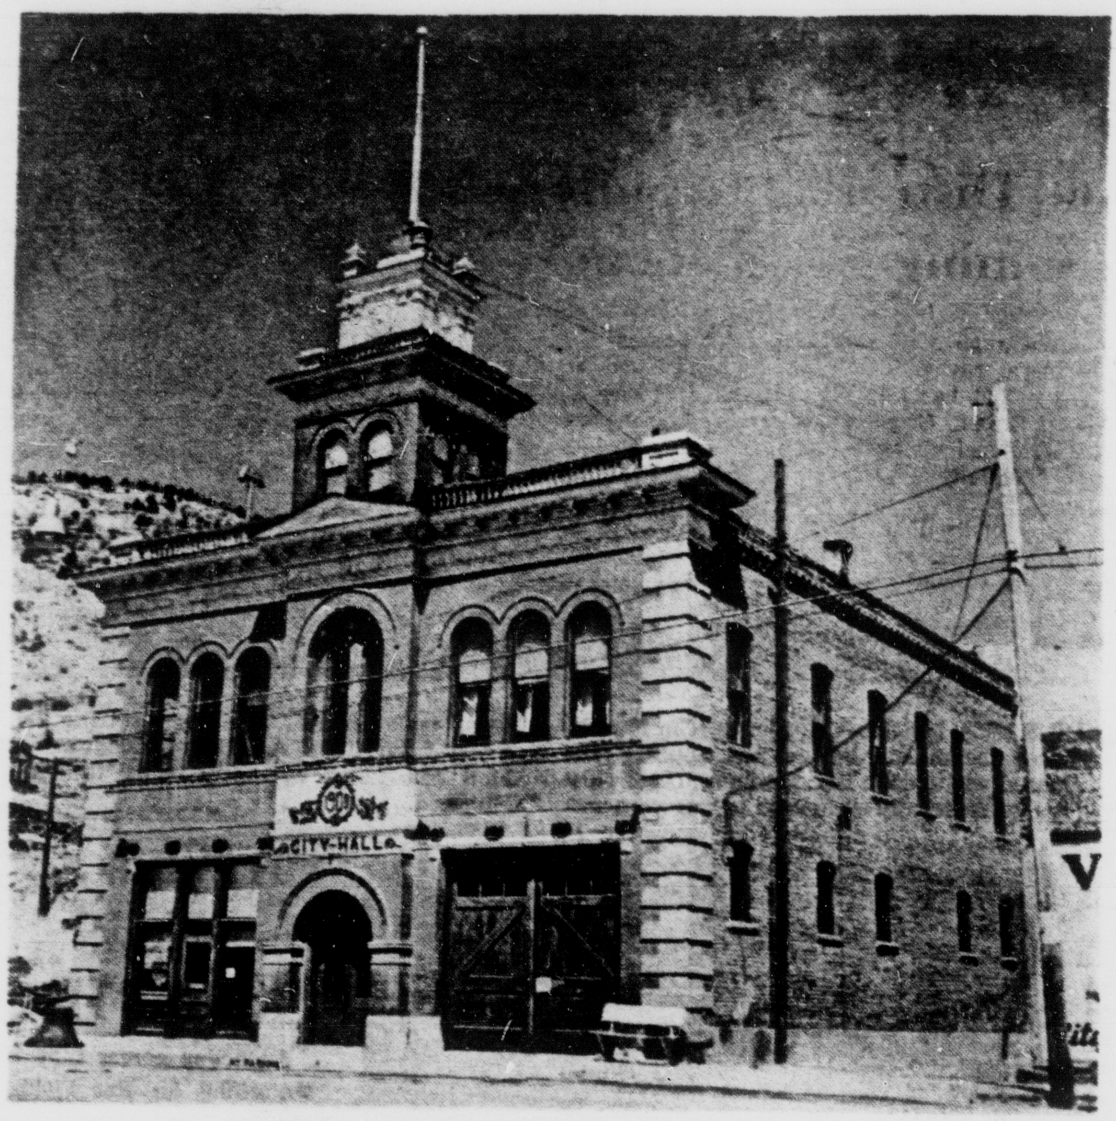
Area's History Is Crumbling



A SMALL REMNANT — A handsome new bell used to toll in the tower in the City Hall in Goldfield. The frame building, fighting a last ditch stand against the destructive wind and harsh winters, remains but the bell was long ago removed for safe keeping. Only a handful of people live here now.

MILLIONAIRE'S OFFICE — Winfield Scott Stratton, a carpenter before he became Cripple Creek's first millionaire, helped build this cabin situated in Winfield, headquarters for Stratton's empire. After he sold the Independence Mine, Stratton bought up vast acreage in the northern part of the camp but died before he could sink a shaft for his search for "a bowl of gold." The Pikes Peak Range Riders placed the "Assay Office" sign above the window in 1955. The cabin is an example of early-day rustic building in the district, using the wood available in the area.



STILL STANDING TALL — The Victor City Hall overlooks its town; its neighobring buildings mostly all gone. But this durable building, housing the town's fire engine and jail, retains its turn-of-the-century look. Nearby was the Gold Coin Mine, discovered when a hotel foundation was being dug.

STILL IN USE—The Masonic Temple, still a gathering place for residents of the District, was built during the boom days when more than 50,000 persons called Cripple Creek and Victor home. Shabby now, as are most of the structures in the District, the building still retains its ornate look, a remainder that in its day the ancient order of Masonry was practiced here in its most colorful manner.

Away While We Stand and Watch

Gold District Is Rapidly Becoming Just a Memory

By MARGUERITE MITCHELL
Gazette Telegraph Staff Writer

The general ravage of time and neglect that has taken its toll of the Cripple Creek Gold District is a sad commentary in this historically - admired area.

The people of the Pikes Peak Region have a deep interest in the things that built Colorado into a prosperous state, but unfortunately they sit back and watch their inheritance crumble.

Scores of landmarks in Colorado Springs have fallen at the machines of progress, but for the main that is for the good. The city must keep up with modern moves, so old examples of early - day grandeur must go.

But the Gold District is a different story. It is a tourist attraction and is part of this region's history and culture. When local residents visit the District, either out of nostalgia or to show it off to summer visitors, they can only describe its past glory for not much of the former late - Victorian character remains.

What is needed to revive the true picture of what the District means to the region naturally takes money. Many people recognize the value of the District to the region, but awareness of this is not enough.

Before this historic site becomes the sad story of a great and permanent loss, a program of renewal should be set up by a group bent on seeing that the District is not lost to the ages.

This city is blessed with countless working organizations of both men and women. What is needed is one that will spearhead such a program, and others will soon follow.

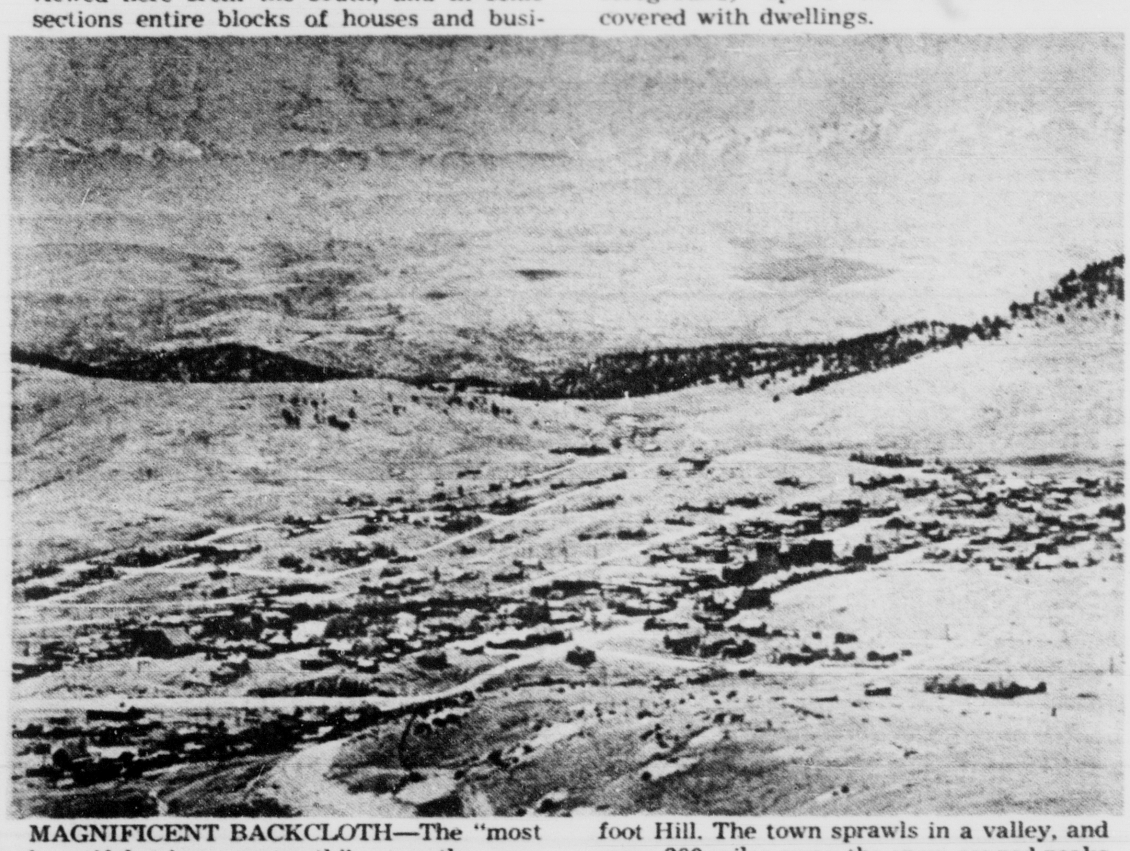
Unless something is done, and soon, the District faces an eventual eclipse. Because it is young — by Eastern and Southern American standards — the District is well documented; there are available hundreds of photographs, sketches and drawings of its architecture and design in its earlier days that artisans could use as blueprints to rebuild.

It would not only be an important urban renewal project, but one that would express the spirit of Colorado and its people. The gold that poured out of the Cripple Creek District helped to build Colorado Springs — the question now is, what has this city done to repay this obligation?

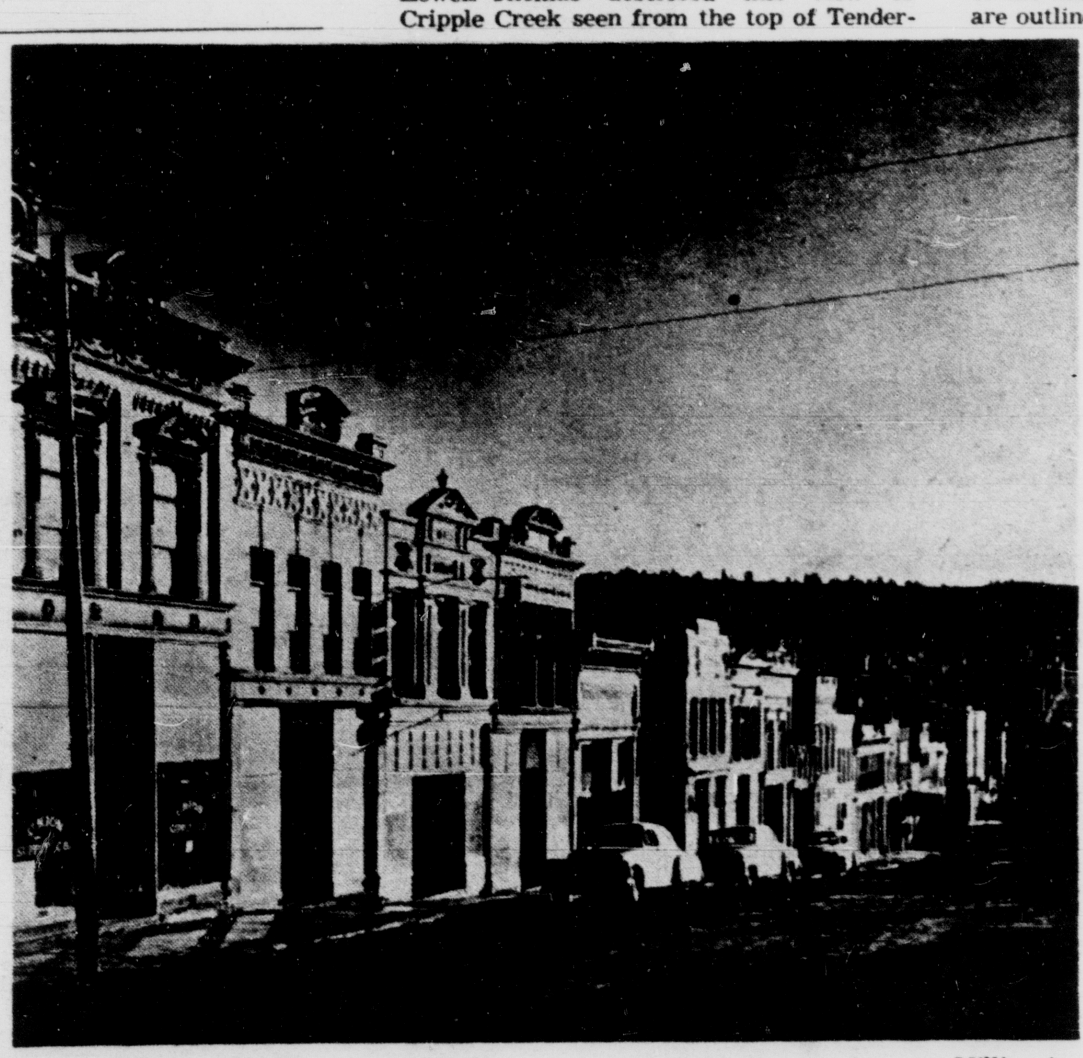
Anyone with an interest in our historical and cultural heritage should pause to ponder this question. We are at times unwitting human destroyers; we often do not recognize the value of something until it is much too late.

Before the Cripple Creek Gold District no longer exists, or is altered in such a way as to no longer give an indication of its original 19th Century appeal, let us try to preserve its remains, to make certain that in generations to come, it will still reflect the temper of its times.

BLEEK TIMES — After World War I, wrecking crews came into Cripple Creek, viewed here from the south, and in some sections entire blocks of houses and business establishments were torn down. The area from the rock wall foundation (in foreground) up to the town was once covered with dwellings.



MAGNIFICENT BACKCLOTH—The "most beautiful view on earth" was the way Lowell Thomas described this view of Cripple Creek seen from the top of Tenderfoot Hill. The town sprawls in a valley, and some 200 miles away the snow-capped peaks of the magnificent Sangre de Cristo Range are outlined by the brilliant blue of the sky.



AVENUE OF VICTORIAN SPLENDOR— The facades of the row of buildings lining Bennett Avenue in Cripple Creek were richly ornate several years ago. Three years ago the last mine in the District was closed, and the buildings for the most part were deserted and left to crumble in the gatherings twilight of a passing era. Millionaires and playboys, miners and cowboys, gamblers and dance hall girls, all trod this avenue in its heyday when Easterners thought the street was paved in gold in this most famous of the world's mining camps.

'Redhead' Dances Again

NEW YORK (AP) — A musical twin-bill is luring Gwen Verdon back to Broadway. The dancing star has limited herself to occasional TV appearances since the closing of "Redhead" in 1960.

The production that is slated for early next season is to comprise an adaptation of the hit Italian film, "Nights of Caliria," and an original, theme undisclosed, by Elaine May.

The town sprawls in a valley, and some 200 miles away the snow-capped peaks of the magnificent Sangre de Cristo Range are outlined by the brilliant blue of the sky.

AVENUE OF VICTORIAN SPLENDOR— The facades of the row of buildings lining Bennett Avenue in Cripple Creek were richly ornate several years ago. Three years ago the last mine in the District was closed, and the buildings for the most part were deserted and left to crumble in the gatherings twilight of a passing era. Millionaires and playboys, miners and cowboys, gamblers and dance hall girls, all trod this avenue in its heyday when Easterners thought the street was paved in gold in this most famous of the world's mining camps.

'Redhead' Dances Again

NEW YORK (AP) — A musical twin-bill is luring Gwen Verdon back to Broadway. The dancing star has limited herself to occasional TV appearances since the closing of "Redhead" in 1960.

The production that is slated for early next season is to comprise an adaptation of the hit Italian film, "Nights of Caliria," and an original, theme undisclosed, by Elaine May.

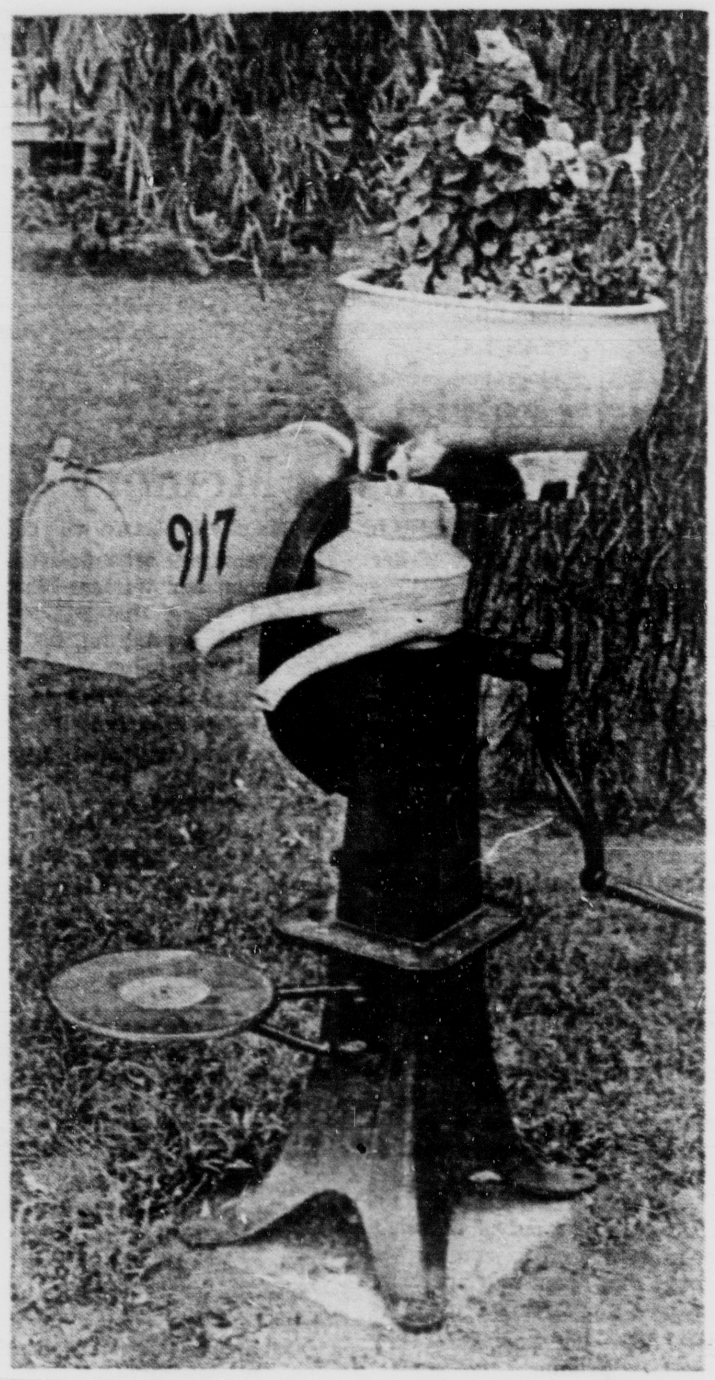
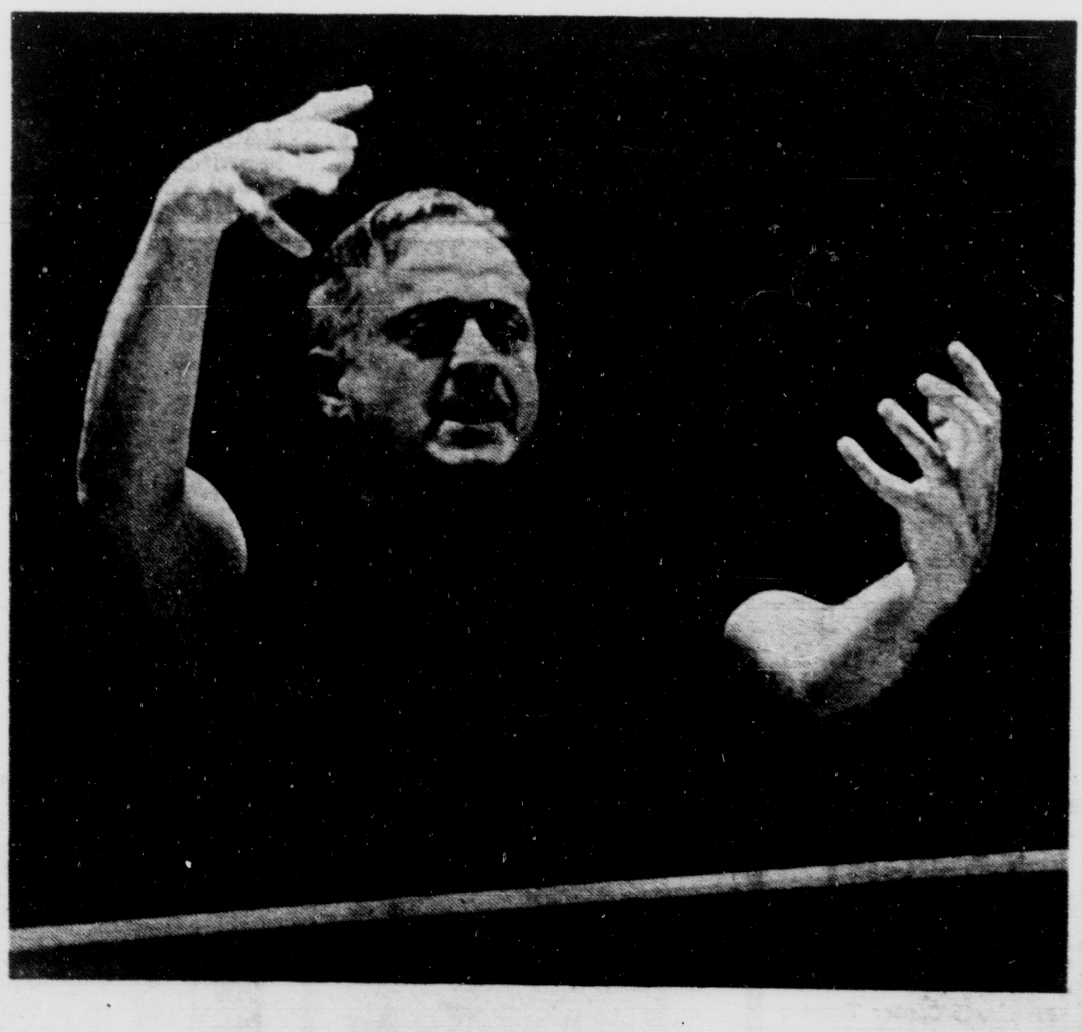
DRAMATIC SHOT — Stan Payne's dramatic shot of one of the Santos from the Fine Arts Center and Jim Glen's excellent story drew attention not only locally but from New Mexico, New York and California. It too was one of the most popular features presented in 1964, according to readers.



A MANY SPLENDORED THING—That's what Rusty Mitchell said of certain mailboxes in the area and Staff Photographer Stan Payne agreed. The two paired up for one of the most popular cover stories of the year. It appeared on Oct. 3.

ART UNNOTICED — Once again Stan Payne and Rusty Mitchell hit the jackpot with the art around us that nobody ever notices. This time it was the facades of buildings in Colorado Springs and readers on Nov. 7 found themselves looking up as they walked down the streets instead of around them.



THE MAN BEHIND THE HANDS — On March 28, the hands of Walter Esenberg, conductor of the Colorado Springs Symphony, were featured on Leisuretime's cover along with the hands of several members of the symphony. Jim Glen's story drew attention fro national publications.

It Was the Year That Was—1964

1964 was the year that was and we like to think it was a good year for Leisuretime.

It was a year of growth and expansion; a year in which Leisuretime added some new dimensions and a year in which, we like to think, we made some new friends.

It was a year that started off slow with the initiation of the cover story in the latter part of February — a feature that grew as the weeks passed.

It was also a year which saw the debut of several other new features. Rusty Mitchell's Good Appetite column found a ready readership as did Leisuretime Viewing, Over the Coffeecup, AM and FM. . .Amen and Jim Glen's dissertations on the weekly radio opera productions.

It was a year in which Mary Urban decided to take a long vacation from her column, Kennel Club Notes — a long vacation which only lasted two weeks. The readers wouldn't let her quit and recently she was presented an award for her efforts.

It was a year in which Lou Maddock also received an award for her popular Square 'em Up column.

It was a year in which Leisuretime often carried reviews of the movies appearing in Colorado Springs, something that hadn't been done before.

It was a year in which features in Leisuretime brought response from all over the country.

Jim Glen's story on the Santos at the Fine Arts Center brought in letters from as far away as New York. Another of Jim's stories, on the Colorado Springs Symphony, drew the interest of a national publication which sought a similar story.

Rusty Mitchell and Stan Payne teamed up for three cover stories which brought in phone calls and letters from Leisuretime readers. In the May 9 issue, Rusty did the text and Stan took the photos for the story "Don't Call It Junk, Buddy Boy." They followed it up on October 3 with the feature on unusual mail boxes in the area and came right back to score a hit Nov. 7 with the story on the building facades in Colorado Springs — the art nobody notices.

Tom Reaney and L. D. Mitchell were among a number of persons who wrote guest features for Leisuretime. On May 23, Reany's article blasting "pop art" stirred up quite a bit of controversy. In the same issue, Mitch converted a great number of people to the narrow gauge way of thinking with his story on the Memorial Day excursion of the Denver and Rio Grande Western Railroad's steam powered narrow gauge train.

Other features in Leisuretime during 1964 drew a wide range of response. One man said he received letters from New Orleans, California, New York, Chicago and other areas of the country. Another man said people from throughout the U.S. wrote him to ask about his hobby.

One feature drew requests from papers throughout Colorado for permission to use the same story in their publications.

We hope 1965 can be as successful. In the coming weeks, the reader can expect more of what we have presented in the past plus new additions from time to time. In the coming weeks, we will have a regular skiing column and we hope a record review column among other new features.

In the meantime, we want to wish you and yours a Happy and Most Prosperous 1965 from all of us connected with Leisuretime.

* * *

HE WASN'T BLACK, BUT . . . —Leisuretime readers didn't seem to mind Oct. 31 that Mousetrap wasn't black. The picture of the playful cat gingerly inspecting a jack-o-lantern drew a great deal of comment from readers.

THE FACE OF FAUST — On Oct. 13, the face of Naymond Thomas of Pueblo in full make-up for his role as Mephistopholes in the Opera Production of "Faust," stared out at Leisuretime readers and sent many of them scurrying to buy tickets for the production which was a complete success.

* * *

HE'S DANCING—Yes, that's exactly what he's doing. He and other teenagers were featured in a cover story in the Aug. 1 edition of Leisuretime as they danced at the Pink Panther.

LEISURETIME BOOKS by John Fetler

Sierra Club Battles Grand Canyon Dams

GRAND CANYON — Time and the River Flowing — By Francois Leydet — Edited by David Browder — SIERRA CLUB — San Francisco — $25 — This is probably one of the most spectacular volumes of text and photographs on the world famous Grand Canyon ever published. It is a large volume in format, with probably the finest collection of color photographs ever assembled into a great, single volume. But there is more to this grand volume, for it has been published with a double purpose.

The double purpose is that of "celebrating" in a high, poetic sense, the Grand Canyon, and 2. That of launching a gigantic battle to save the titanic canyon from the gimlet-eyed dogmatics, the grasping claws of the clever bureaucrats of the Bureau of Reclamation, who can see, apparently, nothing in America's grandest canyon than just "a mess of rocks," and useless ones at that.

The Sierra Club, which has launched this grand volume with its superb color pictures, points out that the irony of damming up the Grand Canyon would actually serve no good purpose for the Bureau or for the American people. The only purpose would be to prove that the Bureau can build another government dam, just because they want to build a dam, and the evidence be damned.

The plea of the book is: Leave the Grand Canyon alone in its timeless grandeur; if it is not left alone, all succeeding generations of Americans will feel the loss.

And, to back up the argument — as well as to provide a feast for the eyes — the book provides, with a rare accomplishment of the printing art, the many color photographs. The photos are superb, many of them taken in the mysterious half-dusk of the Grand Canyon. One would almost wish that the great firms of the photographic industry would tackle the problem of photographic "canvases," that is, of reproducing these photographs, in actual color, in the huge sizes, say the size of picture windows. What a tremendous impact this could have, providing haunting and spectacular glimpses into the world of the Grand Canyon captured for all time through the medium of color photography.

The great book has more than passing interest to Colorado Springs, for it includes an article by Richard C. Bradley, associate professor of physics at Colorado College, entitled: "Requiem for Glen Canyon," a subject which is closely tied to the battle now going on to save the Grand Canyon.

In it, Prof. Bradley says: "Our unconcern over the vanishing of our natural heritage is everywhere manifest, but is epitomized, we believe, by the recent tragic ruination of the incomparably beautiful Glen Canyon of the Colorado. . .The pattern developed at Glen Canyon, is scheduled for duplication again and again throughout the Colorado River Basin and along our other western rivers.

He explains that "two years ago the visitor could embark at Hite, and for the next hundred miles and more the living river, a friendly river with no dangerous rapids, would carry him through an enchanged canyonland. . .And now?. . .We had the feeling we were gazing at a lunar landscape — starkly barren, deathly still. We had indeed entered a 'silent spring' . . .(Since the gates at the dam were closed in January, 1963.;

Prof. Bradley takes a hard look at the issues of Glen Dam, which may be repeated in the Grand Canyon. "Admittedly," he says, "subjective considerations — call them sentimental if you like — should pale into insignificance if this dam, or the others like it now being planned, were sorely needed. Such, however, is not the case. Glen Canyon Dam is not only absolutely unnecessary, it is wasteful besides. . ."

Then he goes into the various reason why such dams are wasteful, and that the power sources they are supposed to provide for the government could be obtained more economically elsewhere. He quotes one reason: "There is the simple matter of economics. A published analysis by Alexander Hildebrand, professional engineer, has shown that steam plants. . .could sell electricity for less."

He sums up his argument by saying that "It is quite obvious . . .that we do not need to destroy the incomparable canyons of the Colorado River to produce power. If the Reclamation Bureau must rely on power sales to pay for its irrigation projects, then let it produce power in whatever manner and by whatever means is most economical and conservative of our irreplacable resources. . . How can an intelligent people ignore a bountiful supply of coal and at the same time permit the needless evaporation of hundreds of thousands of acre-feet of water each year when there isn't even enough water to go around?"

And Francois Leydet, the main author of the Grand Canyon volume, explains: "Time and the river flowing — the Colorado River through the melleniums — carved deep, created the great canyon, and is still shaping it. . .Upstream and unmarred was the exquisite beauty of Glen Canyon, The Place No One Knew. Most of it was destroyed early in 1963 when the U. S. Bureau of Reclamation closed a dam that was not necessary for this century and perhaps would never have been necessary. Now the same bureau has proposed to build dams in Grand Canyon itself as part of its Pacific Southwest Water Plan — to end the living river's flowing for all this civilization's time." Once the stream is destroyed, nothing will be able to restore which took a million years to create.

He explains further: "The dams the bureau plans to build in Marble Gorge and at Bridge Canyon, within the Grand Canyon proper, would destroy not only the living river but also the unique life forms that through the ages have come to depend upon the river's life. The major part of the canyon walls would still be there, but the pulsing heart of the place would be stopped. A chain of destructive forces would be begun. . .And needlessly. . .The dams would make no water available that is not available already. Indeed, they would waste enough to supply a major city and impair the quality of the too little that is left: water already too saline is made more so by evaporation, to the peril of downstream users, especially of neighbors in Mexico. All this on a river that already has more dams than it has water to fill them."

The Grand Canyon volume explores and investigates this problem, in addition to the marvellous nature potographs of the Grand Canyon. The Sierra Club explains: "Thanks to imaginative philanthrophy we are able to publish it as a public service, hoping that it will return its cost and make similar work feasible, to inform the people.

As the Sierra Club explains, its policy is "not blind opposition to progress, but opposition to blind progress," such as the technicians in the Bureau of Reclamation seem to want, and thereby create, under the excuse of water projects, new wastes in the "mess of mountains." — J. F.

Drifters Drifted Here With a Real Bang-up Show

Text and photos
by Joe Navarro
Gazette Telegraph staff
Photographer

Whenever music personalities make Colorado Springs one of their stop-overs there is a mad rush to their dressing rooms to meet and interview them and it was certainly no different when the Drifters performed at the City Auditorium here recently.

Anxious and impatient Drifter music lovers crowded into the auditorium approximately two hours before the famed group was to appear.

Behind stage it was the usual running from one end of the stage to the other setting up instruments and chaos associated with most performances.

While waiting everyone made themselves as comfortable as possible in a room too small to accomodate all who were to temporarily occupy it.

One could tell they were a bit on the tired side but they answered a continuous flow of questions.

Are you married or single?" Bill Pinkay, spokesman of the group was asked.

I prefer not to comment on that question", Bill said, making it clear that he did not wish to spread about his private life.

It seems that you are getting away from the music that you were generally associated with such as 'There Goes my Baby and I Count the Tears! They seem different from your recent record of 'Under the Boardwalk' and Saturday night at the Movies' Is this true?"

I believe you better ask Bill", Bobby Lee Hollis said.

But Bill declined to comment.

You can put this in your stories", Bill suddendly said. "We'll have our new record released in a couple of days. It's called 'Don't Call me, I'll call you. ' and the flip side is 'The Jerk".

Another dead end was reached when ages were asked. No Comment.

Photographing the group brought on a few light moments when they made a joke or two generally horsed around "Hey man, dig that bigbrown - ie, " one of them said, breaking up the others as he pointed to the huge graflex camera blowing off flashbulbs in their faces.

Still they were quite cooperative and seemed to enjoy posing. KYSN Disk jockys Jerry Schafer and Steve Scott had their pictures taken with the group before they broke for show time.

They sang all their past hit records including their first million seller, "Money Honey." Also included in the show was "Up on the Roof", Room full of Tears, Under the Boardwalk", I Count the Tears" "On Broadway" and countless other hits.

Gerhart Thrash Bill Pinkay, Jimmy Lewis, Bobby Lee Hollis and Bobby Hendricks make up the Drifters. Hendricks has had hits on his own such as "Phusco" and "Itchy-Twichy Feeling."

Former members of the Drifters inciude Ben E. King and Clyde Mc Phatter. They are now doing very well also.

Put these boys together and you have a singing group that has stood up against the strong competition of the more recently formed groups. The Drifters have been around since 1953 and the future still looks good for them in the recording and entertainment business.

Jerry Schafer said that Colorado Springs may be seeing James Brown and the Flames and if at all possible but no promises, The Beatles.

Whenever music personalities make Colorado Springs one of their stop-overs there is a mad rush to their dressing rooms to meet and interview them and it was certainly no different when the Drifters performed at the City Auditorium here recently.

Anxious and impatient Drifter music lovers crowded into the auditorium approximately two hours before the famed group was to appear.

Behind stage it was the usual running from one end of the stage to the other setting up instruments and chaos associated with most performances.

While waiting everyone made themselves as comfortable as possible in a room too small to accomodate all who were to temporarily occupy it.

Finally, after what seemed to be an eternity, in walked the Drifters, with Ben Barton, manager of the group.

The group sat back and relaxed in the lounge chairs.

One could tell they were a bit on the tired side but they answered a continuous flow of questions.

Are you married or single?" Bill Pinkay, spokesman of the group was asked.

I prefer not to comment on that question", Bill said, making it clear that he did not wish to spread about his private life.

It seems that you are getting away from the music that you were generally associated with such as 'There Goes my Baby and I Count the Tears! They seem different from your recent record of 'Under the Boardwalk' and Saturday night at the Movies' Is this true?"

I believe you better ask Bill", Bobby Lee Hollis said.

But Bill declined to comment.

You can put this in your stories", Bill suddendly said. "We'll have our new record released in a couple of days. It's called 'Don't Call me, I'll call you. ' and the flip side is 'The Jerk".

Another dead end was reached when ages were asked. No Comment.

With the interviewing session over, the group wanted to rest before posing for some photographs.

Photographing the group brought on a few light moments when they made a joke or two generally horsed around "Hey man, dig that bigbrown - ie, " one of them said, breaking up the others as he pointed to the huge graflex camera blowing off flashbulbs in their faces.

Still they were quite cooperative and seemed to enjoy posing. KYSN Disk jockys Jerry Schafer and Steve Scott had their pictures taken with the group before they broke for show time.

They sang all their past hit records including their first million seller, "Money Honey." Also included in the show was "Up on the Roof", Room full of Tears, Under the Boardwalk", I Count the Tears" "On Broadway" and countless other hits.

Gerhart Thrash Bill Pinkay, Jimmy Lewis, Bobby Lee Hollis and Bobby Hendricks make up the Drifters. Hendricks has had hits on his own such as "Phusco" and "Itchy-Twichy Feeling."

Former members of the Drifters incliude Ben E. King and Clyde Mc Phatter. They are now doing very well also.

Put these boys together and you have a singing group that has stood up against the strong competition of the more recently formed groups. The Drifters have been around since 1953 and the future still looks good for them in the recording and entertainment business.

Jerry Schafer said that Colorado Springs may be seeing James Brown and the Flames and if at all possible but no promises, The Beatles.

GROUP SWINGS AWAY—The top dancers in the country have nothing over these boys when they get wound up. They showed great stamina in perfoming their dancing.
